HON. BAILEY BARTLETT.

THE ESSEX ANTIQUARIAN.

VOL. VII.

SALEM, MASS., JANUARY, 1903.

No. 1.

BARTLETT GENEALOGY.

THE name of BARTLETT is spelled as frequently Barilet in the early records of Essex county; other spellings, such as Bartlit and Bartlot, being sometimes found.

The ancestor of the principal family of that name in America was RICHARD BARTLETT¹, born perhaps in Wiltshire, England, about 1575. He was a shoemaker, and one of the earliest settlers of Newbury, living there before 1637. He died in Newbury May 25, 1647. Nothing is known of his wife.

Children:—*

- 2—I. JOAN², b. Jan. 29, 1610; m. William Titcomb before 1640.
- 3—II. JOHN², b. Nov. 9, 1613. See below (3).
- 4—III. THOMAS², b. Jan. 22, 1615.
- 5—IV. RICHARD², b. Oct. 31, 1621. See below (5).

*A "Breeches" Bible that once belonged to Richard Bartlett is now in possession of Rev. William Bartlett of Lowell, to whom it was given by his father, Rev. Samuel C. Bartlett, late president of Dartmouth college, who received it from Miss Elizabeth G. Hoyt. The family record contained in the volume reads as follows:—

"Richard Bartlett Bought this book Anno Domyni 1612.

"I Richard Bartlett writ this for the age of my children

"Joane Bartlett borne in Jannuarye 29. 1610 Wensday 8 of the cloke at nyght.

"Anne Bart was borne the. 26. of februarye being sonday about. 12 of the clocke in the yeare 1625."

—Horace I. Bartlett, Esq., Newburyport.

6—V. CHRISTOPHER², b. Feb. 25, 1623. See below (6).

7—VI. ANNE², b. Feb. 26, 1625.

JOHN BARTLETT², born Nov. 9, 1613, probably in England. He was a shoemaker and cordwinder, and lived in Newbury. He married Joanna —, who died in Newbury April 13, 1678. He died Feb. 5, 1678-9, having devised his homestead to his son John.

Children, probably born in Newbury:

8—I. JANE³,* m. William Bolton Jan. 16, 1654; and d. Sept. 6, 1659.

9—II. JOHN³, b. about 1639. See below (9).

RICHARD BARTLETT², born Oct. 31, 1621, probably in England. He was a shoemaker, cordwainer and yeoman, and lived at first at Oldtown in Newbury, removing to Bartlett's corner near Deer island, at the Merrimack river. He is said to have been a facetious and intelligent man; and was for several years a deputy to the general court. He married Abigail —. She died March 8, 1686-7; and he died in 1698, his will, dated April 19, 1695, being proved July 18, 1698.

Children, born in Newbury:—

10—I. SAMUEL³, b. Feb. 20, 1645-6. See below (10).

11—II. RICHARD³, b. Feb. 21, 1648-9. See below (11).

12—III. THOMAS³, b. Sept. 7, 1650. See below (12).

13—IV. ABIGAIL³, b. March 14, 1653; m. John Emery of Newbury May 27, 1700; and d. in 1723.

*David W. Hoyt places Jane in this family, but the writer has discovered no evidence indicating the relationship.

PART OF SALEM IN 1700. NO. 10.

BY SIDNEY FERLEY.

The map on page 19 represents that part of Salem which was known in the early days as the plain, Salem plain, Mill plain, or Trask's plain. It runs from Blubber hollow to the Peabody line and from North river to Gallows' hill. The plan is drawn on a scale of four hundred and fifty feet to an inch.

The common land was divided into house lots in 1719, and the record of the vote of the commoners under which this was done was passed at a meeting held at the Town house in Salem, Feb. 2, 1718-9, and was as follows: "Voated that whereas there is Seuerall Petitions and others that are for Small Parcels of Land on Trask Plaine so Cal^d Itt is left to the first and Grand Commite to dispose of into Small House Lotts the Lands fronting to the Highway on Said Plaines from Sa[id] Towne Bridge into Strongwater brooke Stone bridge on both Sides the way, the highway be Left att Least fve Pole broad and no person to haue more then halfe an Acree of Land." The lots that were laid out pursuant to this vote were only about ten rods in depth.

This main highway, now called Boston street, was the ancient road from Salem to Salem Village and Boston. It was called a road in 1717; the main road or street in 1721; the country road in 1724; Boston road in 1759; great country road leading to Salem in 1795; Boston street in 1795; road leading to Boston in 1797; West street in 1813; road leading from the South meeting-house to Salem in 1814; and since then Boston street.

In the sketches that follow, after 1700, titles and deeds referred to pertain to the houses and lands under and adjoining, and not always to the whole lot, the design being, that date, to give the history of the houses then standing.

Trask Burying Ground. This burying place was probably not enclosed until after March 20, 1681-2, when the inhabitants about the glass house field, etc., requested that it be enclosed, and the town voted that the selectmen "settle it."

The Original Mill. Capt. William Trask erected, at the point marked on the map "Site of old mill," the first corn mill in Salem about 1635. Benjamin Balch, sr., of Beverly, aged about seventy-seven years, and John Massey, sr., of Salem, aged seventy-five years, deposed, April 10, 1706, that they "knew Cap^t William Trafke Deced and that he Erected the first Corn mill In Salem & had y^e Improvement of a Considerable parcell of Land to make ye pond," etc.*

Robert Pease and Elizabeth Buxton of Salem deposed, Feb. 25, 1706-7, "that about Seventy yeares last past" we "doe very well know & Remember that Cap^t Trafke formerly of Salem Deced had a corne mill where Nicholas Trafk's fulling mill now Standith which was the first corn mill † that was ever Set up in Salem

*Essex Registry of Deeds, book 20, leaf 12.

†This deposition is different from all the others in stating that the first corn mill of Captain Trask was located at the fulling mill, which is a manifest error. Robert Pease the principal deponent was only a boy at the time this mill was built, and probably never knew from personal knowledge the existence of the original mills, being too young. The grist mill that stood on the site of the fulling mill (now on Wallis street, in Peabody) was probably the first corn mill that he remembered, and remembered vividly because of his theft from it.

& that it was Improved for many yeares & after that mill was decay'd upwards of forty yeares Since," etc.*

John King† and Samuel Golthrite‡ deposed, April 27, 1708, that "Capt. William Trafke y^e father of John Trafke of Salem, miller obtained liberty from y^e Town of Salem or y^e Select men of said Town to sett a mill on y^e north river where y^e Tide came for his better conveniency for a head of Water accordingly Said William Trafke Erected a mill first about half a mile below where y^e fulling mill now Stands oppofite against his dwelling house," etc.

The old mill continued to be used until 1641, when a new mill was built where it is marked on the map. As to the subsequent use of the old mill building, Thomas Lovell, aged eighty-six, testified, March 27, 1707, "that in Anno Domini One thousand Six hundred & forty I was an Inhabitant of y^e Towne of Salem in y^e County of Essex in y^e province of y^e Massachusetts Bay in New England in which I lived aboue Seuen yeares & for about three yeares I had my aboad in y^e house of m^r William Bacon that he Bought of Cap^t Trafke & was neer y^e first corn mill that y^e Said Trafke did Set up in y^e Said Salem: And when y^e Said Trafke had Set up his Second corn mill for more benefit of Water then y^e first had & did grind I had y^e liberty to worke in y^e first mill house of my trade viz a Currier as I did at times during y^e aforesaid time of my abode & I now well Remember y^e Damme that was made & y^e pond of Water that y^e Said Dam did Cause & y^e provisions for Water that were made for y^e use of y^e said first mill and that then there was land a Considerable quantity became overflowed by reason of y^e aforesaid provisions all which then Excepting what was Common was in y^e possession quietly of Said Trafke for in those times people were more then ordinary furthering then their publike benefit of having a mill," etc.*

The Second Mill. The location of the new, or second, mill is shown on the map. This was built, and the old one abandoned, in 1640, as was stated in the deposition of Thomas Lovell,* "for more benefit of water then y^e first had." John King and Samuel Golthrite, in their depositions mentioned above, stated that Capt. William Trask, "not liking that place he in a Short time removed it downe nigh halfe a mile further downe viz about a mile below where the fulling mill now stands for y^e Encreasing of a head of Water & y^e Said Corne mill was set in this lowest place about a mile below y^e fulling mill as aforesaid upwards of fifty years agoe, & y^e Said John Trafke doth Injoy & make use of Said Corne mill to this day which said mill Stands upon y^e Same Stream which higher up is calld Gardners Brook." Robert Pease also states, in his deposition, that "upwards of forty yeares Since† there was another corne mill Set up which was called Cap^t Trafkes mill & was Improved by him & that I this deponent doe further testifie that there was a pond & a Considerable quantity of Swamp & other land with y^e pond floated for y^e mills use, etc.

Authority for the erection of this mill was granted by the town at a general meeting, held 30: 1: 1640, viz: "Captaine Trask hath leaue to set up a [tid] Mill vpon the North River, provide hee make passage for a Shallope from halfe flood to full sea."

Capt. William Trask died in May 1666, having devised the mill to his son John and William. The son William apparently relinquished his interest in the mill to his brother John, and the latter continued to grind corn here until 1711.

when the town gave him (with Joseph Boice, jr.) liberty to remove it down to Spooner's point, and set it up at said place, provided they do it in three years' time, and make and always maintain a sufficient highway across ye river for men and teams at their own cost and charge. The place to which the mill was removed is now the eastern side of Grove street, which is the highway provided for and which has existed ever since.

John Trask House. This was one of the lots earliest granted by Salem. There is no record of the grant, and it must have been about 1630. Capt. William Trask lived here until his death in May, 1666. He devised the northern end of the house to his wife Sarah, and remainder of the homestead to his sons William and John. The latter apparently released to the former before 1690; and William died possessed of the homestead in the winter of 1690-1, having devised it to his son John. This was an inn conducted by William for the last year of his life, and then by his son John. John erected a new house out on the main street in 1718, and the old one was probably taken down or allowed to go to decay.

Humphrey Case House. At a town meeting, held April 11, 1681, a small parcel of land, petitioned for by Humphrey Case, was ordered "to be laid out for him to build a shop upon, during the town's pleasure, and for no other purpose and not to dispose of it." Mr. Case was a blacksmith, and not only erected a shop upon the lot, but a house, also, in which he lived. He was living there March 24, 1711-2, when the town granted to his son, Humphrey Case, jr., upon the latter's petition, said land forever, the son agreeing to "maintain and keep his said ancient father during his life."

Humphrey Case, jr., of Salem, blacksmith, for thirty-six pounds, conveyed to Edward Carrell of Salem, weaver, the house and orchard of three-quarters of an acre, being "the house where his father Humphrey Case lived near Elias Trask's house as it was set out to me by the selectmen," March 19, 1714-5.* Edward Carrell conveyed it to George Booth of Salem, cordwinder, Feb. 20, 1716-7,* and March 25, 1716, Mr. Booth mortgaged the house and lot. This mortgage was discharged Feb. 2, 1724-5.† Capt. Peter Osgood of Salem, tanner, for thirty-six pounds, conveyed the house and lot to John Shillaber of Salem, shopkeeper, being "formerly ye messuage of Humphrey Case, deceased, now in ye possession of Edward Carrel," March 11, 1725-6.‡ Mr. Shillaber died in the winter of 1753-4, having devised to Elizabeth Moor, "who now lives with me," for life "two rooms in lower part of my house on Salem plains, adjoining to ye horse pasture, and ye rest of it to Elizabeth Shillaber, daughter of my son William Shillaber, deceased." How long the house stood after this date is uncertain.

THE OLD GATE-KEEPER.

BY CLINTON SCOLLARD.

As you turned from the town, and the valley forsook,
Lured onward and up by the brawl of the brook,
There broke on the sight such a tiny abode,
The gate-house that stood at the bend in the road.

The quaintest of mortals had lodging therein,
With the dream of a dimple asleep in his chin,
And a bow like a prince which he fondly bestowed
When he flung wide the gate at the bend in the road.

He would brood by the hour o'er his one window-box,
With its old-fashioned blossoms, sweet williams and phlox,
Yet the cloud always fled, and the mirth ever flowed,
When a wanderer paused at the bend in the road.

Now he sleeps his last sleep, though in memory still
I see his bent figure lean over the sill;
And gone is the gate-house, his cheery abode,
While the grass waves its green at the bend in the road.

WINTER OF 1740-1.

The summer of 1740 was cool and wet. An early frost injured much of the corn crop, and the rain which followed continued so long that the grain was slow in ripening. A third of it was cut for fodder, and the rest soon molded. There was, therefore, very little seed corn for the next spring's planting, and the amount of dry corn for use during the winter was small.

The rains of the summer and fall flooded the lowlands, destroying planted seed and growing crops.

The rivers of Salem were frozen over in October, and November fourth the temperature was very low. On Thanksgiving day, November thirteenth, the cold was severe, and all day long snow fell, continuing until the fifteenth, when it measured a foot on the level.

The cold continued until about the twenty-second, when its rigor relaxed, and a thaw, accompanied by rain, came on. For three weeks the rain fell, during the day only, the stars shining brightly each evening. And on each morning rain fell as energetically as before. The snow melted, and a freshet occurred in the Merrimac river, which had not had its parallel for seventy years. At Haverhill the stream rose fifteen feet, and houses were floated off. In what is now West Newbury, Rawson's meadow, at Turkey hill, was covered with water to the depth of twelve feet. In another part of Newbury, between the mill and residence of a Mr. Emery, a sloop could have sailed. Great quantities of wood, piled along the banks of the river, was carried away, and from the shipyards in what is now Newburyport, considerable timber, ready to be formed into vessels, was also floated down the harbor, much of both wood and timber being lost. To save as much of it as possible, the dwellers on the shores of the river turned out, and for fourteen days worked from the banks and in boats. Some two thousand cords of wood was saved on Plum island alone.

Plum Island river was frozen over on December twelfth, and remained so until the end of March. Merrimac river was also similarly closed. The cold continued so severe that ice soon became thick and strong enough to support teams, and before the end of December the river became a great thoroughfare. Loaded sleds drawn by two, three or four yoke of oxen, came from towns up the river, and landed below the upper long wharf near where the ferry was then located in what is now Newburyport. From twenty to forty such teams passed down the river daily from Amesbury and Haverhill, and people travelled down the harbor as far as half-tide rock. On February twenty-eighth, for the purpose of ascertaining the thickness of the ice in the river, Wells Chase cut through the ice at Deer island where the current was swiftest and found it to measure thirty inches, although people had constantly sledged over it for two months. No one then living had ever heard of the river freezing so hard before.

The sea was also much frozen.

Ice formed so solidly around some mills that they could not be operated, as at Byfield in Newbury, where Pearson's mill was closed from February third to March thirty-first, and the people of Newbury had to go to Salisbury to get their scanty grists of corn ground.

The reign of cold seemed to be broken on January tenth, when the weather moderated and a thaw began; but it continued only three days, and low temperature was resumed.

Not only was the winter rigorous in temperature, but great snows came until, in the estimation of the people then living, taking it as a whole it was the severest season that had been experienced here since the first settlement. There were twenty-seven snow storms in all, most of them of good size. February third, nearly a foot of snow fell, and about a week later there were two more storms, which filled the roads in Newbury and vicinity to the tops of fences, and in some places the snow lay to the depth of from eight to ten feet. On April fourth, the fences were still covered, and three days later another foot of snow fell. In the woods it was then four feet deep on the level. The snow remained so long that the spring was very backward; and when the ground was ready for planting the farmers were about discouraged, thinking of the failure of the corn crop the year before.

Jacob¹ Barney of Salem, freeman May 14, 1634, was, says Felt, an "intelligent merchant," and "often selectman and deputy to the general court. * * * The loss of such men as Mr. Barney is not easily supplied." He opposed the sentence of the general court against those who petitioned for freer franchise. He died at Salem April 28, 1673, aged seventy-two or seventy-three, leaving widow Elizabeth. Pope's "Pioneers of Massachusetts" says that an Anna Barney was member of the church at Salem in 1637, and queries whether she was not his wife, but in the settlement of his estate, Sept. 30, 1673, the relict Elizabeth is called the mother of Jacob², only son of the deceased, and he is called her son. As he was born in England before 1634, Anna could not have been the wife of his father in 1637. There is little doubt that Jacob¹ Barney was son of Edward Barney of Braddenham, County Bucks, England, yeoman, who bequeathed in his will of Oct. 9, 1643, to "son Jacob Barney, if he be living at time of my death and come over into England." Edward's wife may have been Isbell Rooles, daughter of John Rooles of Turfile, Bucks. The children of Jacob¹ and Elizabeth were, 1. Jacob², born in England; died in Rehoboth, Mass., Feb. 12, 1692-3; 2. Sarah², died November, 1662; 3. Hannah²; 4. John², baptized Dec. 13, 1639; died before April 28, 1673. Sarah² Barney married John Grover by 1659. Hannah² Barney married John Cromwell of Salem, slaughterer. He died September, 1700, and his will mentions "dear & loving wife Hannah", but no children. John² Barney must have died before his father, as in the settlement of the estate in 1673 Jacob, jr., is called "only son." There was a John Barnet or Barney of Salem who married Oct. 14, 1661, Mary Bishop, and had children, Mary F—— and Elizabeth. Jacob² Barney was a Baptist minister and founded churches in Charlestown and Swansea, and is probably the one who, in 1668, was one of the founders of the First Baptist Society in Boston. From Salem he removed, not earlier than 1673, for one of his children was born in Salem that year, to Bristol and Rehoboth. His will was made July 13, 1692, and probated Feb. 20, 1693, wife Ann, executrix. He married, first, in Salem Aug. 18, 1657, Hannah Johnson, who died June 5, 1659.

He married, second, April 26, 1660, Ann Witt, daughter of John and Sarah Witt, who died at Rehoboth March 17, 1701. Children of Jacob²: Josiah³ (?); Hannah³, born in Salem May 30, 1657; probably died young; Hannah, born in Salem, 1661; probably married Joshua Boynton of Newbury April 9, 1678; and died before 1681; Sarah³ born in Salem Sept. 12, 1662; married Harry Hampton; Abigail, born in Salem Oct. 31, 1663; married Peter Marshall of Newbury; John³, born in Salem Aug. 1, 1665; died May, 1725; married, at Bristol Nov. 4, 1686, Mary Throop, lived in Bristol and Swansea, and had ten children; removed to Rehoboth, and about 1710, to Taunton; Jacob³, born in Salem May 21, 1667; probably died between 1687 and 1692; Ruth³, born in Salem Sept. 27, 1669; was unmarried in 1688; Dorcas³, born in Salem April 22, 1671; married Dan Throop Aug. 23, 1689; and died between 1692 and 1697; Lt. Joseph³, born in Salem March 9, 1673; married, in 1692, Constance Davis of Haverhill; lived in Swansea; and died at Rehoboth Feb. 5, 1730-1; Israel³, born June 17, 1675; lived at Rehoboth; married, Nov. 18, 1696, Elizabeth Barrett; Jonathan³, born March 29, 1677; Samuel³, born Feb. 10, 1679, living in 1692; and Hannah³, born Oct. 6, 1681. —Elizabeth E. Dana, Cambridge.

Jacob Barney 1, born about 1601, is said to have come from Swansea, Wales, to Salem about 1630; made freeman May 14, 1634; lived in Salem; tailor; married Elizabethn ———, who survived him. He represented Salem in the general court, 1635, 1638, 1647, and 1653. Administration was granted on his estate, and an inventory taken June 2, 1673. John Cromwell is called his son-in-law, and an heir to his estate. Children: * 1. Jacob², probably born in Wales; husband and lived in Salem as late as 1694; married, first, Hannah Johnson 18: 6: 1657; and she died 5: 4: 1659. John Lowle and Edward Woodman, for the town of Newbury, petitioned the general court that John Eales, aged upwards of seventy, in or about August last came to Newbury to John Davis' and rented a farm. He was unable to get a living, and went to Ipswich where he was stayed by the constable of Ipswich, who sent him back to Newbury. The court ordered that he be put in some convenient place to be employed at his trade of beehive making. This was about 1640.—Massachusetts Archives, volume I., leaf 4.

Petition of Bray Wilkins, dated at Dorchester 5: 1 mo: 1643, to the general court, stating that he has a boy who "hath ben lame for the greatest part of the time", and asking for help to have him cured, being a poor man himself.—Massachusetts Archives, volume IX., leaf 1.

Mr. Phillips of Rowley, having been published, writes to the general court, saying that there is no one to marry him. Mr. William Hubbard, sr., of Ipswich was authorized to perform the act, 18: 8: 1651.—Massachusetts Archives, volume IX., leaf 17.

William Bartholmew (brother of Henry Bartholmew named below) was made a freeman March 4, 1634. He was one of the earliest settlers in Ipswich and lived there until 1660, when he removed to Boston, where he was living in 1676. He was a merchant, and Felt says that he died in Charlestown Jan. 18, 1681. He was town clerk of Ipswich, and represented the town five years in the general court and was also county treasurer in 1654. In 1650, 1651 and 1661, he is called of Salem, and was foreman of the grand jury at the quarterly court there in 1650. He is also called of Gloucester in 1657 and 1658. His wife was Ann in 1653. Child: Mary, married, first, Matthew Whipple 24: 10: 1657; and, second, Jacob Green of Charlestown before 1667-8; being the latter's wife in 1670.

Henry Bartholmew (brother of William Bartholmew above named), born about 1607; aged sixty-two in 1670; arrived in New England Nov. 7, 1635; was a merchant; and lived in Salem during the remainder of his life, except in the years 1679-1681, when he resided in Boston. He represented Salem in the general court in 1635 and eighteen years subsequently. He married Elizabeth Scudder of Salem; and she died Sept. 1, 1682, aged about 60. He died in Salem

ANSWERS.

319. Catherine Layton [Leighton], who married Maj. John Whipple June 26, 1681, was the daughter of William Leighton, mariner, who married, 1656, Catherine, daughter of Nicholas Frost of Kittery. I can point out the precise spot where she was born, at Leighton's Point, now in Elliott, Me. I have documentary proof of the above, which I can furnish to "E. D. B."—Rev. Everett S. Stackpole, Bradford, Mass.

379. Capt. John Perley, son of Samuel and Ruth (Howe) Perley of Ipswich was born there Nov. 22, 1743. He lived in Rowley; and married, first, Lucy Holland of Ipswich May 2, 1765. She died Feb. 21, 1766, her infant child dying the same day; and he married, secondly, Hannah Mighill of Rowley Sept. 21, 1769. He was drowned in Rowley Nov. 28, 1811; and his wife Hannah survived him, dying Sept. 8, 1812, aged fifty-nine. Mr. Perley had fourteen children, one by wife Lucy, and thirteen by wife Hannah. Two of the children died unmarried, the others were Nathaniel Mighill, John, Sarah, Mary, Elizabeth, Hannah, Judith, Priscilla, Mehitable, Ruth, Anstice, and Susan.

Capt. Nathaniel Perley, another son of Samuel and Ruth (Howe) Perley of Ipswich, was born there Oct. 11, 1745. He lived in Newburyport; and married Sarah Dutch of Ipswich in 1769. He was captain of a privateer, and in the latter part of the War of the Revolution his vessel and himself and crew were captured by the crew of a British vessel. He was ordered to do a menial service, but refused as he was an officer. He was shot without hesitation. His wife survived him, and married, secondly, Lt. Samuel Bacon of Bradford in 1780. He died about 1810; and she survived him, dying his widow, in May, 1819, aged sixty-nine.

She had children by both husbands. Captain Perley had six children, Nathaniel, Ebenezer, Samuel, Sarah, John, and William. Samuel emigrated to Pennsylvania in 1815, and his son Charles and the latter's several sons have been important factors in the business and political life of New York City.

Dr. Abraham Perley, the youngest son of Samuel and Ruth (Howe) Perley was born in Ipswich Dec. 24, 1749. He became a physician, settling in the practice of his profession in New Gloucester, Me. Consumption, however, fastened itself upon his system. He went, in the last stages of his sickness, to his brother Rev. Samuel Perley's, at Seabrook, N. H., in the autumn of 1775, and died there in the following spring, at the age of twenty-six. He was unmarried.

These three men, John, Nathaniel, and Abraham Perley were born in a house that was taken down nearly a century ago, the cellar hole remaining unfilled to the present time. It is a few rods northeasterly from the residence of A. Spafford Howe in Linebrook parish, Ipswich.

NEW PUBLICATIONS.

THE IRISH IN THE UNITED STATES. By William B. Sullivan. Danvers, 1902. This is an eighteen-page pamphlet, being a paper read at a meeting of the Danvers historical society Nov. 17, 1902. It is a valuable document, full of facts, and the result of considerable research.

UNVEILING OF TABLET AT BIRTHPLACE OF GEORGE PEABODY. Peabody, Mass., 1902. This is a pamphlet of nineteen pages, giving the exercises attending the unveiling of the tablet erected by the Peabody historical society at the birthplace in that town of George Peabody, the banker and philanthropist, June 16, 1902. Fine half-tone engravings of the house and tablet are also given.

RECORDS OF THE COURT OF ASSISTANTS OF THE COLONY OF THE MASSACHUSETTS BAY. Boston, 1901. This volume, although marked I, covers the years 1673 to 1692 only. It is published by the county of Suffolk, under the supervision of John Noble, clerk of the supreme judicial court, assisted by William P. Upham, the accurate and experienced antiquarian. The volume contains five hundred and eighty-eight pages, is finely printed and bound, and fully indexed. This is one of the most valuable records extant, and every one interested in history will be glad to have this book preserved and become so easily accessible.

FORTY YEARS OF NEBRASKA AT HOME AND IN CONGRESS. By Hon. Thomas Weston Tipton. Lincoln, Nebraska, 1902. This volume is a special publication of the Nebraska State Historical Society; and contains five hundred and seventy pages. The volume contains principally sketches of the territorial governors and delegates, and of the state governors, senators and representatives. The illustrations are full-page halftone portraits of the author, and of J. Sterling Morton, David Butler, R. W. Furnas, J. E. Boyd, Lorenzo Crounse, Silas A. Holcomb, Charles F. Manderson, William V. Allen and William Jennings Bryan. The volume is valuable and interesting, and well indexed.

PROCEEDINGS AND COLLECTIONS OF THE NEBRASKA STATE HISTORICAL SOCIETY. Second Series, Volume V. Lincoln, Nebraska, 1902. The collections contained in this volume include many valuable papers, on early journalism, reminiscences of territorial days, an episode of the Wyoming cattle war, recollections of Omaha, 1855-1861, history of the first state capitol, early history of Jefferson county, overland route, Indian massacres in 1866, Pawnee war of 1859, early days in the Indian country, freighting to Denver, freighting and staging in early days, the Plains war in 1865, underground railroad, etc. The frontispiece is a fine half-tone portrait of Judge Elmer S. Dundy of Falls City, Nebraska, a sketch of whose life is given. The volume contains three hundred and eighty-one pages.

THIS Monument perpetuates the many and singular virtues of the REV^d JOHN CLEAVELAND A. M., who died April 22^d 1799, which day completed his 77th year.

He was ordained to the pastoral office in this place Feby 25th A D 1747. and for more than fifty two years was eminently a faithful Watchman, being ever ready and apt to teach His zeal and attention to the duties of his office evinced the purity of his motives. His mind was richly stored with useful science & in the holy scriptures he was eminently learned. His undeviating virtue commanded respect and confirmed the hope of his blissful immortality.

*His soul releas'd from cumbrous clay
Expatiates in eternal day,
And with the Great Jehovah dwells
Who, wonders vast and new reveals.*

DESCENDANTS OF WILLIAM BARTLETT OF FRAMPTON, DORSETSHIRE, ENGLAND.

WILLIAM BARTLETT¹ lived in Frampton, Dorsetshire, England.* Whether he ever came to New England or not is not known; he may have been the William Bartlett who was in Salem court in 1653, and of Newbury in 1661.

Child, born in England:—

- 2—1. ROBERT², b. about 1638. See below (2).

2

CAPT. ROBERT BARTLETT², born in England about 1638. He was a yeoman and fisherman, and lived in Marblehead. He married, first, Mary Walton before 1669; and, second, Rebecca Boobyer (widow of William Pinson, or Pinsent) Dec. 24, 1702. His wife was Rebecca in 1714. His will, dated Feb. 2, 1714, was proved June 27, 1717. He was living in Marblehead as early as 1669, and was in the neighborhood in 1666. He had land in Manchester.

Children:—†

- 3—1. WILLIAM³. See below (3).
4—II. NATHANIEL³. See below (4).
5—III. MARTHA³, m. Robert Nicholson, jr., of Marblehead Oct. 10, 1700.
6—IV. JOHN³. See below (6).
7—V. JOSIAH³, bapt. in Marblehead Sept. 21, 1684. See below (7).
8—VI. ABIGAIL³, bapt. in Marblehead Sept. 11, 1687; m. Thomas Bartoll of Marblehead Dec. 11, 1707.

WILLIAM BARTLETT³ was the eldest son in 1714. He was a husbandman and fisherman, and lived in Marblehead. He married Sarah Purchase in Marblehead Dec. 27, 1688; and she was living in 1735. His will, dated March 1, 1734-5, was proved April 14, 1735. He devised his house, etc., to his son Thomas.

*Magdalene Bartlett deposed that this William Bartlett was father of Robert Bartlett of Marblehead July 17, 1684.

†In his will he mentions son-in-law John Homan, "my two own daughters and four daughters-in-law." Timothy Goodwin of Boston, joiner, calls himself a grandson of Lt. Robert Bartlett, and son of Timothy Goodwin of Marblehead, deceased, in 1708.

Children, born in Marblehead:—

- 9—1. NATHANIEL⁴, bapt. Sept. 16, 1694. See below (9).
10—II. WILLIAM⁴, bapt. Sept. 16, 1694.
11—III. ELIZABETH⁴, bapt. Sept. 16, 1694; m. Thomas Wood of Marblehead, sailmaker, Sept. 23, 1723; and she was his wife in 1739.
12—IV. ROBERT⁴, bapt. Feb. 14, 1696.
13—V. JOHN⁴, bapt. Nov. 19, 1699. See below (13).
14—VI. JOSIAH⁴, bapt. March 21, 1702-3.
15—VII. SARAH⁴, b. Aug. 27, 1704; m. Philip Ashton, jr., of Marblehead, fisherman, July 15, 1729, and was his widow in 1747.
16—VIII. THOMAS⁴, b. July 25, 1708. See below (16).

NATHANIEL BARTLETT⁴ was a shoreman, and lived in Marblehead. He married Rebecca —* before 1698; and administration was granted on his estate July 26, 1729. She survived him.

Children, born in Marblehead:—

- 17—1. MARY⁴, bapt. April 10, 1698.
18—II. ROBERT⁴, bapt. Dec. 22, 1700.
19—III. NATHANIEL⁴, bapt. Feb. 18, 1704-5.

JOHN BARTLETT³ was a fisherman, and lived in Marblehead. He married Remember Owens in Marblehead Nov. 29, 1705; and she was his wife in 1722. Administration was granted on his estate Dec. 30, 1762.

Children, born in Marblehead:—†

*Susannah Fowle of Marblehead, widow of Jacob Fowle, deceased, and daughter of William Neck, called Nathaniel Bartlett her brother-in-law in 1708.

†Thomas Bartlett of Marblehead, painter: wife Sarah; was grandson of John Bartlett of Marblehead, fisherman, deceased, 1768. Thomas Bartlett married Sarah Dennis Dec. 3, 1765, in Marblehead; and administration was granted on his estate July 10, 1782. She survived him, and married, secondly, Nathaniel Clark Sept. 12, 1782. She was living in 1786. Mr. Bartlett's estate was insolvent.

Daniel Cahill of Marblehead, surgeon, and wife Sarah, sold their interest in the estate of John Bartlett of Marblehead, fisherman, deceased, grandfather of said Sarah's son Nathaniel Bartlett, late of Marblehead, deceased, 1768.

Samuel Brimblecom, blockmaker, and others, sold house of our grandfather John Bartlett of Marblehead, fisherman, deceased, 1773.

- 20—I. MARY⁴, b. Nov. 17, 1707; m. Samuel Holman Nov. 23, 1727; he was a shoreman; and they were living in Marblehead in 1773.
 21—II. JOHN⁴, b. July 5, 1709. See below (21).
 22—III. ROBERT⁴, bapt. Sept. 28, 1712; and was living in 1714.

TOPPESFIELD, ENGLAND.

BY OSCAR FAY ADAMS.

(Population: 796 (1891). 62 miles from London, via Yeldham (Liverpool St. terminus of Great Eastern). Parish church, register from 1559, living, a rectory. Congregational chapel. National school.)

The visitor to this locality is very likely to be told by its inhabitants that Toppesfield is the highest point in the county, or the next highest, according to the degree of local pride in the particular informant. Now as Essex is anything but a mountainous region this claim for Toppesfield need not imply any very dizzy altitude. But indeed the assertion is not to be taken with entire literalness, for there are several places in Essex situated on higher ground than this one. Still, as the village is nearly three hundred feet above sea level, while portions of the parish are even higher, and Toppesfield can consequently overlook much of the surrounding country, its pride of place may be forgiven, since it has so little besides its height to boast of.

Toppesfield lies in the northern part of the shire, and the nearest railway station is at Great Yeldham, a mile and a half to the southeast on the Colne Valley line, a short local railway pursuing its leisurely course along the valley of the River Colne between Haverhill and Chappel. From the Yeldham station the road makes a gradual ascent to the upland parish, a wide and pleasant rural highway shaded in places by hedgerow trees, and with a few farm-houses scattered along at intervals. Presently, swinging around a curve, it brings one before a cluster of perhaps a dozen houses on the right hand. Several of these are comparatively new and all have garden plots in front. From this point, after passing a few narrow fields intervening, the village centre is soon gained. It is an open gravelly space at the divergence of two lanes. A pump with gabled canopy above it occupies the middle of this area, and opposite this, and facing the approaching traveller, is the Green Man, a comfortable appearing, unpretentious, and not unpicturesque inn.

Some thirty or more dwellings, many with thatched roofs and none of them much above the humble cottage grade, constitute the remainder of the village. One of them is a long, half-timbered, attractive looking almshouse, bearing the date of its erection in black bricks on its chimney, 1865. Crowded in away from the houses at one side of the street is the small Congregational chapel, but the structure that will soonest attract the visitor's notice is the parish church whose tower has been in sight all the way from Yeldham.

It stands at the southeast of the village, but removed from it at the distance of a field's breadth, and the National school is the sole building beyond it. It was built in 1519, and is therefore an example of Third Pointed work. The great western tower, containing five bells, is less ancient, having been erected in 1699. It is of brick, and a tablet high up in the wall records the fact that it was built in memory of Robert Wilde, rector here in the last decade of the seventeenth century. The remainder of the church comprises nave, south aisle, north and south porches, and chancel, all of grey stone, save a portion of the north nave wall, which is of brick, and the north porch, which is of timber. No particular architectural interest attaches to the building, but the tower with its four pinnacles certainly appears well from a distance, while within may be noted several mural tablets, an altar tomb on the south side of the chancel beneath a floriated arch, to the memory of the founder of the church, whose name has perished, despite the altar tomb, sedilia in the chancel, and a rude font of ancient date in the nave.

The brasses are to the memory of William Cracherd and his wife, the former of whom died in 1585, and John Cracherd and his wife Agnes. The latter brass is a half century older than the other and displays engraved effigies of the departed pair. The church is fairly spacious, with a nave of four bays and a chancel of proportionate extent, and with its west gallery is quite large enough for the present needs of the parish. It was restored in 1895.

The parish is an agricultural one with a heavy clay soil, as is soon discovered by anyone venturing along its lanes after a shower, and wheat, barley, oats, peas and beans are the principal crops. It is not a parish at all likely to be heard of twenty miles away, merely a very quiet corner of the world, discoverable only after some searching.

There are but two localities of this name in the United States, the elder situated in Massachusetts, the other in Maine, so named by its first settlers who had emigrated from the Massachusetts town. Regarding the latter a history of the county of Essex vaguely avers that it was so called probably for Toppestfield, Essex county, England, and the author of the bicentennial address, delivered in Topsfield in 1850, declares that in all probability the town received its name from this source.

The real facts in the case appear to be as follows. In 1595, Samuel Symonds, the founder of the American family of Symonds, was born in Great Yeldham, Essex, fourth son to Richard Symonds of that parish. At the age of twenty-two, young Samuel married Dorothy Harlakenden of Earl's Colne, a near-by parish, and for a score of years they dwelt on his estate of "Olivers," in Toppestfield, where twelve children were born to them. Then, in 1636, Mistress Symonds died, and the husband, in the next year, sailed for the Massachusetts colony, where he settled at Ipswich. That he was not wholly a broken-hearted widower may be inferred from the circumstance of his marriage with Mrs. Martha Epps (the sister-in-law of John Winthrop, junior, and originally of Wickford, Essex) scarcely more than a twelvemonth after the demise of Mistress Dorothy. He quickly rose to public notice in the colony, becoming deputy-governor, and dying, at the ripe age of eighty-three, October 13, 1678. His Ipswich estate was named "Olivers" for his English home, and when the town of Topsfield was incorporated it was named either in compliment to him or at his suggestion. The slight change in the spelling is readily accounted for by the latitude formerly allowable in matters of orthography.

For Governor Symonds' sake the visitor to Topsfield will very probably take time to stroll about the pretty little village of Great Yeldham, where the governor first saw the light. It is long and somewhat scattered, and at the upper end is the parish church with a tall western tower of grand proportions. It is dedicated to Saint Andrew, and dates from the Third Pointed period of architecture. The parish contains some six hundred persons, the chief residence belonging to the Way family. It is known as Spencer Grange, and is surrounded by a park of one hundred and fifty acres. Spaynes Hall is another mansion in the parish. There is a small Baptist chapel in Great Yeldham, and the village can boast of a great oak over a thousand years old. The adjoining parish of Little Yeldham contains nothing of especial interest, the principal building being its small flint church dedicated to Saint John the Baptist, with two bells in its tower.

NOTES.

Elizabeth Barriere married Sylvanus Lowell Oct. 10, 1791.

Lydia St. Barbe married Nicholas Tracy March 19, 1795.

PART OF SALEM IN 1700. NO. II.

BY SIDNEY PERLEY.

The map on page 69 represents that part of Salem which is bounded by Flint, Essex and Boston streets and the North river, the latter being now filled except that part which is the present canal. It is based on actual surveys and title deeds, and is drawn on a scale of two hundred feet to an inch. It shows the location of all houses that were standing in 1700. The braces marked "a" show where Federal street now runs, the brace marked "b" where Fowler street begins and that marked "c" where North Pine street begins.

North river has been known as such since the very first settlement by the Europeans.

Flint street was one of the original lanes leading down to the water. It was called a highway in 1668; lane yt leads to ye north river, 1679; Dean's lane, 1766; Dean street, 1795; and Flint street, 1894.

Essex street has been the principal thoroughfare of the town from the beginning of its settlement. It was called a street in 1659; ye broad street that goes to the bridge or causeway at the western end of ye town, 1679; highway, 1689; ye main street, 1696; ye great street leading through ye town, 1713; and Essex street, 1796.

Boston street was laid out in 1642, after the first bridge was finished, across private lands belonging to Robert Moulton and John Alderman, and cutting across their lots diagonally. It was called a street in 1663; highway to the causeway, 1670; ye bridge street so called towards Trask's mills, 1680; the street going towards the mill bridge, 1681; the main street, 1696; ye bridge street, 1698; street or highway leading to ye town bridge 1702; ye country road, 1737; way leading into town 1752; street leading from Buffum's corner to Town bridge, 1779; Town bridge street, 1789; great road, 1789; and Boston street, 1799.

There was a highway along the river a short distance from the bridge in 1679, being probably the right of way reserved along the water front in the original laying out of the town, which in most places was never used, and became forgotten.

Federal street was laid out across private land about 1769. It was called the new street in 1770; new street laid out near the North river, 1779; a town way, 1782; and Federal street, 1794.

Fowler street was laid out by the owner of the land through the middle of the Fowler lot, presumably to open up the rear land for building lots, about 1820. It was called a town way about 1824; a way, 1848; and Fowler street, 1868.

North Pine street was laid out about 1850; and was called by that name in 1852, being then a private way.

This section was called the town's end, or western end of the town. At the bridge, the village, or Salem village began.

The Fortification. Late in 1675, the danger from the Indians was so imminent, because of the uprising of King Philip and others, that the general court ordered the towns to fortify themselves by building a stockade or stone wall eight feet in height. Salem was protected by a stone wall and palisades. The northwestern end of it is indicated on the map. It ran from North river to the mill pond, the upper end of South river. The rivers were half a mile apart, and this was the most feasible place to build such a defence. There was no house at that time beyond this line within half a mile, and the rising ground with a slope southerly toward the main land made it an ideal spot for the purpose. On all other sides the town was protected by water. The fortification terminated at its southeasterly end, at the pointed ledge, a short distance easterly of the south end of Phelps street. On the ledges, for about two hundred feet, the wall was erected, but the rest of the distance was covered by a stockade or palisados, probably from the ledge to the water's edge southeasterly, and northwesterly to North river. Probably the only open places were where it crossed the roads now called Broad and Boston streets. The stockade crossed what is now Broad street about midway between Flint and Jackson streets, the junction of Warren and Essex streets, passing along the brow of the hill at the elbow in May street and so on as shown on the map.

Felt says, that March 28, 1676, "our military committee" reported that they had placed "several garrisons in and about our farms and outhouses:" and that "the town have begun a substantial wall which forthwith shall be carried from river to river." So the plan seems to have been to build a wall the entire length of the line; but probably, as the palisade was more easily, cheaply and quickly built than the stone wall, it was resorted to. Expedition was the great desideratum at that time, when it was expected that the war whoop might be heard in the stillness of any midnight in the peaceful streets of Salem, and massacre and captivity go hand in hand with the destruction of the homes of the inhabitants. The terrible acts of the savages at Rowley, Newbury, Haverhill, Dover and many places at the eastward, even for years later, indicate the danger that lurked around Salem at this time.

Seven years after the war was over, in 1683, Felt says, the "pallasados near the bridge" were given to the poor for firewood.

In 1693, he further says our people had been at much charge for the maintenance of block-houses and other fortifications. The mortgage given by Benjamin Pickering, in 1702,* shows that the fortification which has just been described was slightly westward or beyond the house on Broad street that then belonged to Richard Adams and has been described in The Antiquarian, volume v., pages 33-36. This house was built in 1645, and when it was burned in 1865, its walls were found to be lined with bricks and the second story overhung the first. Perhaps this was a block-house in the time of King Philip's war, or in the later Indian wars, the house having been prepared for its use in this way by the town at that time. Sept. 21, 1702, Felt says, further, the block-houses are to be supplied with such articles as are necessary for defence. In 1706, he writes: "A report of Salem says, 'We are at considerable charge for building a line of about two hundred feet long, and two block-houses, in which are several guns, and we keep a constant watch there every night, being more than a mile from the fort, nigh the end of the town, we design to set up one hundred and fifty to two hundred feet of stockades near the two block-houses.'" It seems by this that a block-house with guns was built in this neighborhood, "nigh the end of the town," in 1706. Block house square on Fort avenue shows the site of the block house at the eastern part of the town.

In the sketches that follow, after 1700, titles and deeds referred to pertain to the houses and land under and adjoining, and not always to the whole lot, the design being, after that date, to give the history of the houses then standing principally.

The lots of George Hacker, Joseph Boyce, Hannah Gill, John McCarter, Estate of Robert Wilson and the triangular part of the lot of Joshua Buffum which is marked by dashes was part of a large lot, through which Boston street was laid out in 1642, granted to John Alderman in the first settlement of the town. He apparently conveyed the southwestern end of the lot sometime before his decease to Giles Corey, who lived in a small house, which stood on what is now the western corner of Federal and Boston streets, until 1659, when he removed to a site near the West Peabody Junction railroad station, from whence he went to his awful death in 1692. Mr. Alderman died possessed of the remainder of the lot in 1657, his residence being the house shown on the map on the Hannah Gill lot. In his will he had devised the lot and house to Ezra Clapp, son of Edward Clapp of Dorchester, yeoman, and Nathaniel Clapp, son of Nicholas Clapp, of Dorchester. They sold the remainder of the lot and the house to Mr. Corey immediately, and he took possession at that time, but no deed of conveyance passed between them until July 24, 1663, when they delivered a deed to him.*

Mr. Corey had sold, 14: 8: 1659, his own house and lot and the house and lot he had bought of the Clapps, to John Norton of Salem, carpenter.† The house in which Giles Corey lived was gone before 1676.

The Robert Wilson lot was conveyed to him, probably by Mr. Norton, before April 8, 1670.

That part of the Alderman lot that is shown on the map as a part of the lot of Joshua Buffum was probably conveyed to Mr. Buffum quite early, but by which one of the owners of the Alderman lot the writer has not learned.

Mr. Norton, for eighty pounds, conveyed to Jeremiah Meacham of Salem, weaver, that part of the lot lying west of Robert Wilson's, being one and one-half acres of land, dwelling house and orchard, near ye new bridge or causeway at ye western end of the town, April 8, 1670.‡ Mr. Meacham conveyed the eastern part of the lot, sixteen square rods, to his son-in-law, John McCarter of Salem, dyer, before Sept. 20, 1678, when the latter mortgaged "my now dwelling house," which he had built thereon.§ Mr. McCarter reconveyed the estate to Mr. Meacham June 9, 1679, for one hundred pounds.|| Mr. Meacham died in possession of the estate, and in 1696 it was divided among his children as shown on the map.

George Hacker House. Mr. Meacham conveyed to his son-in-law George Hacker and his wife fourteen rods at the southwestern corner of his estate, being that part included within the dashes, on which Mr. Hacker had already built a house, and described in the deed as "at the town's end near the bridge or causeway without the fortification," March 4, 1679-80.* The house of Giles Corey had occupied the same or nearly the same site. Mr. Hacker probably built his house after his marriage, about the year 1678, and lived in it in 1679 and 1680. Its front was toward the street. In the division of the estate of Mr. Meacham, in 1696, the remainder of the George Hacker lot was assigned to him and his wife Bethiah, daughter of the deceased.

Mr. Hacker died in 1702, intestate, leaving several children and his wife Bethiah. The inventory of his estate mentions an old house and about three-fourths of an acre of land, valued at fifty pounds. The "old dwelling house" and lot were sold by the widow of Mr. Hacker, who was then widow Bethiah Darling, of Salem, for fifty pounds, to her son Isaac Hacker of Salem, cordwainer, June 30, 1731.† Mr. Hacker died in 1753; and in the division of his real estate the house and lot were assigned to his only son Jeremiah Hacker of Salem, shoreman, in 1754. Joseph Bassett of Lynn, yeoman, and his wife Eunice, daughter of the deceased, released their interest in the estate, including the part assigned as dower, to her brother Jeremiah Hacker Aug. 22, 1754.‡ Mr. Hacker probably took down the old house a few years later, building upon the same site the later Hacker dwelling house, which was removed some ten years ago.

Joseph Boyce Lot. In the division of the real estate of the late Jeremiah Meacham, in 1696, this lot was assigned to his son-in-law Joseph Boyce; and the title remained in him until 1704.

Hannah Gill House. In the division of the real estate of Jeremiah Meacham, in 1696, this small house and lot were assigned to widow Hannah Gill, daughter of the deceased. This was the old house, as it was then called, that Mr. Meacham lived and died in, and in which, earlier, John Alderman resided. Mrs. Gill married, secondly, John Priest of Salem in 1700, and conveyed the house and lot to Caleb Buffum of Salem, yeoman, June 2, 1707,* and the grantee's son, Caleb Buffum, lived in the house until his death in or before 1730. Mr. Buffum, sr., died in January, 1730-1, having in his will devised the house and lot to his minor grandson Caleb (son of son Caleb) Buffum. Mary Buffum, widow of Caleb Buffum, son of the deceased, lived in the house at that time, and she was devised that privilege as long as she remained Caleb's widow. In case Caleb died under age or without issue, the will provided that the estate should go to his brother Joshua. Caleb Buffum, the devisee, removed to Newport, R. I., and died in 1744, probably without issue. The place came into the hands of his brother Joshua Buffum, probably by the provisions of the will. Joshua Buffum was a cordwainer, having lived in Berwick, Me., and, for one hundred and fifty pounds, he conveyed to his brother Samuel Buffum of Salem, glazier, subject to the liberty of his mother, widow Mary Buffum, to live in the house, the house and lot Sept. 15, 1747.† How many years the house stood after this time the writer is uncertain.

John McCarter House. In the division of the real estate of Jeremiah Meacham, in 1696, this house and lot were assigned to his son Capt. Isaac Meacham and John McCarter, husband of Rebecca, daughter of the deceased. The house had been built by Mr. McCarter, as stated on a previous page, probably about 1675, the time of his marriage, and it was occupied in 1695 and 1696 by Capt. Daniel King. The house and lot were valued in 1696 at eighty-one pounds. Captain Meacham was a fuller, living in Enfield, Mass., and, for forty-four pounds, released his interest in the house and lot to Mr. McCarter, who was a dyer and then lived in Warwick, R. I., June 21, 1698.* Mr. McCarter came to Salem to live the next year. With his wife Rebecca, for forty-six pounds, he conveyed the estate to William Browne, esq., of Salem, Nov. 30, 1703.† Hon. William Browne died in 1716, having devised this estate to his sons Samuel and John Browne, esquires. John Browne released his half-interest in the property, for twenty pounds, to his brother Samuel Jan. 22, 1717.‡ Samuel Browne probably erected a new house, in place of the old, as when he conveyed the lot with a house upon it, March 7, 1725-6 to Benjamin Houlton of Salem,§ the consideration of the transfer was one hundred and eighty pounds; and, four years later, Feb. 25, 1730, when Mr. Houlton conveyed the estate to Ezekiel Fowler and Abraham Fowler, both of Salem, tanners,|| the consideration was two hundred and fifty pounds.

Estate of Robert Wilson House. Robert Wilson probably bought this lot of land of John Norton before 1670, and built a house thereon. He married Deborah, daughter of Robert Buffum 6: 12 mo.: 1658, and it is possible he bought the land and built at about the time of his marriage. He was a soldier in the war against King Philip, and was killed in the terrible slaughter at Deerfield, Sept. 18, 1675. The inventory of his estate mentions a dwelling house and land on which it stands in the town, valued at sixty pounds. The administrator of the estate of Robert Wilson, for twenty-five pounds, conveyed the house and lot to John McCarter of Salem, dyer, March 14, 1699-1700.* Mr. McCarter, sr., of Salem, clothier, for twenty pounds, conveyed the lot on which the house had stood, but no house being mentioned, to Nathaniel Pope of Salem, blacksmith, July 14, 1702.†

Joshua Buffum and Caleb Buffum Lot. Robert Moulton was the owner of this lot, west of the dashes. It afterward came into the hands of Robert Buffum. He died in 1669, having bequeathed it to his wife Tamosin. She died in 1688, and it came into the hands of her sons Joshua Buffum and Caleb Buffum, who owned it together until after 1700.

The strip east of the dashes was conveyed to the two Buffum brothers by Edward Flint of Salem, yeoman, April 18, 1679.‡ It was a half of two acres that Mr. Flint bought of Anthony Needham of Salem, yeoman, March 10, 1678-9.§

Joshua Buffum House. Robert Moulton was the owner of this lot easterly of the dashes and also the Caleb Buffum lot adjoining, about 1636. (For the triangular lot west of the dashes, see above.) Boston street was laid out across the corner of the lot in 1642, when he was the owner.

He was a builder of vessels, and probably constructed several on this lot. The estate soon afterward came into the possession of Robert Buffum, a Quaker, and he died in 1669, possessed of it. In his will he devised it to his wife Tamosin. She died in 1688, and the estate came into the possession of her son Joshua Buffum.

There were two houses on this lot in 1705, and probably they were both there in 1700, and standing where they are marked on the map. The western one was the old house. Between 1705 and 1710, this was moved by Samuel Buffum, son of Joshua, who had devised the lot to him, to the western corner of what is now the junction of Boston and Fowler streets. Samuel Buffum was a cooper, and had removed to Newport, R. I., before Aug. 7, 1716, when he conveyed the old dwelling house and its new site, for ninety pounds, to Samuel Pope of Salem, blacksmith.* Mr. Pope conveyed the same, for one hundred and forty pounds, to Thorndike Procter of Salem, yeoman, June 6, 1720.† Mr. Procter probably took the old house down some years later, and built the house now standing on that site.

The other house and the land adjoining was devised by Joshua Buffum to his son Joshua in 1705, and he devised it in his will in 1762, to his son Joshua Buffum. The latter, in 1760, lived in the house with Isaac Needham. In the inventory of the estate of Joshua Buffum, appraised in 1762, it is called an old dwelling house. Joshua Buffum lived in Salem, being a mariner or fisherman, and died in the winter of 1768-9. His heirs conveyed it to Ezekiel Fowler of Salem, blacksmith, as follows: by deed of Amos Mason of Swansea, husbandman, and wife Jane, daughter of the deceased (one-fifth), Aug. 27, 1770;‡ of Joshua Buffum of Salem, mariner, son of the deceased (one-fifth), Feb. 15, 1773;§ of Benjamin Symonds of Salem, fisherman, and wife Abigail, daughter of the deceased (one-fifth), Oct. 24, 1775;|| and of Samuel Buffum of Salem, sailmaker (two fifths) (by partition,) May 17, 1779.¶ Ezekiel Welman was living in the old house May 2, 1700, when Mr. Fowler conveyed the estate to his son Samuel Fowler of Salem, cordwainer.¶ The latter took the old house down in 1807.

Caleb Buffum House. This was a part of the lot of Robert Buffum, and upon the decease of his widow Tamosin Buffum, in 1688, this house and lot came into the hands of her son Caleb Buffum, who had probably lived in it since his marriage in 1672, having perhaps built it on his father's land. He died in January, 1730-1. In his will, he devised the house and land about it to his grandson Jonathan Buffum (son of his son Jonathan), a minor. Jonathan Buffum died in 1793, and the next year his children made a division of his real estate, the house and lot being released to his son Caleb. He was in possession of this estate in 1806 and subsequently, but how much longer the house stood has not been ascertained.

John Pickering House. This lot and house were owned and occupied by Henry Renalds as early as 1655; and he conveyed the estate to John Pickering, jr., of Salem July 6, 1689,* for an annuity of forty shillings. Mr. Pickering died in 1722, and it descended to his son Timothy Pickering of Salem, gentleman, who, May 7, 1739, with the consent of his mother, Sarah Pickering, for six hundred and fifty pounds, conveyed the same to Henry Williams of Salem, mariner.† Capt. Henry Williams died in 1750, and the estate passed to his son Samuel Williams of Salem, merchant. The latter died in the winter of 1813-4, and the house and land about it was sold by his administrator to William Wait Oliver of Salem, merchant, Nov. 9, 1814.‡ Mr. Oliver mortgaged the estate to widow Elizabeth King of Salem Sept. 23, 1839;§ and she assigned the mortgage to the Naumkeag bank July 1, 1845,|| the bank having obtained judgment in an action against Mr. Oliver, and April 9, 1844, the premises having been set off on execution to the bank.¶ The bank conveyed the house and lot to Nathaniel Frothingham, jr., and James C. Stimpson, both of Salem, July 5, 1845.* Messrs. Frothingham and Stimpson took the house down the following year. It stood on the western corner of Essex and North Pine streets.

Caleb Buffum Lot. This quarter acre was a part of the acre conveyed by William Lord, jr., to Edward Flint June 8, 1658.† Mr. Flint conveyed this lot, for twenty pounds, to Ann, wife of Anthony Needham of Salem, yeoman, March 10, 1678-9,‡ and Mr. and Mrs. Needham conveyed the same, for thirteen pounds and ten shillings, to Caleb Buffum of Salem, yeoman, May 4, 1697.§ Caleb Buffum, for eighteen pounds, conveyed the same to Joshua Buffum and others for the Quakers, "on part of which they have built a meeting house," and the other part for a burial yard, Dec. 10, 1718.¶ The lot is the same to-day substantially as it was then.

Edward Flint House. This lot consisted of several lots bought at various times. The lot within the dashes at the southwestern corner together with the Caleb Buffum lot constituted an acre of land belonging to Philip Veren at his decease in 1650. His widow, Dorcas Veren, and son, Hilliard Veren, both of Salem, conveyed it to William Lord, sr., 29:1:1655.¶ Mr. Lord conveyed it to his kinsman William Lord, jr., of Salem, husbandman, 14:3:1658.¶ The latter conveyed the lot to Edward Flint of Salem, husbandman, June 8, 1664.† Mr. Flint conveyed the Caleb Buffum lot to Ann Needham, wife of Anthony Needham, of Salem, yeoman, March 10, 1678-9;‡ and retained the remainder of the lot until his decease in 1711.

The lot within the dashes at the north-easterly corner of the lot was the acre of land that widow Elizabeth Spooner of Salem, for six pounds, conveyed to Edward Flint May 8, 1668.†

The strip west of the dashes was the eastern half of two acres (the other part being the strip east of the dashes in the Joshua Buffum and Caleb Buffum lot) conveyed by Anthony Needham of Salem, yeoman, to Edward Flint March 10, 1678-9.* The western half of the original lot was conveyed by Mr. Flint to Joshua Buffum and Caleb Buffum April 18, 1679.†

The strip next east of this, within the dashes, belonged to Robert Buffum in 1664, and to Edward Flint in 1679.

The next strip which ran through from the street to the river, with a branch out to the line, belonged to Edward Flint as 1 s 1664.

The lot of three acres at the southeast-ern corner, within the dashes, was the real estate of William Bacon at the time of his death in 1653. He devised it to his wife Rebecca; and she, in her will, proved in 1655, devised it to her niece Ann Potter and Richard Cherlcraft. Ann Potter married Anthony Needham, who conveyed it to Edward Flint March 10, 1678-9.* There was a house on the lot at the time of his decease in 1711, and it was probably the house in which he lived in 1679, as this lot is then described as being in that field "lying behind ye dwelling house" of said Flint. Mr. Flint devised the house and barn and all this land, in 1711, to his son Benjamin Flint. Benjamin Flint died in the winter of 1732-3; and, in the division of his real estate in 1734, the old house and corner lot were assigned to his son Edward Flint and daughter Mrs. Mary Wainwright. Mr. Flint, who was of Haverhill, merchant, for ninety-five pounds, conveyed his half of the corner estate to Joseph Dean of Salem, hatter, July 14, 1736.‡ Mrs. Wainwright, who was wife of Samuel Wainwright, and a resident of Ipswich, conveyed her half to Mr. Dean April 4, 1741.§ Mr. Dean probably took the old house down, and built a new one on the same site.

THE OLD STONE WALL.

BY JOHN T. ADAMS.

It stands as it stood in "Auld Lang Syne,"

By the side of the lane that leads to the spring,

Over it clambers the running vine,

And about it the mosses and lichens cling.

In the bushes that grow on either hand

The robins chirp and the bluejays call,

While stately cedars, a giant band,

Their shadows throw o'er the old stone wall.

What sounds it has echoed in other years,

Perchance the savage war-whoop shrill,

While the homestead blazed amid shrieks and tears,

And the cannon booming on Bunker Hill:

The bear may have roamed through the sunny glade,

The deer may have fled from the hunter's ball,

And the fox by moonlight have slyly strayed

Since strong hands builded the old stone wall.

I wonder sometimes what his name might be

Whose workmen gathered these ancient stones.

Did his firelock stand 'gainst the nearest tree,

Was he Smith, or Thompson, or Brown, or Jones?

Did he wear a cue and a three-cornered hat?

Did he live in a cottage, or fine old hall?

Was he long or short? was he lean or fat?

This man who builded the gray stone wall.

Perhaps he landed on Plymouth rock

From the Mayflower's boat, with the Pilgrim band,

And wandered away from the little flock

To make him a home in this rugged land.

Perhaps he had children, who climbed his knee

When the shades of evening began to fall,

While he told of his childhood beyond the sea,

And rested from building my old stone wall.

Hundreds of winters and snows since then

Have whitened the hills of the still old town;

The builder has gone from the haunts of men.

In the valley of death he has laid him down.

But the fruit of his labor is staunch and strong,—

'Twill be well when for us the Reaper shall call,

If the work we leave shall endure as long

As his who builded the old stone wall.

THE WINTER OF 1747-8.

The winter of 1747-8 was one of the memorable winters that used to be talked about by our great-grandfathers when the snow whirled above the drifts around their half-buried houses. There were about thirty snow storms, and they came storm after storm until the snow lay four or five feet deep on the level, making travelling exceedingly difficult. On the twenty-second of February, snow in the woods measured four and a half feet; and on the twenty-ninth there was no getting about except on snow shoes.

There was apparently more snow in Essex county than in any other section of New England, and it came very early in the season. On December fourteenth, it was so deep and the wind blew so fiercely that John Bowles was smothered to death on the Neck at Salem.

In that period the highways were not cleared of snow; neither was any attempt made to path the snow. If it was too deep for travel, gaps in walls or fences were made, and the traveller turned his horse into the open wind-swept field or pasture.

There is an incident connected with the snow storms of this winter of 1747-8 which will fix it in the minds of readers. In the West parish of Newbury, on majestic Crane Neck hill, lived a family by the name of Dole, whose little son, but six years old, lay sick with a fever as the storms of December raged. On the twenty-second of the month the boy died.

"Their kindred slept a mile or two away,
The snow lay deep in drifts upon the ground,
The roads unbroken no one could discern,
'Twas hill and vale of deep untrodden snow.
'Where should the little boy be laid to rest?'
Was asked by anxious hearts. 'He must lie there,
Where generations gone beneath the sod
Repose in peace, beneath the hallowed ground,'
Was answered by the father.

"Across the fields
And pastures, down through the vale they started
The saddest Christmas morn they yet had known.
They soon stopped, the horses wallowing deep
Were fastened in the snow. Now on again
They move, but in a moment more they stop.
They start and stop, and start and stop again,
And fail to gain upon their funeral way.
Discouraged in his vain attempts to reach
The sacred burial-place so far away,
The father said, 'We cannot further go;
Let us bury our dead here where we are.'
And there beneath the deep snow they laid him
Alone upon the valley's trackless stretch
Then turned their faces back to their lone home,
From which the light had gone, no more to shine,
At least on earth.

"Around the little grave
Others laid their dead, till in that lowland
Scores lay buried. To-day it is a place
Where antiquarians love to wander:
And looking round for the oldest gravestone
They find this one of Micah Dole, whose date
Is seventeen hundred forty-seven,
And looking farther down they read that he Was first of all to lie upon that lea."

NOTES.

In the notes on the Barney family in the January number of the Antiquarian, page 42, Hannah³ was born May 30, 1659, instead of May 30, 1657, and John² was baptized Dec. 15, 1639, instead of Dec. 13, 1639. Jonathan³, born March 29, 1677, married Sarah Griffin, and lived in Rehoboth.—Elizabeth E. Dana, Cambridge.

In the index of surnames to volume VI, the second "Grant" should read "Graves."

"John Barrett" in second column on page 134 of The Antiquarian, volume IV, should read "John Bassett."

ANSWERS.

186. Joseph Lamson of Ipswich, born Dec. 18, 1718, was probably the person of that name of Exeter, N. H., Nov. 4, 1740, when he married Mehitable Batchelder of Wenham. She was born Jan. 21, 1718, being daughter of John and Hannah (Farbox) Batchelder of Wenham. They had a young son, Joseph Lamson, living in 1753.—Ed.

323. Mary Lambert, who married William Bradford of Middleton Jan. 18, 1737, was daughter of Samuel and Mary Lambert of Middleton, where she was born March 11, 1718.—Ed.

350. In the will of William King (Suffolk county records), he mentions his sister Deborah Calef, and, in 1701, Deborah King settled the estate of William King, her husband. This may be a clue for J. C. C. H.—“M.,” Great Barrington.

364. Twisden Bowden of Marblehead who married Sarah Orne Dec. 19, 1765, was son of Samuel and Sarah (Twisden) Bowden, and was baptized in Marblehead

March 17, 1744-5. Samuel Bowden and Sarah Twisden, the parents, were married in Marblehead Feb. 5, 1733-4.—Ed.

EDITORIAL.

NEW PUBLICATIONS.

THE MARTIN FAMILY. By Richard A. Martin. New York, 1902. This is a sketch of only three small pages of the Martin family in America, published at fifty cents by R. A. Martin & Co., 139 West 82d street, New York City.

SYMON, INDIAN. A letter written at Amesbury, 9: 5 mo: 1677, by Lt. Philip Challis; with Challis family information by Hamline E. Robinson. Maryville, Mo., 1903. This is a valuable pamphlet of ten octavo pages. Copies may be had of Mr. Robinson of Maryville at seventy-five cents.

WHITE FAMILY QUARTERLY. This illustrated quarterly magazine, devoted to the interests of the descendants of John White of Wenham and Lancaster, Mass., has been begun. The first number is dated, January, 1903. The editor is Miss Almira Larkin White of Haverhill, Mass., who has compiled and published the extensive genealogy of the family, and the business manager is Elbert Clayton White of De Soto, Missouri, where the magazine is published. The subscription price is one dollar per annum.

IRISH RHODE ISLANDERS IN THE AMERICAN REVOLUTION. By Thomas Hamilton Murray. Providence, R. I., 1903. Mr. Murray is the secretary-general of the American-Irish historical society, and is well qualified for his work. His portrait forms the frontispiece of this book. He makes particular mention of the soldiers serving in the regiments of Colonels Lippitt, Elliot, Topham, Crary, Angell, Olney, Greene, and other noted commanders, and speaks of the early Irish immigration, and early Irish settlers in Rhode Island. The index includes names of places and surnames. The book is bound in cloth, and contains ninety octavo pages. Mr. Murray's address is 36 Newbury street, Boston.

HISTORY OF NEWBURY, MASS., 1635-1902. By John J. Currier. Boston, 1902. Mr. Currier is the author of "Historical and Biographical Sketches of men and things connected with ancient Newbury." Now, he presents to the public his more complete history of the town. He deals principally with the early explorers and settlers of New England, the settlement at Parker river and subsequently at Merimack river, churches and pastors, schools and schoolmasters, highways, ferries, postal service, commercial affairs and shipbuilding, military organizations and the several wars. The volume is made up largely of copies of records, lists of deputies, town clerks, selectmen, constables, treasurers, tithing men, soldiers, physicians, etc.

The fifty-two illustrations are mainly half-tone, and consist of scenery, portraits, maps, meeting houses, dwelling houses, and historic places.

Mr. Currier is an indefatigable worker, and seeks positive proof for every statement. The volume is filled with facts of record which are to be depended upon, authorities being generally given that the reader may pursue his inquiry by way of original sources, if he pleases.

The seven hundred and fifty-five pages of the book include an exhaustive index of persons, places and things of sixty-five double-column pages. The price of the volume is five dollars in cloth, six dollars in half morocco, and may be had of the author at Newburyport, or of Messrs. Damrell & Upham, Boston.

OLD KITTERY AND HER FAMILIES. By Everett S. Stackpole. Lewiston, Me., 1903. This work is the result of Rev. Everett S. Stackpole's labors upon the compilation of the history and genealogies of Old Kittery, Maine, the foundation of it being the material gathered for this purpose by the late Dr. William B. Lapham, who did so much for the preservation of the history of Maine. Dr. Stackpole has given the last three years to this labor, and he must feel well rewarded.

Old Kittery included the present towns of Kittery, Eliot, South Berwick and North Berwick. The history of all of these towns is given down to 1713, when Berwick was taken from Kittery, and the history of Kittery and Eliot is continued to the present time. The region was among the earliest settled in Maine.

Several maps are given to show the location of the houses of the earliest settlers from Braveboat harbor up Spruce creek and from the Piscataqua to the last settler above Salmon Falls.

Conflicts with the Indians are very fully narrated, much matter, hitherto unpublished, being found in this book.

Two-thirds of the volume is devoted to the family history of the ancient town, the names of the various families numbering several hundred. The descendants of Kittery settlers are found today in every portion of the civilized world, having done or doing their part in advancing the world's interests.

There are one hundred maps, portraits, and other illustrations, churches, houses, and views, in half-tone, being of the finest quality, and beautifully printed. The text is also well printed on fine paper. The eight hundred and twenty-two pages of the volume include but ten pages of index, two pages being an index to places, and eight pages only given to indexing names of persons. The historical portion is partially indexed; and probably the fact that the families are arranged alphabetically in the genealogical portion led the author to assume that an index to that part was unnecessary.

The price of the volume is five dollars net; if sent by mail thirty cents must be added for postage. Address the author, Rev. Everett S. Stackpole, Bradford, Mass.

No. 3.

"LORD TIMOTHY DEXTER."

Who has not heard of "Lord Timothy Dexter," a citizen of Newburyport, and notorious for his extravagancies and foolish exhibitions? He was a son of Nathan and Esther (Brintnall) Dexter, and was born in Malden, Mass., Jan. 22, 1746-7. He wrote, "I was born when great powers ruled, on Jan. 22, 1747. On this day, in the morning, a great snow storm; the signs in the seventh house; whilst Mars came forward Jupiter stood by to hold the candle. I was to be one great man."

He had limited advantages in the way of schooling, and at the age of eight years, May 9, 1755, his father put him with a farmer in Malden, with whom he remained six years and six months. He then went to Charlestown, the then principal center of the skin- or leather-dressing business of New England, and learned the trade of a leather-dresser, dressing skins for leather breeches and gloves. He stayed there eleven months and then went to Boston, where he remained until he was of age. Fourteen days later, he says, "I went to Newbury Port with A bondel in my hand to A plase all noue to me."

He engaged in the business of a leather-dresser in Newburyport; and in May, 1770, he married a widow, who was nine years his senior. This was Elizabeth, daughter of John Lord of Exeter, N. H., and widow of Benjamin Frothingham of Newburyport, a glazier. The widow was industrious and frugal and possessed of a house and lot on the southern corner of Merrimack and Green streets. With her, Timothy Dexter, then twenty-three years old, took up his residence. In the basement of the house Mrs. Dexter conducted a shop for the sale of provisions, vegetables and small fruits; and in the garden Mr. Dexter dug vats, and continued at his trade.

He prospered in business; and entered into speculation in various ways. Among the first was his purchase of land at the Penobscot, and as a proprietor in the Ohio company's purchase, being associated in the latter with Dr. Manasseh Cutler and other prominent men. He prospered in these land ventures.

At about the same time, he was advised, as a joke, it is said, to buy a large quantity of public securities when they were selling at about thirteen per cent of their face value. He followed the advice, and the adoption of the new constitution, followed by the Hamilton funding system, caused the securities to advance in value to nearly par. It is supposed that he profited to the extent of ten thousand dollars by the rise of the market.

Many are the stories that have been told during the past century of the ventures that seemed at the time utterly foolish, but which resulted in great profit to Mr. Dexter. He bought a large quantity of warming-pans, and shipped them to the West Indies at the instance of some merchant clerks, as a part of an assorted cargo. The Yankee ingenuity of the young commander of the craft that carried them to the sunny South was aroused, and he took off the covers and had handles attached to them. The covers were readily sold as skimmers, and the pans as ladles, to the various sugar-making establishments at a good profit.

Before the days of Wall street, he practised its methods, buying articles when beginning to be scarce and cornering the market. As an illustration of this, the whalebone story is told. Some one told him that the whales were all dying off, and he bought at once all that could be found in the market, and disposed of it at a large profit. He kept his eyes open for chances of this sort, and at one time made a good thing out of a similar speculation in opium. After a while shrewd merchants were slow in selling their stock in trade to him, being apprehensive from his mere desire to purchase that the goods were about to rise in value, though they could see no reason for such a conclusion.

A shipment of red woollen night caps to the coast of Guinea, suggested as a joke, turned out greatly to his benefit. The same is said of sending Bibles to the West Indies.

He was sharp at a bargain but met all his engagements promptly and squarely.

In all his speculations, he is said to have had conferences first with Madam Hooper of Newburyport, and after her decease with Moll Pitcher of Lynn before he engaged in them. Such a man as he would naturally be superstitious. He had dream and fortune-telling books of his own. Both of the above-named sorceresses were shrewd, and their advice, aside from any occult ability they may have possessed, was valuable.

Having secured what was estimated in his time and place an independent fortune, Mr. Dexter turned his attention from money-making to money-spending, and an endeavor to achieve notoriety. He gave liberally to the poor and religious societies. In June, 1800, he presented to St. Paul's and the Presbyterian church in Newburyport one hundred pounds each for the purchase of a bell for each of their houses of worship; and in October, 1800, he gave an elegant standard to the artillery company of Newburyport. He offered to build a market-house and to pave certain parts of the town; and in his will he gave to his native town three hundred dollars for a bell for the meeting-house, and two thousand dollars for the support of the gospel there, and two thousand dollars to Newburyport for the benefit of the poor outside of the almshouse.

With the acquirement of wealth and desire for notoriety and probably popularity, he changed his abode. April 8, 1791, he purchased, for fourteen hundred pounds, the stately Tracy house, now the public library. Here he lived for five years, and April 9, 1796, conveyed the estate to John Greenleaf. He removed to Chester, N. H., where he purchased an extensive country seat. In that new section of the country, he first gave rein to his desire for notoriety. He ornamented his new house in the most fastidious manner, and built "magnificent" stables. He styled himself "King of Chester," and undertook to exercise kingly prerogatives over his neighbors; but they put an end to his audacity and impudence by the aid of the horsewhip.

In 1798, Mr. Dexter returned to Newburyport, and August 15th of the same summer he bought the large house on High street that had been erected by Jonathan Jackson in 1771. Its situation is high, and commands an extensive view of the coast and the Isles of Shoals. The grounds were laid out by intelligent landscape gardeners. Everything about the house was in excellent order; but not to his wish. He raised minarets on the roof, and surmounted them with gilt balls. He caused it to assume a gaudiness and cheapness that was most undesirable to a person of taste. Directly before the front door of the house, on a Roman arch, he erected a figure of Washington in his military garb, and on his left, a figure of Jefferson, and on his right one of Adams, the latter being hatless. On columns erected in the garden were figures of Indian chiefs, generals, philosophers, politicians, statesmen, and goddesses of Fame and Liberty. He changed the name of the statues by the aid of the painter's brush as he pleased. General Morgan was thus transformed into Bonaparte, and to the latter Dexter always touched his hat. There were more than forty of these figures, including four lions, two couchant, and two passant. These images were of wood, life-size, and fairly well carved. The lions were open-mouthed and looked fierce. The figures were made by a young ship-carver who had just come to Newburyport, named Joseph Wilson, and were gaudily painted. The images were all in good condition when Dexter died, and the first to fall was an Indian. The remainder stood until the great Septem-er was an artist named Babson, and when he painted the inscription for Jefferson he proceeded to write upon the scroll the words "The Declaration of Independence," but when the second word was begun, Dexter ordered him to write "Constitution." To this the artist objected, but a random shot from a pistol brought the painter to terms, and the scroll ever afterwards read, "The Constitution." The three presidents occupied their positions upon the arch until about 1850.

ber gale of 1815, when all but the presidents were cast prostrate upon the earth. The images were sold at auction, the specimen that brought the most money, five dollars, was the goddess of Fame. William Pitt was sold for a dollar, and the "Travelling Preacher," fifty cents. It is said that the arch and figures of the three presidents, all the presidents there had been in Dexter's day, cost at least two thousand dollars, the lions two hundred dollars apiece, and the other images a similar amount. In the group of presidents, Jefferson held in his hand a scroll partly unrolled, which represented the Declaration of Independence. The paint-

He had a stable well filled with good horses, and frequently procured new animals, having owned a number of spans. He rode in a gaudily painted coach, which had a Dexter coat-of-arms emblazoned upon it, with the baronial supporters. He also had a footman.

He desired to have a library of books that would indicate a literary taste; and he procured the best-bound volumes he could find, having little regard for their contents. He rarely read in them. The leaves in many of them were turned down at attractive places, and numerous cuts were taken from the volumes by his curious visitors.

Pictures were also suspended upon the walls of the house in profusion, gaudy daubs being most numerous.

Having completed his new house and provided it with appurtenances suitable to a grandee of his stamp, he announced himself, this former dresser of skins, as "Lord Dexter, the first in the east, the first in the west, and the greatest philosopher in the western world."

One thing he lacked, however: he must have some one to sing his praises, a poet-laureate. Over in Newbury he found the man he wanted. This was Jonathan Plummer, who was fourteen years younger than himself. The man was suitable for the position, the choice was indeed a wise one. For the sake of the notoriety he would gain and the good material things of life given him he was entirely willing to be Dexter's fool. His employment consisted in writing rhymes to the glory of "his lord's" power, wisdom and wealth, and as long as Dexter lived all went well with him.

William Burley, a strong man, six feet, seven inches in height, called "Dwarf Billy," was in Dexter's employ as the protector of his orchard at one time.

There was no dullness about "Lord" Dexter. He could not be still, and having little to occupy his mind he fluttered from folly to folly. Liquor was indulged in too freely. He said of himself that he could no more be still than a devil's needle.

He had an idea that he would like to be buried, when he died, in his garden. He built a tomb, not a lightless vault, but a basement-story, so to speak, of a pleasant summer-house. He then had his coffin prepared. He searched for, and found here and there, mahogany boards full of knots, gnarls, and richly-colored veins. The coffin was beautifully made, lined and pillowed. Massive silver handles were employed. He was delighted with it, and tried it. He then placed it on exhibition in one of his rooms. Now he had his coffin and tomb, he turned his attention to his funeral. But the only thing he could do about that was to hold a rehearsal. Cards were sent to certain persons inviting them to his funeral; and his wife and children were dressed in mourning. Some wag read the burial service and pronounced a eulogy. The procession moved to the tomb, the coffin was deposited there-in and the door locked. The mourners returned to the house, and filled up on the choicest wines. Soon, cries were heard in the kitchen; Dexter was caning his wife, because she had shed no tears.

"Lord" Dexter wrote a pamphlet entitled "A Pickle for the Knowing Ones." It is a unique production and in his best style. It principally concerns himself and begins as follows:—

"I'm the first Lord in the younited States of A mercary Now of Newburyport it is the voise of the pepel and I cant Help it and so Let it goe Now as I must be Lord there will foller many more Lords pretty Soune for it Dont hurt A Cat Nor the mouse Nor the son Nor the water Nor the Eare then goe on all is Easey Now huns broken all is will all in Love Now I be gin to Lay the corner ston and the kee ston with grat Remembrance of my father Jorge Washington the grate herow 17 sentreys past."

The author wisely provided for the punctuation of the book by the reader by placing a sufficient quantity of periods, commas, semi-colons, and other points at the end of the book with instructions to pepper and salt it to suit their tastes. It was printed at the office of the Salem Register, and a large edition was issued.

He sent them as presents to "the knowing ones" and others. The book had a frontispiece which is reproduced as the frontispiece of this issue of THE ANTIQUARIAN. It was engraved by James Atkins of Newburyport. The peculiar dog is said to be a good likeness of the canine companion of his "titled" master.

The portrait of "Lord" Dexter given on the next page was engraved originally by Doyle from a wax-figure of Dexter in the Columbian museum, in or before 1810.

"Lord" Dexter wrote many occasional pieces; and the following is given as a good specimen of his style. This was an advertisement printed and circulated upon the robbery of his peach orchard.

"Whereas I, Lord Timothy Dexter, having been truly informed that several audacious, atrocious, nefarious, intrepid, night walking, garden violating, immature, peach stealing rascals, all the spawns of the devil, and cubs of Satan, do frequently, villainously, and burglariously assemble themselves together in my garden, therein piping, fighting, swearing, roguing, duck egg hunting, with many other shameful and illicit acts which the modesty of my pen cannot express. This is to give you all notice Delicarians, Capinicians, Talamunarians, base born scoundrels, and old rascals, of whatever nation you may be, return ye my fruit and property, or, by the Gods, the Hea-then Gods, I swear, I will send my son Sam to Babylon, for bloodhounds fiercer than tigers, and fleetier than the winds; and mounted on my noted horse Lily, with my cutting sabre in my hand, I will hunt you through Europe, Asia, Africa, and America, until I can enter you in a cavern under a great tree in Newfoundland, where Beelzebub himself can never find you.

"Hear! ye tatterdemallions, thieves, vagabonds, lank jawed, herring gutted, and tun-bellied plebeians, that if ye, or any of ye, dare set your feet in my house or garden, I will deliver you to Charon, who will ferry you across the River Styx, and deliver you to the Royal Arch Devil Lucifer, at the place of his infernal cauldron, there to be dredged with the sulphur of Caucasus, and roasted forever before the burning crater of Aetna.

"LORD TIMOTHY DEXTER."

In the next column is reproduced a receipt of Timothy Dexter for the pay for six moose skins which he had sold. It is entirely in his own handwriting, and is given herewith to show his penmanship.

Dexter had no definite ideas of religion. He sometimes apparently held a peculiar philosophy, similar to transmigration, and again expressed sentiments closely allied to deism.

His death was hastened by his intemperate habits, being intoxicated a large portion of the time during his latter years. His will was a wise one in spite of his extravagant life. Reason left him two days before his death, which occurred peacefully in his house Oct. 23, 1806, at the age of fifty-nine. His remains were not allowed to repose in his tomb, and they still lie where they were placed in the

The Dexter house still stands, and is a stately mansion, with extensive and beautiful grounds.

Mr. and Mrs. Dexter had two children, a son and daughter. The son was Samuel Lord Dexter, and he was baptized Oct. 6, 1772. He lived at home and died July 20, 1807, without issue. The daughter was named Nancy. She was born Aug. 16, 1776; and married Abraham Bishop of New Haven, Conn. It proved to be an unhappy marriage; and they separated. She became a drunkard and finally an imbecile, and died in Newburyport Sept. 30, 1851, leaving a daughter.

PART OF SALEM IN 1700. NO. 12.

BY SIDNEY PERLEY.

The map on page 119 comprises the area bounded by Flint, Essex and Beckford streets and North river. It is based on actual surveys and title deeds, and is drawn on a scale of two hundred feet to an inch. It shows the location of all houses standing in 1700. The braces marked "a" show where Federal street runs; the brace marked "b" where Monroe street begins; and that marked "c" where Andover street begins.

Essex street was first called a highway in 1657; street, 1664; town street, 1678; the broad street that goes from ye meeting house westward to the town's end, 1679; the main street, 1679; ye high street, 1695; and Essex street, 1795.

Flint street was called a lane that leads to the water side in 1672; ye lane yt leads down to ye North river, 1704; a lane that leads from ye main street to ye north river, 1706; and Dean's lane, 1770. Several years ago the name was changed to Flint street as it was a continuation of the street then and since known by that name.

Beckford street was called a late in 1657; street or lane, 1677; street or highway, 1679; lane or highway that leads from ye main street to ye north river, 1696; Beckford's lane, 1773; Kitchen's lane, 1783; Turner's lane, 1793; and Beckford street in 1797.

Federal street was laid out but very shortly before 1773, when it was called ye new street. It was called the new street laid out between the North river and the main street in 1774; the new street called the north street, 1776; the back or new street, 1781; and Federal street in 1792.

Monroe street was laid out in 1801, when it was called a new street. It was called a new street leading from Essex to Federal streets in 1802; Shillaber street, 1814; and Monroe street in 1828.

River street was called a way in 1739; road, 1773; private road, 1778; lane, 1782; and River street in 1796.

Carpenter street was laid out in 1800, when it was called an open way. It was called the new way in 1801; and Carpenter street in 1827.

Andover street was so called in 1802, having just previously been laid out.

North river was called the north river in 1657; ye river, 1698; and the river leading to the great bridge in 1773.

In the sketches that follow, after 1700, titles and deeds referred to pertain to the houses and land under and adjoining, and not always to the whole lot, the design being, after 1700, to give the history of the houses then standing principally.

The lots of Capt. Thomas Flint, Joseph Douglass, and Thomas Ruck comprised the homestead estate of Thomas Spooner before 1664, when his death occurred. His widow Elizabeth Spooner was his administratrix, and she conveyed various lots as hereafter stated.

Thomas Flint Lot. This was a part of the homestead of Thomas Spooner, and was conveyed by his administratrix, together with that part of the Joseph Douglass lot that lies south of the dashes, for twelve pounds, to Capt. Thomas Flint of Salem, farmer, May 11, 1672.* Captain Flint, who then lived in Salem village, for thirty pounds, conveyed this lot to Joseph Dean of Salem, mariner, May 7, 1706.† The estate then remained in the Dean family for three quarters of a century.

Joseph Douglass House. That part of the lot lying south of the dashes was a part of the half-acre conveyed by Mrs. Spooner to Capt. Thomas Flint May 11, 1672.* Captain Flint conveyed this part of his lot (twenty square rods) to Edmond Bridges of Salem, blacksmith, March 5, 1678-9.‡ Mr. Bridges had built a house and barn upon the lot before the deed was drawn. Philip Cromwell of Salem, slaughterer, and Mr. Bridges purchased of John Ruck, who then owned the Spooner estate, that part of the lot lying north of the dashes; and those grantees, for seventy pounds, conveyed the entire lot (one fourth of an acre), with the dwelling house and shop thereon, to William Sweatland of Salem, tailor, Sept. 18, 1680.* In 1693, the title to the estate was in Stephen Sewall of Salem, merchant. Mr. Sweatland was living in 1688, but whether he died possessed of the property or conveyed it before his death to Mr. Sewall the writer does not know. Mr. Sewall, for fifty-five pounds, conveyed the house, leanto and lot to Joseph Douglass of Salem, clothworker, Sept. 8, 1693.† Mr. Douglass removed to Malden and conveyed the estate to Joshua Hicks of Salem, merchant, March 14, 1718-9.‡ Mr. Hicks removed the old house some years later.

Thomas Ruck Houses. This lot comprised nearly the whole of the Spooner estate. Mrs. Spooner conveyed the small lot, included within the dashes, at the southeastern corner, to John Simpson May 10, 1672;§ and the Thomas Flint lot and the southern part of the Joseph Douglass lot to Mr. Flint May 11, 1672.|| Mrs. Spooner died in 1676, having devised the homestead with the exception of the lots she had sold to her son-in-law John Ruck for life and remainder to his five children, whose mother was Hannah, only child of Mr. and Mrs. Spooner. Mr. and Mrs. Ruck's children were Elizabeth, Hannah, Sarah, John and Thomas. The house apparently was of considerable size, containing, in 1677, a parlor and parlor chamber, hall, kitchen, etc. John Ruck, the father, conveyed to Philip Cromwell and Edmond Bridges the northern part of the Joseph Douglass lot about 1679. Mr. Ruck released his interest in the remainder of the estate to his son Thomas Ruck Dec. 6, 1687,* and probably the other children released their interest to Thomas at about the same time. Thomas died in July, 1704, having devised the estate to his sons John and Thomas Ruck. It is described in the inventory of his estate as "Old Spooners house & 7 acres of Land & Barn in y^e Towne," and was appraised at two hundred pounds. So the old house was standing in 1704, but it probably stood only a few years longer.

The southeastern corner of this lot within the dashes was the twelve rods of land on which John Simpson of Salem erected a dwelling house before May 10, 1672, when Mrs. Elizabeth Spooner, who then owned the entire lot, conveyed it, as a gift, to Mr. Simpson. The deed describes the lot as "that peece of ground in Salem aforesd upon which y^e sd Simpson with my good liking & approbation hath built him an house upon & in which he now dwells, with y^e yard room & garden platt as it is now fenced in."† Mr. Simpson was a husbandman, and conveyed the house and lot to Joshua Buffum of Salem, in exchange for another house, orchard, etc. (on North river east of Beckford street, see Map No. 13), Feb. 28, 1686-7.‡ The estate belonged to Thomas Ruck at the time of his decease in July, 1704, being valued in the inventory of his estate at thirty-five pounds. The conveyance was made from Buffum to Ruck probably at the time of the latter's acquiring the Spooner house and estate in 1687. This house and lot was devised in Mr. Ruck's will with the remainder of the Spooner homestead to his sons John and Thomas Ruck. Thomas Ruck, the son, does not appear subsequently as owner of this property. John Ruck apparently took down the Spooner house and this house, and built on the site of the latter a new house, in which he lived, being a blacksmith. He conveyed the estate to Joseph Cook, jr., of Salem, fisherman, Dec. 26, 1730.*

Roger Derby House. The lots of Roger Derby, Richard Derby, Joseph Neal, Robert Kitchen and that part of the lot of John and Rebecca Beckford west of the dashes constituted the lot of Richard Bishop in 1657. Before his decease, Dec. 30, 1674, he probably conveyed to John Darling of Salem, the husband of his daughter Mary, the Roger Derby and Richard Derby lots and the western part of the Joseph Neal lot. Mr. Darling, for twenty-seven pounds, conveyed the Roger Derby and Richard Derby lots to Roger Derby of Ipswich, chandler, Feb. 8, 1678-9.† Mr. Derby removed to Salem, and continued his business here. He was from Topsham, Devonshire, England, and died in Salem, Sept. 26, 1698, having devised the house and this part of his lot to his wife Elizabeth for her life and then to his son Samuel Derby. She died in 1740. Samuel Derby died at sea prior to 1728. At her decease Samuel's children became owners of the estate. Oct. 7, 1741, his surviving sons, Roger Derby of Salem, saddler, and Samuel Derby of Lynn, cordwainer, for three hundred and fifty pounds, conveyed the land and buildings to Roger Peele of Salem, shipwright, Oct. 7, 1741.‡ By several suits at law, Mr. Peele lost the house and land adjoining. On execution, in the suit of Robert Peele of Salem, tailor, the body of the dwelling house was set off to him April 20, 1748.§ On execution, in another suit of Robert Peele, the leanto part of the house, on its eastern side, was set off to him July 28, 1748.|| Robert Peele, for two hundred and twenty-three pounds, conveyed the house and land to Samuel Ropes, jr., of Salem, merchant, by two deeds, one dated April 27, 1748,¶ and the other

Aug. 3, 1749.* Mr. Ropes became a cordwainer and for two hundred and sixty-six pounds, conveyed the land and buildings to Richard Derby of Salem, merchant, Feb. 9, 1773.† Mr. Derby conveyed the same estate to Jacob Very of Salem, mariner, April 1, 1795.‡ Mr. Very probably removed the house the same year.

Richard Derby Lot. This lot was a portion of the lot of land conveyed by John Darling to Roger Derby Feb. 8, 1678-9.§ Mr. Derby died Sept. 26, 1698, having devised this lot, on which stood his soaphouse, to his son Richard Derby, who was a mariner. Richard owned the lot for many years subsequent to 1700.

Joseph Neal House. This lot was a part of the lot of Richard Bishop, who died in 1674-5. In his nuncupative will, he devised the front and middle portions of the lot, as divided by the dashes, to his granddaughter Mary, daughter of his daughter Mary Darling, wife of John Darling. Mr. Darling probably erected the house shown on the map in or before 1676. He was living in it in 1678. The lot devised by Mr. Bishop to Mary Darling was assigned to her by metes and bounds by the administrator of his estate Nov. 7, 1680.|| She conveyed the central part of the lot, between the dashes, to Thomas Maule of Salem, merchant, Nov. 19, 1680;¶ and the front part with the house subsequently. Mr. Maule conveyed the house and front and middle parts of the lot to Joseph Neal of Salem, joiner, for sixty-two pounds July 17, 1681. Mr. Derby conveyed to Mr. Neal a strip of land two feet wide off the eastern end of his lot April 27, 1682.††

The rear section of the lot, north of the dashes, was a part of that portion of the lot of Richard Bishop that he devised to his son Thomas Bishop for his life and remainder to Thomas' son Richard Bishop. Thomas Bishop, who lived in Manchester, conveyed it to Robert Kitchen of Salem Dec. 22, 1691.* His son Richard Bishop released his interest in it to Mr. Kitchen Feb. 7, 1692-3.* Mr. Kitchen conveyed it to Mr. Neal June 4, 1695.†

The house and the whole of this lot, Mr. Neal conveyed to John Ropes, jr., and Samuel Ropes, both of Salem, cordwainers, Nov. 7, 1709.‡ John Ropes conveyed his half interest in the house, in which they both then lived, to his brother Samuel Ropes Aug. 13, 1716;§ and, April 2, 1734, John released to Samuel the land around it, "the old cottage, So Called which formerly Stood on y^e afores^d Land," being gone.

Widow Frances Croade House. This lot was a part of the lot conveyed by Thomas Robbins to John Kitchen before 1664. The latter then owned it, and conveyed the part east of the dashes, with the house thereon, to Richard Croade of Boston, merchant, July 9, 1664.|| The remainder of the lot subsequently came into the possession of Mr. Croade, who died in 1689. By his will his widow Frances Croade became possessed of the house and lot for her life. In 1686 there was a cellar in the western end of the lot, but the writer has discovered no evidence of a house having been upon it, either before or after that time, except that, in the division of the estate, after the decease of the widow in 1716, "part of an old house and an old cellar with stones in it" is mentioned as on that part of the land. At the decease of Mrs. Croade the estate was divided, the house and land around it being assigned to Widow Hannah Croo of Salem, daughter of the deceased. She conveyed the "old dwelling house," as the house was then called, to her brother-in-law Joseph Neal of Salem, cordwainer, Oct. 10, 1724.* While Mr. Neal owned the estate the house was burned down, in 1729, with the Estes house, which stood only a few feet distant.

Matthew Estes House. This lot was a part of the lot conveyed by Thomas Robbins to John Kitchen before 1664. Mr. Kitchen conveyed it to George Dean in or before that year. Mr. Dean who was then of Salem, and a cordwainer, transferred the lot with a house upon it, for forty pounds, to Thomas Maule of Salem, tailor, Oct. 14, 1674.† The following affidavits show that Mr. Maule erected a new house upon the lot:—

"The testimony of Eleazer Linsey aged about 36 yeares, & John Coates aged about 21 yeares: these two p^{rs}ons above written testifieth, that when Thomas Male's new house was raised, that there was sufficient rome left betweene the fence next Richard Croad's house, to clabord the whole side of Thomas Male's new house, without removing any part or p^{ce}ll of y^e abovesd fence, for we claborded part of y^e sd new house on that side next Richard Croad's, & had roome enough to doe our work, betweene y^e new house & the fence, from one end of y^e said house to the other end thereof, for y^e fence as neere as well could be ranged from one end of Thomas Male's land to the other end on a strait line: & to the truth hearof wee abovesd John Coates & Eleazer Linsey, witnes. Sworne 28: June: 1681, before Bartholmew Gedney Assist."

"John Reeves aged about 72 yeares, testifieth, y^t to his knowledge, the house of Tho. Male bought of George Deane doth stand wholly on the town's ground. & the fence y^t fenced the heads of the

"Thomas Robbins testifieth, that y^e fences that fenced in the lots that were Barber's & Bownes, which land was since John Kitchens, ranged behind the house that Thomas Mall bought of George Deane, leaving the sd house wholly out the sd fences ranged to Richard Croads house or where it stands, leaving some vacant land betweene the house of Richard Croade & Thomas Male, which he bought of George Deane, & was at least the whole bredth of y^e sd house, sworne 23 : June : 1681, before me, Bartholomew Gedney Assistant."*

Mr. Maule conveyed to Jonathan Prince of Salem, cordwinder, the lot and "my now pr'sent habitation or dwelling place," July 30, 1681.† For one hundred and one pounds, Mr. Prince conveyed the house, shop and land to Matthew Estes of Pascattaqua, mariner, May 25, 1682.‡ Mr. Estes died in 1723, having devised the house and lot to his grandsons Richard and Ahijah Estes. The house belonged to them when it was burned down, with the Neal house, in 1729.

Joseph Dean House. This was a part of the lot sold by Thomas Robbins to John Kitchen before 1664. Mr. Kitchen sold it to George Dean, who was owning it in that year. But Mr. Kitchen died without having received or given a deed of it, and Kr. Robbins, gave a deed of it to Robert itchen, son of the deceased, Oct. 11, 1679,§ but no deed to Mr. Dean has been found. Mr. Dean died possessed of the house and lot in 1696, having devised the estate to his wife Elizabeth Dean. She survived him, and, for sixty pounds, conveyed the same to her son

Joseph Dean of Salem, mariner, Dec. 22, 1698.* Mr. Dean, for sixty pounds, conveyed the lot, the house being gone, to Robert Kitchen of Salem, merchant, June 24, 1706.†

Robert Kitchen House. This lot was a part of the Thomas Robbins lot. He sold it (a quarter of an acre) to John Kitchen of Salem, who died without having received a deed of it. Mr. Robbins however, delivered a deed of this and the Joseph Dean lot to Mr. Kitchen's son and heir, Robert Kitchen, Sept. 11, 1679.‡

William P. Upham says that the house on this lot was probably built about 1664.

Robert Kitchen was a merchant and lived in Salem. He died in 1712, having devised the house, orchard, etc., to his son Robert Kitchen. The son died under age, probably before the father, and Feb. 27, 1718, the other children, Edward Kitchen, Mary, wife of John Turner, esq., and Bethiah, wife of Timothy Lindall, all of Salem, for two hundred and six pounds, conveyed the estate to their widowed mother, Madam Bethiah Kitchen.§ Mrs. Kitchen died in 1738, having devised all her estate to her son Edward Kitchen. Edward Kitchen lived here, and died in 1766, having devised the house and lot to his grandson Edward Kitchen Turner, minor son of John Turner, esq. In 1785 or before, the father, John Turner, esq., came into the possession of the house, barn and lot; and October seventh of that year, mortgaged the estate to Daniel Sargent, esq., of Boston.¶ Mr. Turner was then living in the house. Jan. 13. 1789, the mortgagee took possession of the premises to foreclose the mortgage, the house being vacant, and Mr. Turner being present and consenting to the entry. For four hundred and twenty pounds, Mr. Sargent conveyed the estate to Dr. William Stearns of Salem Jan. 27, 1789.* Doctor Stearns resided in this house until about 1808, when he removed to the northeastern corner of Flint and Essex streets. He then let the house in the summer of that year to John Grant, who opened a tavern, which he called the "Sign of the Anchor." The following is a copy of his advertisement, published in the Salem Gazette on the day of its date, Sept. 9, 1808:—

NEW TAVERN.—SIGN OF THE ANCHOR.

THE subscriber hereby informs the public, that he has taken that large and convenient House at the corner of Essex and Beckford Streets, belonging to Dr. Stearns, which he has opened as a place of public entertainment, having obtained a licence therefor. He is now ready to receive and entertain genteel companies or individuals, travelers, &c. and will exert himself for their accommodation in every respect. Good viands and liquors, clean and comfortable beds, and prompt attendance, will always be furnished; and good stabling for horses. He respectfully solicits the favors his friends and the public, for which he will be ever grateful.—N. B. A number of gentlemen boarders can be well accommodated.

Salem, Sept. 9.

JOHN GRANT.

In the spring of 1810, Mr. Grant was succeeded by John Perley in the tavern the name of the "Sign of the Anchor" being continued.

Messrs. Morse & Fox (Richard Morse and Ebenezer Fox), who had a grocery store on Essex street, in December, 1809, hired the stable on Hamilton street that had been conducted by Galloway, and became boarding and livery stablers. The next August, the firm established a stage route between Salem and Haverhill, going to Haverhill one day and returning the next, thus making three round trips each week. This tavern was its Salem terminus. The partnership continued until June 7, 1811, after which Mr. Morse carried on the stage business alone.

The writer has no evidence that this house was open as an inn after 1810. It became a tenement house, and continued to be thus occupied as long as it stood. Before many years had elapsed, it had become dilapidated in appearance.

*Essex Registry of Deeds, book 148, leaf 221.

Doctor Stearns died in 1819, having devised the whole of his estate to his wife Sarah W. Stearns. She died, his widow, in 1844, possessed of the house and lot. Her heirs, Joseph E. Sprague, esq., William Stearns, esq., widow Eliza Silver, all of Salem, James W. Stearns, gentleman, and Sarah White Stearns, singlewoman, both of Somerville, and Harriet Stearns and Caroline Stearns, singlewoman, Henry Barrett, gentleman, and his wife Lucy T. G. Barrett, and William St. A. Stearns, esq., all of Malden, conveyed the lot to Joseph Andrews, esq., of Salem Oct. 27, 1849, "the old mansion house being expressly reserved by the grantors with the right of pulling the same down and examining the ground under the same for the term of sixty days."* The old house was accordingly demolished.

The writer has not succeeded in finding any picture of this house, and probably none exists. Oliver Thayer, in his Recollections of Essex street from 1804 to 1820, writes that the house was "a large, square building, with an ell, venerable, but dilapidated in appearance." It was two stories in height, the front door being in the middle of the house, with two windows on either side in each story. It stood a few feet from the sidewalk, and its distinguishing feature was the two large square brick pillars which supported the small portico over the front door and steps. The pillars were surmounted with capitals of freestone. These capitals were originally a part of the elegant brick house of Deacon Marston which formerly stood on the eastern corner of Essex and Crombie streets. The house was removed about 1760, and these capitals, which had been carved in England, were purchased by Edward Kitchen and placed upon the brick pillars erected for their support at the entrance to the house which is the subject of this paragraph. When the house was razed in 1849 the capitals were given to James W. Stearns, at his request, and in 1851 they were

Katherine King House. This lot was a part of the Thomas Robbins lot. He was of Salem, husbandman, and conveyed to William King of Salem, carpenter, that part of the lot lying south of the dashes, on which Mr. King "hath lately built a dwelling house," June 2, 1676.* That part of the lot lying north of the dashes Mr. Robbins conveyed to Mr. King May 11, 1677.† Mr. King died in 1684, having devised the house and lot to his wife for her life, and giving her the right to devise one half of the same to whom she pleased, and the other half he devised to his brother's sons who hath need of it. Mr. King's wife Katherine survived him, and died in 1718, having devised the half interest she was entitled to convey by her will to her nephew Samuel Stone of Salem and her niece Sarah, wife of Jacob Manning of Salem, gunsmith. Samuel King of Southold, N. Y., husbandman, conveyed his interest in the house and lot to Mr. Manning June 22, 1719.‡ Samuel King of Southold, N. Y., cooper, only surviving brother of William King, late of Salem, husbandman, deceased, Samuel King of Salem, husbandman, William King of Sutton, husbandman, sons of John King of Salem, deceased, the other brother of said William King, deceased, Henry Cook, guardian of children of Jonathan King of Salem, deceased, son of said John King, deceased brother to William King, deceased, Samuel King, jr., of Salem, guardian to the children of John King, jr., of Salem, deceased, son of John King, sr., deceased, brother to said William King, deceased, and, also, on his own account, and Mary King of Salem, spinster, a daughter of said John King, jr., deceased, conveyed to Messrs. Stone and Manning the house and lot June 23, 1719.§ Messrs. Stone and Manning conveyed the house and lot to Samuel Stone, jr., of Salem, mason, Dec. 10, 1719.* For forty pounds, Mr. Stone conveyed the estate to Edward Kitchen of Salem, merchant, Nov. 10, 1724.† The house probably remained only a few years longer.

Robert Kitchen Lot. This lot was a part of the lot of Thomas Robbins. His heir was his niece Rebecca, wife of William Pinson of Salem, husbandman. Mr. Pinson died, and she conveyed the lot to Robert Kitchen of Salem, merchant, for fifty pounds, Nov. 13, 1696.‡ Mr. Kitchen owned the lot until his death in 1712.

John and Rebecca Beckford House.§ That part of this lot lying east of the dashes was owned by Thomas Trusler, who died March 5, 1654. His widow Elinor Trusler died in 1655, having devised the house and lot to her son Edward Phelps. Mr. Phelps lived in Newbury, and, for twenty-five pounds, he conveyed the estate to Thomas Robbins of Salem July 2, 1657.|| Upon Mr. Robbins' decease, before 1694, the estate descended to his niece and heir Rebecca Pinson. Mr. Pinson died in July, 1695, having devised his estate to his wife Rebecca. In the inventory of his estate, the house, barn and land were appraised at one hundred pounds. Mrs. Rebecca Pinson survived her husband, and married secondly, Joseph Boobier of Marblehead; and, for thirty pounds, they conveyed to Rebecca, daughter of William Pinson, and wife of John Beckford of Marblehead, Jan. 11, 1698-9,¶ the estate then being in the possession of George Hacker, as tenant. Mr. and Mrs. Beckford removed to Reading, where he was a yeoman: and conveyed the house and land around it to their son John Beckford, jr., of Salem, shoreman, July 23, 1739.* The house was probably gone soon after. The exact site of the house, as it stood in 1700 is uncertain, it may have been on the narrow way some two hundred feet westerly of the place where it is marked on the map.

That part of the lot lying west of the dashes was a part of the Richard Bishop lot, and was devised in the nuncupative will of Mr. Bishop, who died in 1674-5, to his son Thomas Bishop for his life and the remainder in fee to the latter's son Richard Bishop. Thomas Bishop lived in Manchester, and was a wheelwright. For forty pounds, he conveyed it to Robert Kitchen of Salem Dec. 22, 1691.† Thomas Bishop's son Richard released his interest in the estate to Mr. Kitchen Feb. 7, 1692-3.‡ Richard Bishop's house stood upon the northern end of the lot, according to his will, but was probably gone before the latter date. Mr. Kitchen apparently conveyed the lot to John and Rebecca Beckford about 1700, and it was thenceforth a portion of the Beckford lot.

NOTES.

PORTSMOUTH, March 31, 1769.

We hear that last Thursday evening, a large Whale, between sixty and seventy foot long, came ashore at Plumb-Island, near Newbury, out of which it's said, will be made near Eighty Barrels of Oyl, and is worth 200l. sterl. This Whale had an Iron in it, which was the occasion, as is supposed, of it's death.

THE OLD RIFLE.

BY JAMES BUCKHAM.

It hung in a junk-shop in the lane,
A relic of Seventeen Seventy-four,
Blotched with rust and clinging stain,
Scarred with bruises half-a-score:
Full many a cruel knock, 'twas plain,
Had tried its stuff in days of yore.
Quaintly-patterned the well-worn stock,—
Best of grain from some rare old block,—
Curved at the butt like a crescent moon,
And silver-tipt like a kobold's shoon.
Shining patch-box of welded brass:
Trigger-guard worn smooth as glass:
Hammer wrought of the truest steel,
Etched as fine as the hair-like mass
That floats away from a spider's reel.
Long of barrel, this ancient gun,
Smoothly bored for its ounce of lead,—
Threaded steel, by a master spun,
Fired, and fined, till the maker said,
"Good! 'twill do for the King's own son,
Or best of rank that was ever bred."
Sighted well, with a silver bead
Lined to the clover-notch below;
Rifle fit for a prince indeed,
Pride of its maker, years ago!

THE DROUGHT OF 1762.

There was a distressing drought in Essex county in the summer of 1762. There was scarcely any rain from early in April until the latter part of September. April was cold, and the season was unusually late. Nearly all of the wells became drained, and grass was dried up, all sorts of vegetation being scorched by the burning rays of the sun. Everything appeared to have been burned.

At Newbury, a public fast was kept on the twenty-eighth of July, it being feared that a famine would ensue. Other communities observed a similar day. But the earth became dryer, and vegetation seemed to die. Fires broke out in the woods, some of them running over extensive tracts.

On the coming in of August it was thought that the crops would be an utter failure. They were very light, hay being so scarce the next winter that it was sold for four times its ordinary price. The farmers could not afford to keep their cattle until spring, and many of the animals were slaughtered, the meat being eaten with the meagre supply of bread which the failure of the corn crop yielded them. Some of the people suffered from the want of meal.

Answers are solicited.

422. Wanted, the names of wife and children of William Pyncheon, who settled in Salem about 1743, or 1744. D. B.

Media, Pa.

423. SOMERBY. Wanted, the ancestry of Mary Somerby, daughter of Abiel, and great-granddaughter of Anthony Somerby, first school-master in Newbury.
South Haven, Mich. E. A. A.

ANSWERS.

227. Benjamin Buffinton was son of Thomas Buffinton, sr., of Salem, who died between Sept. 18, 1725, and Aug. 28, 1729, the dates of the making and probate of his will respectively. Benjamin was born in Salem July 24, 1675; and married Hannah — about 1698. He was living in Swansea in 1733. His mother was Sarah Southwick, and she married Thomas Buffinton 30: 10: 1670. She was born in Salem June 16, 1644. Her father was John Southwick, born in England about 1620, being son of Lawrence and Cassandra Southwick, who were banished from Salem in 1659, on account of their Quaker belief. John Southwick lived in Salem, and died Oct. 26, 1612. Her mother was Sarah —, who married, first, Samuel Tidd.—Ed.

412. Was John Pecker of Newbury? I am quite sure he was of Boston, Haverhill, and Concord, N. H., and most of the time of Haverhill. I think he married Hannah Wainwright in Boston, although she was of Newbury. John Pecker married, first, Eliza Kelley in Boston. He had a daughter Anna who married Rev. Samuel Chandler.—Mrs. Anna M. Pickford, Lynn.

412. I am quite certain that Hannah Redford was daughter of Hon. William and Sarah (Frost-Shipway) Redford of Portsmouth, N. H. Sarah Frost was daughter of Major Charles Frost of Kittery, Me., who married Mary, daughter of Joseph and Mary (Howell) Bolles of Wells, Maine. See my Old Kittery and Her Families, page 415.—Everett S. Stackpole, Bradford, Mass.

It contains three half-tone portraits, is bound in paper, and sold for twenty-five cents.

THE TRADITION OF THE OLD WEAVER'S CLOCK. A study of colonial time-keeping. By John Albree, jr. This entertaining pamphlet of sixteen pages and five plates is beautifully printed. It is a paper read before the Medford Historical Society Oct. 11, 1902, and printed privately. The latter portion of the pamphlet is an account of a wedding spoon, which has also been in the Albree family for many generations.

SKETCH OF THE LIFE OF THE HONORABLE JOHN READ OF BOSTON, 1722-1749. By George B. Reed. Boston, 1903. This interesting and valuable memorial pamphlet is privately published, being reprinted from the Proceedings of the Bostonian Society for the current year. John Read was a distinguished lawyer and citizen of Boston. He was born in Fairfield, Conn., Jan. 29, 1679; graduated at Harvard college in 1697; became a clergyman, and finally a lawyer, practising in New Haven. He removed to Boston in 1722, and was elected attorney-general of Massachusetts the succeeding year. He published a grammar in 1736. He died Feb. 7, 1749. The sketch contains twenty-six pages, is illustrated with several fine plates, and well printed.

BY SIDNEY PERLEY.

The map on the next page comprises the area bounded by Beckford, Essex and North streets and North river. It is based on actual surveys and title deeds, and is drawn on a scale of two hundred feet to an inch. It shows the location of all houses standing in 1700. The braces marked "a" show where Federal street runs.

Beckford street was called a street or highway in 1680; lane or highway, 1684; the King's highway, 1686; lane, 1712; Bickford's lane, 1757; Kitchen's lane, 1766; lane leading to the North river, 1766; town way, 1800; and Beckford street, 1800.

Essex street was called a highway or street, 1662; street, 1665; the main street 1669; ye great street, 1687; roadway, 1709; Main street, 1717; and Essex street, 1797.

North street was called a street or highway in 1674; lane, 1755; highway leading to the North field, 1759; lane leading from the main street to the North bridge, 1763; and North street, 1797.

Federal street was laid out about 1765. It was called a town way lately laid out in 1767; the new street, 1768; the back street, 1796; and Federal street in 1792.

Federal court was so called in 1826.

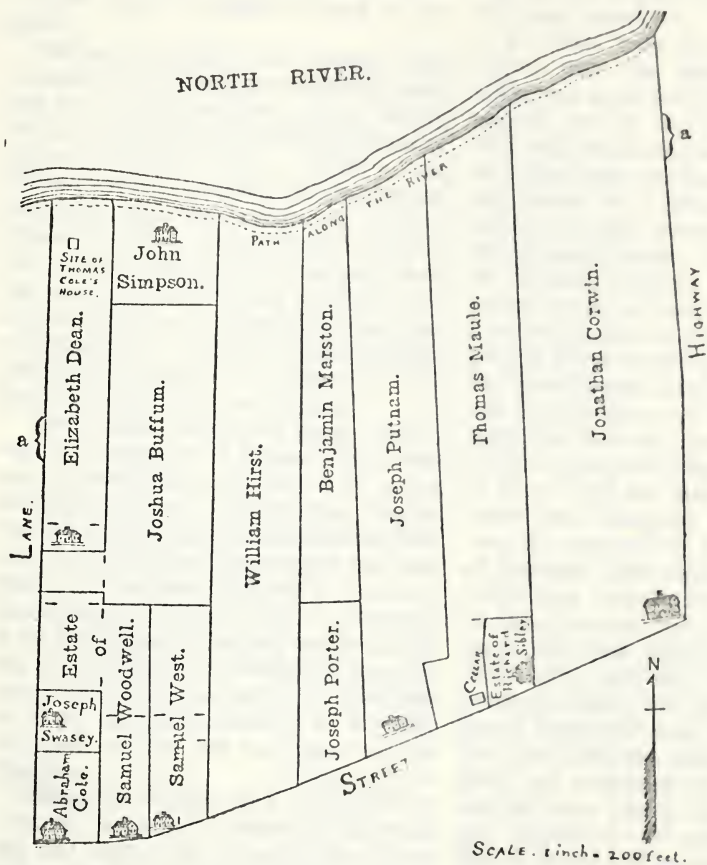

North river has always been so called.

The path or highway along the river was originated in the laying out of the town, when a highway was left on the banks of each river. This was only a narrow path, and was called the highway that goes upon the bank of the North river in 1665; street or highway, 1674; way by the North river side, 1679; path running along by ye North river, 1686; ye highway yt leads along on ye North river, 1704; the highway that runs along upon the bank of the North river, 1712; ye path that goes over ye bank by ye North river, 1718; ye path on ye bank of ye North river, 1720; and a highway, 1729. The way was probably discontinued when Federal street was laid out, as the deeds do not mention it after 1753.

In the sketches that follow, after 1700, titles and deeds referred to pertain to the houses and land under and adjoining, and not always to the whole lot, the design being, after 1700, to give the history of the houses then standing principally.

The lots of Abraham Cole, Joseph Swasey, Elizabeth Dean, and parts of the lots of Joshua Buffum and estate of Samuel Woodwell constituted the original lot of Thomas Cole, who was a husbandman, and was living here in 1649. He probably came from Hampton. He lived in a house that early stood on the northern end of the Elizabeth Dean lot. It was standing in 1680, but gone in 1686. The exact location is not known, but it was north of the dashes, and probably near the river. Mr. Cole died in 1679, having devised the house and lot to his wife Ann. She survived him, and died in 1680, having devised the southern half of the lot to their eldest son Abraham Cole and the northern half, with the house, to his son John Cole. The line dividing the lot was at the dashes shown in the Elizabeth Dean lot.

Abraham Cole House. This lot was a part of the lot of Thomas Cole, which his widow devised to their son Abraham Cole in 1680. He built the house about 1685, and died in 1715, having devised the house and lot to his sons Samuel and

PART OF SALEM IN 1700. NO. 13.

Thomas. Samuel, the eldest son, was given the eastern end of the house and lot, and Thomas the western end, the latter part being subject to their mother's use. The house was divided through the chimney but Samuel had much more land than Thomas. Thomas was also given the use of "the shop" in which to work at his trade.

Thomas Cole died in or before 1766, possessed of the western end of the house and lot, and his daughter, widow Mercy Smith, conveyed it to George Williams of Salem, merchant, May 4, 1770.* Mr. Williams, for one hundred and fifty pounds, conveyed the same portion to Robert Cowan of Salem, painter, Sept. 7, 1791.† Mr. Cowan, conveyed the same portion of the house and lot to Henry Warden, mariner, and William R. Warden, currier, both of Salem, Jan. 18, 1837.‡ Henry Warden released his interest in the estate to William R. Warden Aug. 27, 1842.§

The eastern end of the house and lot was the property of Samuel Cole, who was a cordwainer, and lived here at his decease in 1733. His children, Samuel Cole of Boxford, blacksmith, Thomas Peabody, jr., of Boxford, housewright, and wife Ruth, and Increase Whiston of Andover, housewright, and wife Abigail, conveyed it to John Jones of Salem, mariner, Aug. 19, 1743.¶ Mr. Jones called it a mansion house and lived in his end of it. He died in 1791, having devised it to his wife Elizabeth for her life and then to John Warden.

William R. Warden and John Warden were the respective owners of the west and east ends of the ancient house in the fall of 1846, when the city widened Essex street at this point, and the old house was removed.

The view of the house shown on the next page, was drawn by E. A. Cabot, a local architect, in 1840. It is reproduced as he left it with the outlines of the other houses only. The old-fashioned pump, shown in the engraving was located in the middle of Essex street. Before the widening, as stated above, the street was only about twelve feet in width on either side of the pump, which stood opposite Beckford street.

A raised walk about eighteen inches higher than the underpinning of the house and three feet wide ran along the eastern end of the house. Relative to this walk, which old people still tell about as something peculiar, is the following deposition of Samuel Woodwell, aged about sixty-eight years, who had lived in the adjoining house. He desposed "that his Father Samuel Woodwell formerly owned the house whercin John Punchard now lives in Salem and that he this Deponent Dwelt in the same house before the year Sixteen hundred ninety & two and for the space of about Thirty years after that time and that during the whole of the s^d 30 years there was a Raised way of about three feet wide on the west side of the land belonging to said house and next the east end of the house formerly of Abraham Cole decess^d wherein John Jones now lives leading from the street all along the east end of s^d Cole's house and that there were two steps or stairs without the East end of s^d Coles house upon the raised way aforesaid which led into a Door at s^d end of said house and that the raised way afores^d was frequently used and improved by said Cole Dec^d and his heirs during said Term and that the Deponent well remembers that the line of stones laid to secure the east side of the said raised way and now to be seen there hath for sixty years paft been commonly reputed to be in and the bounds of the dividing Line between the Land belonging to the house formerly the Deponents Father's now s^d Punchards & the land formerly said Abraham Coles and that during the thirty years afores^d the fence of the East side of said Coles Garden where it came to the northerly part of the raised way aforesaid by said

ABRAHAM COLE HOUSE.

Coles house was about three foot eastward of the northeast Corner of said house viz^t as far eastward from said Coles house as the East side of said way was there from s^d house."*

Samuel West, aged sixty-three, who lived in the second house from this, also deposed "that he has allways lived near the Dwelling houses mentioned in the foregoing Deposition of Samuel Woodwell and that the raised walk mentioned in said Deposition ever since the Deponents Remembrance was reputed to belong to Abraham Cole and his heirs and hath been from that time by them used and improved and that the Line of stones on the east side of said way which is about three feet distant Eastward from s^d Coles house for more than fifty years hath been the reputed bounds of the dividing Line between the Land formerly Abraham Coles dec^d and the Land formerly Samuel Woodwell dec^d now John Punchards."*

The above depositions were both sworn to July 4, 1754, before Epes Sargent and Joseph Bowditch, justices of the peace.

Joseph Swasey House. This was a part of the original lot of Thomas Cole. The house was built by his eldest son Abraham Cole, while the land belonged to his father, about 1670. Thomas Cole died in 1679, having devised this land to his wife Ann. She died in 1680, having devised the land to said son Abraham, who lived in Salem, and was a tailor. The house was occupied by the wife of Francis Parnell Aug. 9, 1680, when, for forty pounds, Mr. Cole conveyed the premises to Joseph Swasey of Salem, mariner.† Mr. Swasey died about 1703, apparently while a considerable addition was being made to the house, at one end. His son Joseph Swasey of Salem, ship-carpenter, for seven pounds and the grantee's case of "our mother," widow Elizabeth Swasey of Salem, released his interest in the estate to his eldest brother Samuel Swasey of Salem, shipwright, Dec. 26, 1709.* Samuel Swasey and his mother, for ninety-five pounds, conveyed the house and land, "our present homestead," to John Cook, jr., of Salem, mariner, Jan. 8, 1711.† Mr. Cook died possessed of the estate in 1721, and the old house, as it was then called, was assigned to his widow for her life. William Bickford was then living in the north end. Mrs. Cook was living in 1743, but apparently died before 1746, when her son Benjamin Cook was its owner. He lived in Salem, being a fisherman, Dec. 6, 1766, when, for £29, 15s., he conveyed the "old dwelling house" and lot to his son John Cook of Salem, fisherman.‡ The old house was probably taken down soon after.

Elizabeth Dean House. This was part of the original Thomas Cole lot. He died in 1679, having devised the lot with the ancient house at the northern end to his wife Ann. She died in 1680, having devised that part of the lot north of the dashes and the house at the northern end to their son, John Cole of Lynn, cooper. He conveyed that part of the lot, the house being gone, for fifteen pounds, to George Dean, sr., of Salem, cordwinder, Nov. 23, 1686.§

That part of the lot south of the dashes was a part of the lot devised by said widow Ann Cole to her eldest son Abraham Cole in 1680. Mr. Cole built this house about 1675, while the land was his father's, and in 1680 this part of the lot and the house belonged to Priscilla Hunn, widow of Nathaniel Hunn. The house was eighteen feet long and fifteen feet wide. After 1682, Mrs. Hunn married George Bowers of Kent county, Pennsylvania, and with her husband she conveyed the house and that part of the lot to Mr. Dean June 21, 1687.¶

Thus the entire lot became the property of Mr. Dean. In 1688, the house was probably occupied by Ezekiel Lambert. Mr. Dean died in 1696, having devised the estate to his wife Elizabeth. She died, his widow, in 1705, and her administrator, for twenty-two pounds conveyed the "small house" and lot to John Cook, jr., of Salem, mariner, Dec. 19, 1706.* Mr. Cook died in 1721, and in the division of his estate the house, then called "old" and "small," and land around it were assigned to his son Joseph Cook. In 1746, the house was occupied by Nathaniel Archer. Mr. Cook probably removed the house before 1770.

John Simpson House. This was a part of the orchard of Samuel Belknap, and he undoubtedly lived on this part of the lot. He sold it to Thomas Maule of Salem, shopkeeper, who built a house upon it, and conveyed the house and lot to Joshua Buffum of Salem, carpenter, Jan. 20, 1678.† Mr. Buffum, in exchange for the grantee's house and lot on Essex street (just west of Monroe street, shown on Map No. 12), conveyed to John Simpson of Salem, the house and lot Feb. 28, 1686-7.‡ John Simpson of Salem, laborer, for twenty-five pounds, conveyed the house, garden and orchard, being the same lot, to John Bullock of Salem, cordwainer, July 24, 1721.§ Mr. Bullock lived here, and probably took the house down before 1774.

Joshua Buffum Lot. That part of the lot west of the dashes on Beckford street was a part of the original lot of Thomas Cole. It was the northern end of the lot conveyed to Thomas Walter of Salem, mariner, Dec. 4, 1682.|| Mr. Walter conveyed it to Stephen Sewall of Salem, merchant, Nov. 8, 1684;¶ and Mr. Sewall conveyed it to Joshua Buffum March 3, 1686-7.‡

The main part of this lot was a portion of Samuel Belknap's lot. He sold it, with other land adjoining, to Thomas Maule of Salem, shopkeeper, who conveyed it to Joshua Buffum of Salem, carpenter, Jan. 20, 1678.*

Mr. Buffum died in 1705, at the age of seventy, having devised the entire lot to his son Samuel Buffum.

Estate of Samuel Woodwell House. The narrow strip of two and a half rods on Beckford street, north of the dashes, was a part of the original Thomas Cole lot. It was a strip off the southern side of the lot conveyed by Abraham Cole of Salem, tailor, to Thomas Walter of Salem, mariner, Dec. 4, 1682.† Mr. Walter conveyed it to Stephen Sewall of Salem, merchant, Nov. 8, 1684,‡ and it then became an addition to Mr. Sewall's lot which he already owned on the southern side.

That part of the lot on Beckford street south of the dashes was also a portion of the original lot of Thomas Cole, and was conveyed by Abraham Cole of Salem, for fifteen pounds, to Mr. Sewall May 30, 1684.§ Mr. Sewall conveyed both parts of his lot on Beckford street to Samuel Woodwell of Salem, glover, Dec. 30, 1693.||

The northeastern section of the lot was a part of the original Samuel Belknap lot and belonged to him in 1665. He conveyed it to Thomas Maule of Salem, shopkeeper, who conveyed it to Joshua Buffum of Salem, carpenter, Jan. 20, 1678.* Mr. Buffum conveyed it, with some land adjoining, to Stephen Sewall of Salem March 3, 1686-7.¶ Mr. Sewall conveyed it to Samuel Woodwell, Dec. 30, 1693.||

The part of the lot on Essex street, south of the dashes was also a part of the original Belknap orchard. Samuel Belknap of Salem, joiner, and wife Sarah, conveyed this portion of the lot to Edward Gaskin of Salem, ship carpenter, Nov. 6, 1666.* Mr. Gaskin (or, Gaskill, as the name was often later spelled), for twenty-five pounds, conveyed the lot to Samuel Woodwell of Salem, glover, May 13, 1685.† On this portion of the lot, Mr. Woodwell erected a dwelling house, probably in that summer of 1685. He lived in the house, and died possessed of it and of the entire lot of land in the winter of 1697-8, between Nov. 25 and Jan. 10, having devised the estate to his wife Tamazine for her life and then to their children, Samuel, John, Gideon, Joseph, Benjamin, Jonathan, Elizabeth and David. The house, barn and orchard belonging to the homestead were appraised at two hundred pounds. Samuel Woodwell of Salem, glover, and Gideon Woodwell and Joseph Woodwell, both of Boston, cordwainers, three of the sons, conveyed their interest in their father's estate, for sixty pounds, to their mother Tamazine, who had married — Hill, June 5, 1712.‡ On the same day, the same sons and their mother conveyed the house and lot to Miles Ward, joiner, and Peter Windett, currier, both of Salem.§ Messrs. Ward and Windett conveyed the same estate to Samuel Hayward of Salem, set-work cooper and leather dresser, Jan. 14, 1718-9.|| Elizabeth Woodwell of Boston, a daughter of Samuel Woodwell, for twenty pounds, conveyed her interest in the estate to Mr. Hayward May 5, 1716.¶ Benjamin Woodwell of Boston and Jonathan Woodwell of Salem, both seamen, and sons of Samuel Woodwell, conveyed their interest in the house and lot to Mr. Hayward Oct. 20, 1715. David Woodwell of Boston, blacksmith, son of Samuel Woodwell, conveyed their interest in the estate, for twenty-eight pounds, to Mr. Hayward Dec. 10, 1718.* John Woodwell, the remaining son who does not appear as releasing his interest probably died young. For two hundred and fifty pounds, Mr. Hayward, who had removed to Reading, conveyed the house and land to John Capen of Salem, shopkeeper, March 27, 1724.† Mr. Capen conveyed the estate to Philip English, jr., of Salem, innholder, June 24, 1731;‡ and on the next day, Mr. English, for love, conveyed it to Mary, wife of Mr. Capen.§ Mr. Capen died before Oct. 8, 1746, when his widow Mary Capen conveyed the house and lot to John Punchard of Salem, fisherman.|| At that time Daniel Mackey had a hatter's shop upon the lot. Mr. Punchard lived here, and died possessed of the house and lot Dec. 30, 1767. The homestead was valued at thirty-one pounds. In his will, after providing for his wife Hannah, he devised his real estate to his children, Benjamin Punchard of Salem, shoeman, James Punchard, Samuel Punchard, Hannah Averson, and Sarah, wife of John Chamberlain, one-sixth each, and the other sixth to Mary, wife of Joseph Ellinwood, and Sarah Punchard, daughters of Mr. Punchard's deceased son, John Punchard. These devisees, after the death of the widow of the deceased, conveyed the house and lot to John Punchard of Salem, gentleman, Feb. 1, 1791.¶ Mr. Punchard took the house down before 1840, apparently. The house was two stories in height, the upper story projecting, and stood some ten or twelve feet from the street. Steps led to the basement floor.

Samuel West House. This lot was a part of the original lot of Samuel Belknap. He sold that part of the lot north of the dashes, with land adjoining, to Thomas Maule of Salem, shopkeeper, who conveyed it with some other land to Joshua Buffum of Salem, carpenter, Jan. 20, 1678.* Mr. Buffum conveyed it to Stephen Sewall of Salem March 3, 1686-7.† Mr. Sewall conveyed it to Samuel West of Salem May 23, 1693.‡ It was thenceforth for many years after 1700 a part of the West estate.

The front half of the lot was also a part of the original Samuel Belknap lot. The southeastern part within the dashes was conveyed by Samuel Belknap of Salem, joiner, for three pounds, to Edward Gaskin of Salem, ship carpenter, Feb. 20, 1665.§ The rest of this half was conveyed by Mr. Belknap to Mr. Gaskin, for six pounds, June 11, 1666.¶ Mr. Gaskin (or Gaskill, as his name was often called subsequently) erected a house on the lot, and was living in it July 29, 1690, when he conveyed the house and this half of the lot to his son-in-law John Lambert.¶ Mr. Lambert, then of Salem, shoreman, for twenty pounds, conveyed a strip one and one-half rods wide off the western side of the lot to Samuel West of Salem, sadler, April 20, 1691. Mr. Lambert, then of Salem, fisherman, for twenty-seven pounds, conveyed the remainder of the lot to Stephen Sewall of Salem, merchant, May 1, 1693.†† In neither of these transfers was any house mentioned, and the house probably had a short existence. Mr. Sewall conveyed the lot and housing to Samuel West, for forty five pounds and a saddle and bridle, May 23, 1693.‡

So the entire lot came into the possession of Mr. West. He apparently built a house upon the lot about 1693; and died possessed of the estate in 1732. He resided in this house, and devised the house and that part of the lot to his widow for life and to his son Daniel West in fee. Daniel West lived here, being a housewright, and died possessed of the house and lot in January, 1748-9, having devised his real estate to his two young children, Daniel and Mary. Mary probably died young, as Daniel subsequently appears as sole owner. The house was apparently taken down by Daniel West before 1774.

William Hirst Lot. This lot was the property of Philip Cromwell of Salem, slaughterer, as early as 1665. He conveyed the lot, for sixty pounds, to William Hirst of Salem, merchant, March 14, 1679;* and Mr. Hirst died possessed of it in 1717.

Joseph Porter and Benjamin Marston Lots. These lots were owned by Hilliard Veren, sr., of Salem as early as 1665. He conveyed the entire lot, for thirty pounds, to his son Hilliard Veren, jr., of Salem, merchant, some years before Nov. 29, 1679,† when the deed was executed. The son had already sold the lot marked "Joseph Porter" to Joseph Porter of Salem, yeoman, the deed being dated Sept. 17, 1678.‡ The son died in the spring of 1680, leaving a widow, but apparently no children. The remainder of the lot descended to his father as undevise estate. The father died possessed of it in 1684. His heirs were his three daughters Mary, wife of Samuel Williams. Sarah, wife of Deliverance Parkman, and Abigail, wife of Benjamin Marston. Mrs. Mary Williams, then a widow, conveyed this lot, for ten pounds, to Benjamin Marston of Salem, merchant, "in right of his wife Abigail," March 14, 1692-3.§ Mrs. Parkman's deed of release, if any were given, does not appear of record. June 5, 1704, Mr. Marston conveyed the lot, for seventeen pounds, to Joseph Porter,|| who owned the remainder of the original

Joseph Putnam House. This lot and the lots marked "Thomas Maule" and "Estate of Richard Sibley" belonged to Philip Veren of Salem, wheelwright, as early as 1662, and he was living in this house. For fifty pounds, he conveyed this and the "Thomas Maule" lot, except the southeastern corner within the dashes, with the house on this part of the lot to Mary Veren, widow of Nathaniel Veren, formerly of Jamaica, May 15, 1665.* Mrs. Veren married, as her second husband, Lt. Thomas Putnam of Salem, in 1666; and before 1693 she conveyed this house and lot to her son Joseph Putnam of Salem, yeoman. For one hundred pounds, Joseph Putnam conveyed the lot and house (which was then in the possession of Philip Gavet) to his sister widow Mary Lindall of Salem, shopkeeper, July 16, 1718.† Two years later the house was gone apparently.

Thomas Maule Lot. This lot and the lots marked "Joseph Putnam" and "Estate of Richard Sibley" belonged to Philip Veren of Salem, wheelwright, as early as 1662. For fifty pounds, he conveyed this and the Joseph Putnam lot to Mary Veren of Salem, widow of Nathaniel Veren, formerly of Jamaica, May 15, 1665.* Mrs. Veren married, as her second husband, Lt. Thomas Putnam in 1666; and for love to her husband's son Thomas Putnam of Salem, yeoman, she conveyed this lot to the latter Aug. 10, 1687.‡ For forty-eight pounds, Mr. Putnam conveyed it to Thomas Maule of Salem, merchant, Aug. 15, 1687.§ Mr. Maule erected a house upon the lot before the next May; and probably removed it to his lot across the street in 1690. For one hundred and thirty pounds, he conveyed the lot with the orchard and improvements thereon to Jonathan Springer of Salem, blacksmith, Feb. 28, 1709-10.*

Estate of Richard Sibley House. This was the southeast corner of the large lot of Philip Veren of Salem, wheelwright, in 1662. He conveyed this lot and that part of the two lots adjoining, enclosed within the dashes, to Richard Sibley of Salem, tray maker, Nov. 22, 1662.† Mr. Sibley built a house on its southeastern corner before 1665. May 20, 1665, he reconveyed to Mr. Veren that part included within the dashes.‡ He died in 1676, leaving a widow Hannah and seven young children, Samuel, Hannah, Sarah, Damaris, John, Mary and Elizabeth. Samuel Sibley of Salem, shingler, for two pounds, released to Thomas Maule, who then owned the lot adjoining, his interest in one or two rods off the western side of this lot May 18, 1688.§ After the decease of the widow, after 1700, three of the heirs apparently released their interest in the house and eastern part of the lot to their brother John Sibley of Salem, cordwainer. For fifteen pounds, ten shillings, John Sibley mortgaged his one-half interest to John Becket, jr., of Salem, shipwright, Aug. 1, 1714.¶ In 1726, the house and lot are called the property of Samuel Symonds. Mr. Becket probably took possession of the premises, foreclosing the mortgage, as, for thirty-two pounds, thirteen shillings, and four pence, he released the lot and house to Joseph Gavet of Salem, joiner, April 17, 1759.¶ John Sibley's two sisters, widow Elizabeth Moor and Mary Sibley, spinster, both of Salem, for twenty pounds, conveyed one-half of the house and lot to Mr. Gavet, who was then living in the house, Oct. 12, 1758. In this deed the house is described as "a small dwelling house." For one hundred pounds, Mr. Gavet conveyed the lot to Dr. Ebenezer Putnam, as an addition to his garden, Oct. 17, 1763,* reserving "my mansion house standing thereon" with liberty "to take away and remove the same with ye rocks and stones of ye cellar" at any time before April 1, 1764. Five days after the date of this deed, Mr. Gavet bought of Samuel Curwen a house lot on North street, opposite Lynde street, and removed the house thither. The house stands there, having been in the Gavet family ever since. Here lived, Feb. 26, 1775, the sexton of the North church, who was a participant in the North Bridge affair of that day. The engraving of this old house on the next page shows it as it appeared a few years ago. Originally it consisted of the front end only, including the front door and chimney.

Jonathan Corwin House. This lot belonged to Capt. Richard Davenport as early as 1662. He was a resident of Salem for many years before that time, but had removed to Boston to become commander of Castle Island fortification in Boston harbor. July 15, 1665, he was killed by lightning in the fort. The contemporary records of the general court speak of "the solemn stroke of thunder that took away Captain Davenport." The administrators of the estate of Captain Davenport conveyed the house (?) and lot to Jonathan Corwin of Salem, merchant, Feb. 11, 1674-5.† The house then standing upon the lot was enlarged by Mr. Corwin immediately after his purchase. It is also evident that the house then standing on the lot had not been finished. The contract for the finishing and enlargement of the house is in the possession of the Antiquarian Society at Worcester, and is as follows:—

"Articles and Covenants made, agreed upon, and confirmed between Mr. Jonathan Corwin, of Salem, merchant, and Daniel Andrews of Salem, of the other part concerning a parcell of worke as followeth, viz.: Imprimis the said parcell of worke is to be bestowed in filling, plaistering and finishing a certaine dwelling house bought by the said owner of Capt. Nath'l Davenport of Boston, and is situate in Salem aforesaid, towards the west end of the towne betweene the houses of Rich. Sibley to the west and Deliverance Parkman on the east; and is to be performed to these following directions, viz.

"1. The said Daniel Andrewes is to dig and build a cellar as large as the easterly room of said house will afford (and in the said room according to the breadthe and lengthe of it) not exceeding six foot in height; and to underpin the porch and the remaining part of the house not exceeding three foot in height; also to underpin the kitchen on the north side of the house, not exceeding one foot; the said kitchen being 20 foot long and 18 foot wide; and to make steps with stones into the cellar in two places belonging to the cellar, together with stone steps up into the porch. 2. For the chimneys he is to take down the chimneys which are now standing, and to take and make up of the bricks that are now in the chimneys, and the stones that are in the leanto cellar that now is, and to rebuild the said chimneys with five fire places, viz., two below and two in the chambers and one in the garret; also to build one chimney in the kitchen, with ovens and a furnace, not exceeding five feet above the top of the house. 3. He is to set the jambs of the two chamber chimneys and of the easternmost room below with Dutch tiles, the said owner finding the tiles; also to lay all the hearths belonging to the said house and to point the cellar and underpinning of sd. house and so much of the 3 hearths as are to be laid with Dutch tiles, the said owner is to find them. 4. As for lathing and plaistering he is to lath and siele the 4 rooms of the house betwixt the joists overhead and to plaister the sides of the house with a coat of lime and haire upon the clay; also to fill the gable ends of the house with bricks and to plaister them with clay. 5. To lath and plaister the partitions of the house with clay and lime, and to fill, lath and plaister with bricks and clay the porch and porch chamber and to plaister them with lime and hair besides; and to siele and lath them overhead with lime; also to fill lath and plaister the kitchen up to the wall plate on every side. 6. The said Daniel Andrews is to find lime, bricks, clay, stone, haire, together with labourers and workmen to help him, and generally all materials for the effecting and carrying out of the aforesaid worke, excepte laths and nailes. 7. The whole work before mentioned is to be done finished and performed att or before the last day of August next following, provided the said Daniel or any that work with him, be not lett or hindered for want of the carpenter worke. 8. Lastly, in consideration of all the aforesaid worke, so finished and accomplished as is aforesaid, the aforesaid owner is to pay or cause to be paid unto the said workman, the summe of fifty pounds in money current in New England, to be paid at or before the finishing of the said worke. And for the true performance of the premises, we bind ourselves each to other, our heyres, executors and administrators, firmly by these presents, as witness our hands, this nineteenth day of February, Anno Domini 1674-5.

"Jonathan Corwin, Daniel Andrewc."

In 1746, the house contained the great room, western lower room, kitchen, eastern chamber, entry chamber, western chamber, kitchen chamber, great chamber, garret and cellar. It is said that the porch was removed that year, and with it, of course, the entry chamber. The eastern room, which was the "great room" of 1746, measures $21\frac{1}{2}$ x 18 feet; eastern chamber, $21\frac{1}{2}$ x 20 feet; western room $16\frac{1}{2}$ x 18 feet; and western chamber, $16\frac{1}{2}$ x 20 feet. The chimney is about 12 x 8 feet. The several summer beams are of stout hewn oak timber. The house was originally filled with brick between the outside boarding and the inside plastering. It is said that many years ago the grade of Essex street at this point was raised between two and three feet, and the space around the house was filled to correspond with the height of the street. This caused the high underpinning to vanish.

Jonathan Corwin was one of the judges who presided over the court of oyer and terminer by whom the alleged witches were convicted; and it is believed that some of the victims were subjected to their miserable inquisition at this house.

Judge Corwin died July 25, 1718, intestate, and this house and lot descended to his grandsons Capt. George Curwen and Samuel Curwen both of Salem, gentlemen, and granddaughters, Elizabeth and Mary Lindall. Upon a division, this house and the land around it became the sole estate of the grandson George Curwen, Oct. 27, 1740.* Mr. Curwen lived in this house until his death, which occurred June 7, 1746. It was then occupied by his wife and children. After the decease of the widow, which occurred

Jan. 3, 1810, the estate became the property of the daughter Mehitable, wife of Richard Ward of Salem. She died about 1818, and her heirs were Charles Ward of New York city, mariner, a grandson, Eliza Wetmore Ward of Salem, singlewoman, a granddaughter, George A. Ward of New York city, merchant, a grandson, Jane S. Ward of New York city, spinster, a granddaughter, and widow Sarah Cushing of New York city, a daughter of Mrs. Ward. George and Jane released their interest in the house and lot to Mrs. Cushing Sept. 20, 1826;† Charles released his interest to Mrs. Cushing April 28, 1828;‡ and Eliza released her interest Oct. 21, 1829.* Mrs. Cushing removed to Castleton, N. Y., and, for thirty-five hundred dollars, conveyed the house and lot to George Pickman Farrington of Salem, druggist, June 3, 1856.† Mr. Farrington conducted a drug store here many years, and died April 29, 1885, at the age of seventy-six. Since then the property has belonged to his widow, Mrs. Susan B. Farrington. The frontispiece is a copy of a drawing made of this house in 1850.

JULY 4TH, 1776.

Those men who on this day from calm debate
 A heaven-guided message brought to light,
 That bid an empire bow to human right,
 Were chosen ministers of holy fate!
 And by this declaration, showed the will
 Which made our earnest fathers dare to face
 The deadly anger of a warrior race;
 And firmly meet each battle storm, until
 Their faith and courage served to gain
 A triumph that through coming time shall be
 The pilot light, when nations long to be
 Their fated time for Christian heart and brain
 To blend each life into a ruling whole.
 Where earthly things can never have control.

BATCHELDER NOTES.

I think that Joseph Batchelder,¹ tailor from Canterbury, was brother of John¹ and Henry¹. Here is the first record we have of them. "In a list of persons who have taken passage from the town and port of Sandwich for the American plantations, the list certified under the seal of office of mayoralty, 9 June, 1637, and including all those since the last certificate of such passengers returned unto the office of Dover Castle," appear "John Bachelor, of Canterbury, tailor," "Henry Bachelor, of Dover, brewer, Martha, his wife, and four servants," "Joseph Bachelor, of Canterbury, tailor, his wife Elizabeth, one child, and three servants." (See New England Historical Genealogical Register, volume xv., page 29.) There is nothing said of one being the father of the other. They are arranged in the order of their ages (Henry calls Joseph his youngest brother). John, if he is our John, of Salem, as there is little doubt that he was, was born in or about 1610. But the important point is Joseph's child. That child must have been Mark Batchelder, killed in 1675. Mark Batchelder was born in 1632 or thereabouts. In 1653, he pays a tax in Wenham, and gives two days' work to the town. In 1655, he pays £1, 10s. towards the minister's rate; a Jo. Batchelder paying 15 shillings (perhaps his brother Joseph—see later). In 1659, he and Austin Killam are empowered to collect the minister's rate; and he pays £1, 5s. "to content;" John Batchelder pays £1. In 1664, he is again appointed to collect the minister's rate, with Jeremiah Watts. In 1669, he is on the committee to divide the commons. 11: 8: 1670, again to make the minister's rate, with Walter Fairfield and the selectmen. 2: 2: 1670, no trees are to be cut in the "seader swampe" without leave from the selectmen, old Goodman Knowlton, or Marke Batchelder. In 1671, he and Charles Gott join the selectmen in making the minister's rate. In 1673, he is on the inventory of Phineas Fiske's estate, and in 1675 he is "slayne abroad from the garrison."

All these items indicate a man of some maturity, and he was evidently older than his brother John, who was born 20 : 11 : 1638. On page 105, that John is given to John and Elizabeth Batchelder; but John Batchelder was not even in Salem at that time. He did not ask to be an inhabitant till 15 : 2 : 1639. Moreover the record distinctly states that he was son of Joseph. The birth records go thus: "John, son of brother Batchelder, baptized 20 : 11 : 1638;" "Mary, daughter of Jon Batchelder, baptized 19 : 7 : 1640;" "Abigail, daughter of Jon Batchelder, baptized 12 : 12 : 1642;" "Hanna daughter of brother Batchelder, baptized 23 : 4 : 1644;" "Hanna, daughter of Jon Batchelder, baptized 25 : 3 : 1645." On page 105 both of these Hannahs are given to John; whereas the distinction is made that the first one and the early John belong to "brother" Batchelder, who was certainly Joseph, not John.

But Joseph Batchelder had another child, whose birth or baptism is not recorded. He comes to America with one child, whom I call Mark. He is one of the original, or early signers of the covenant of the First church appearing in one copy as Edward Batchelder, but later corrected to Joseph Batchelder; he has a son, John, baptized there in 1638; but there is one between.

In the division of common lands ordered 10mo : 1637, he has four members in his family. This fourth member must be Joseph, mariner, who died in 1657, about twenty years old, not old enough to be on the town tax-list, but who perhaps paid a church rate at eighteen in 1655.

To make Joseph Batchelder, tailor, who brings a small child over with him, the father of John, born in 1610, and the grandfather of Mark, born in 1632, is highly improbable. Though prominent he is never spoken of as old. He died in 1647, and, to fulfill the conditions above, must then have been over sixty. He died while a case of church discipline was going on and the record states, "In ye mesne space it pleased God to take to himself Brother Batchelder a man wise, moderate and very able to be helpful in such cases," but not a word about his being aged.

I have not been able to go to Salem to consult the deeds and wills there, for or against my arguments; but I think my case is strong, based as it is on the records I have found in the Essex Institute Historical Collections, chiefly from volumes 6, 9, 19 and 20.

Elizabeth Batchelder (No. 6, on page 105) married James Davis of Gloucester Dec. 6, 1666. His first wife, Mehitable, died June 9, 1666.

Abigail Batchelder (No. 11) was admitted to the First church 12 : 11 : 1662; and it is generally supposed, though not proved I think, that she married Peter Woodbury Sept. —, 1665, and died in 1666 leaving one son, Peter.

Elkins, N. H.

A. H. LAMSON.

426. William and Mary Guilford of Boston (brother of John, of Hingham) had a son John, born May 14th, 1653. Can any one inform me what became of that particular John, and whether John, jr., of Salem, Mass., who married Rachael Landers June 20, 1744, and William, of Danvers, or Salem village, were sons or grandsons of John, of Boston? Also, whether Joseph, of Salem, who married Abigail Allen of Salem October 17, 1753, and Benjamin, of Danvers, who married Lydia Goodale, 1755, were sons of William and Mary? There was, also, a Robert Guilford and wife Rebecca who were living at Marblehead and transferred property in 1762. Were these Guilford families among the many who left the Maine settlements and came to Portsmouth, Salem, and Boston about 1700 on account of the Indian invasions at that time?

Whom did John, of Boston, marry, and where did he settle in Maine?

HART. What is the ancestry of Abigail Hart who married Samuel Marble of Danvers or Salem, whose daughter, Abigail (Nabbie) Marble, married Simeon Guilford of Danvers November 8, 1787?

HOULTON. Capt. Benjamin Houlton of Danvers married Lydia Leach in 1703. Where did he get his title of Captain?

HADLEY. Enos Hadley married Phoebe Farmer of Pelham, N. H. She was born September 21, 1761, and was the daughter of Edward Farmer and Molly ———^{gh}. Would like the ancestry of Edward Farmer and his wife's maiden name and ancestry if possible.

381. John Lummus¹, who married Hannah Porter was baptized Sept. 23, 1722, and died May 18, 1785. He was son of Samuel Lummus², who was born Feb. 14, 1679, and died Dec. 9, 1754. Samuel Lummus³ was son of Samuel Lummus², who was born June 7, 1639, and died Feb. 24, 1720. The latter was son of Edward Lummus⁴, who was born in 1606 and died Aug. 29, 1682. I would like to learn of the descendants of Porter Lummus.—Charles A. Lummus, Newton, Mass.

EDITORIAL.

This number completes volume seven of The Essex Antiquarian. There have been published during the year the will proved in Essex county from 1656 to 1659; the gravestone inscriptions in the town of Essex before 1800; the genealogies of Essex county families from Bartlett to Bean; the record of the Essex county Revolutionary soldiers and sailors from Bartlett to Batchelder; abstracts of the Old Norfolk county records, 1668 to 1670; Salem quarterly court records and files, 1650 to 1653; and miscellaneous genealogical notes from the records from Barker to Batten.

NEW PUBLICATIONS.

MOSES CANTINE and His Grandchildren.

This is a preliminary statement of the Cantine genealogy. Moses Cantine, the Huguenot refugee of that name, settled in Ulster county, N. Y. The compiler is Rev. Mathew Cantine Julien of Ellenville, N. Y.

WHAT TO SEE IN SALEM. Salem, 1903.

This is a small quarto of eighteen pages in heavy paper covers, the first page of which is prettily ornamented. It contains a map of the city, and forty-five engravings, one being a fine large portrait of Hawthorne. Price, ten cents. Published by the Salem Press Company, Salem, Mass.

AMERICAN ANCESTRY OF BENJAMIN MORRILL AND HIS WIFE MIRIAM PECKER MORRILL OF SALISBURY, MASS., AND THEIR DESCENDANTS TO 1901. By Horace Edwin Morrill. Dayton, Ohio, 1903. This is a pamphlet of twenty-one pages, privately printed. Mr. Morrill, though a resident of Dayton, is a native of Salisbury, the old home of this family. He has produced a valuable paper.

EARLY IRISH IN OLD ALBANY, N. Y. By Hen. Franklin M. Danaher. Boston, 1903. This is a pamphlet of thirty-three pages, being a paper read before the American-Irish Historical Society in New York city Jan. 19, 1903. A portrait of the author, Judge Danaher, serves as a frontispiece. This is another of the valuable publications of the American-Irish Society, and deals largely with mention of individuals specially of Jan Andriessen, "de Iersman van Dublingh."

THE RECORDS OF THE SALEM COMMON-FREES, 1713-1739. Salem, 1903. This volume of one hundred and eighty octavo pages has just been issued by the Essex Institute. It is the records of the commoners of Salem, and is complete. George Francis Dow, the secretary of the Institute, is the copyist and editor. The volume is exhaustively indexed, and is invaluable, not only in the way of laying out certain tracts of land, but in the history of early houses and chain of titles to estates, and in many other particulars.

VITAL RECORDS OF TOPSFIELD, MASS. Topsfield, 1903. This volume is the first that has been published of the records of the Essex county towns under the recent statute. It contains the births, baptisms, intentions of marriages, marriages and deaths in the town before 1850, making a cloth bound volume of 258 octavo pages. This was compiled by George Francis Dow, and is published by the Topsfield Historical Society. In this work records from other sources than the town records are included, being particularly designated, such as data from gravestone inscriptions, bible records, etc. The importance of this work need not be stated. Every town should be included in the list of those having their records printed.

THE NEW HAMPSHIRE GENEALOGICAL RECORD. This is the title of the new New Hampshire genealogical magazine. The first number appeared in July, and it will be issued quarterly. Though the official organ of the New Hampshire Genealogical Society, it is edited and published by Charles W. Tibbetts, esq., of Dover. The object of the magazine is to preserve, by printing, copies of records of all kinds pertaining to the history and genealogy of the families of the Granite state. Each number will contain forty-eight pages with an illustration. The frontispiece of the first number is a half-tone view of Portsmouth from Badger's Island. The magazine is much needed, and should have ample financial and sympathetic support.

OLD PATHS AND LEGENDS OF NEW ENGLAND. Saunterings over historic roads with glimpses of picturesque fields and old homesteads in Massachusetts, Rhode Island, and New Hampshire. By Katherine M. Abbott. New York, 1903. This fine volume from the Knickerbocker Press, of 484 pages, is the culmination of Miss Abbott's little books on trolley trips in New England. This book has the same bright interesting style that has characterized her former productions. The territory covered by the volume lies as far north as Portsmouth, N. H., as far south as Newport, R. I., and from the ocean west as far as Framingham, in Massachusetts, and Nashua, in New Hampshire.

Filled with little sketches, it is a volume that may be read as advantageously in parts as consecutively, and should be examined carefully by every one who intends to make a visit to any of the cities, towns or smaller portions of its field.

The pages are beautified and made more valuable and interesting by many illustrations. There are 141 in all, and most of them are very fine half-tones. Not only are historic places and things shown in this way, but bits of charming scenery and more extensive landscapes add to its attractiveness. A map showing trolley lines accompanies the book, and an index is included.

The publishers are G. P. Putnam's Sons, 27 West 23d Street, New York city, and the price of the volume, bound in cloth, gilt top, uncut leaves, is $3.50 net.

FIVE COLONIAL FAMILIES: TREMAN—TREMAINE—TRUMAN, MACK, DEY, BOARD AND AYERS. By Ebenezer Mack Treman and Murray Edward Poole, D. C. L., LL. D. Ithaca, N. Y., 1901.

This History of the Treman, Tremaine, Truman Family in America, with the related families of Mack, Dey, Board and Ayers, in memory of Lafayette Lepine Treman, is the result of labors instituted by Ebenezer Mack Treman and carried on for some time during the years 1893 and 1894, and subsequently prosecuted to its publication in 1901, with the assistance of Murray Edward Poole, president of the American Genealogical Society. Doctor Poole had special facilities for prosecuting the immense labor involved in the preparation of the two volumes into which this monumental work is divided.

There are 2129 pages, 212 of which are occupied by the indexes of names of persons, the christian names of all persons being given. This completeness of index recommends the work to all seekers after genealogical information.

The scope of the work includes the history and genealogy of the various branches of the above named families, in both male and female lines. The English history of the Tremayne, Board, Ayer and Eyre families is given for several hundred years prior to American emigration.

Many other families are taken up by giving the descendants of the daughters, and these include the names of Alsop, Breck, Brewer, Bridges, Chandler, Chauncy, Church, Cone, Dewitt, Emmons, Frye, Goodrich, Goodwin, Graham, Harris, Hazen, Jeffries, Kingsbury, Lee, Leighton (Layton), Lockwood, Nutter, Oliver, Osgood, Parsons, Perrine, Phillips, Pynchon, Rawson, Richards, Roberts, Schuyler, Smith, Varick, Walley, Wingate, Whittleley and others.

Generally speaking the volumes include many distinguished men and women, including a vice-president of the United States, nine United States senators, eleven governors, three cabinet officers, a justice of the United States supreme court, thirteen college presidents, seventy college professors, and many famous authors, divines, reformers and financiers. To a limited extent it is a biographical dictionary.

It contains a list of colonial and Revolutionary soldiers, and also of 1470 college graduates.

The work is extensively illustrated by the Tremayne and Board coats-of-arms in colors, the Dey, Ayer and Schuyler coats-of-arms, two steel portraits and 110 of the finest half-tone portraits and views which are too numerous to be mentioned.

It is well gotten up, in arrangement, preparation, printing and binding, and a most valuable addition to any library. The two volumes, bound in buckram, will be sent for twenty dollars by Murray E. Poole, Ithaca, N. Y.

The first part of the paper discusses the importance of the study and the objectives of the research. It highlights the need for a comprehensive understanding of the subject matter and the role of the research in advancing the field. The second part of the paper presents the methodology used in the study, including the data collection methods and the analytical techniques employed. The third part of the paper discusses the results of the study and the conclusions drawn from the findings. The final part of the paper provides a summary of the key points and offers suggestions for future research.

NOTES.

"SALEM, April 18.

"Last Thursday Evening, Capt. JOHN GARDNER, tertius, was married to Miss SALLY DERBY, Daughter of Capt. RICHARD DERBY, of this Place.

"We hear from Newbury-Port, that on Saturday last a Fishing Boat putting over the Bar there too early for the Tide, overset, and another Boat, going to her Assistance, was bilged by the first; and of nine Men, in the two Boats, eight were drowned.

"The Skipper and five Men, belonging to a Marblehead Fishing Schooner, which got in last Week, was washed overboard by a large Sea, while on the Banks of Newfoundland, and all drowned. After this melancholy Accident, two Boys, who were all that remained on board, bore away for another Schooner, then in Sight, from which they received Assistance sufficient to bring the Vessel into Port."

"By the Spirit now prevailing in England, with Regard to instructing the Members of Parliament, the Friends of the Colonies entertain the pleasing expectations of a speedy Change of Measures in our Favour."—Essex Gazette, April 11-18, 1769.

SALEM IN 1700. NO. 14.

BY SIDNEY PERLEY.

The map on page 23 represents that part of Salem which is bounded by Essex, Washington and St. Peter streets and the North river. The plan is drawn on a scale of two hundred feet to an inch, and is based on actual surveys and title deeds. The braces marked "a" show where Federal street now runs.

Essex street was called a street in 1660; the street or highway that comes down from ye meeting house in 1661; the main street, 1691; Main street, 1727; great street, 1750; and Essex street, 1796.

Washington street was called the broad street that comes from the meeting house to the north river in 1658; ye main street, 1681; street where a town house standeth, 1682; highway, 1693; lane or town-house street, 1694; school-house lane, 1726; school street, 1727; school-house street, 1727; the old town house street, 1727; town-house lane, 1731; street from town house to North river, 1765; Court street, 1792; and Washington street, 1861.

St. Peter street was called lane to North river in 1660; lane or highway, 1661; lane which goeth toward Christopher Waller's, 1665; street or highway, 1673; street or lane, 1678; lane that runs from ye North river to the corner of Mr. William Browne, sr.'s orchard, 1678; ye lane or town street, 1694; Prison lane, 1698; Prison street, 1704; lane that goes down to ye north river, 1717; and St. Peter street, 1738.

Church street was laid out as a lane by the persons over whose lands it ran in or before 1698. Nearly four-fifths of the territory was from Daniel Epes' lots, and the remainder from the lots of Benjamin Ropes and the Priests. The division line between the lots before the lane was laid out is indicated by a dotted line shown on the map. Fifty square rods of land was given by Mr. Epes and thirteen rods by Ropes and the Priests. March 3, 1701-2, Daniel Epes, John Priest and Benjamin Ropes, all of Salem, conveyed the land contained within the location of the lane to the town of Salem.* The lane is described therein as the highway from town-house street to Mr. Samuel Beadle's, its width was twenty-four feet and its length forty rods. This is said to be the only street to which the city's title is an absolute fee in the soil by purchase. This was called Epes lane laid out by Daniel Epes, in 1699; street or highway lately made and laid out by Daniel Epes and Benjamin Ropes, 1700; new lane, 1727; Back lane, 1746; street from church to school-house, 1762; street leading from Court street to St. Peter's church, 1793; and Church street, 1861.

Federal street was laid out in or just before 1783, and was called the lane lately laid out from School street to Prison lane, 1783; lane laid out leading from School street to the County gaol, 1783; new street to gaol, 1793; County street, 1807; and Federal street, 1818(?).

Ash street was laid out in or just before 1785, when it is called the lane lately laid out leading to North river.

Rust street was laid out when the Universalist meeting-house was built in 1861.

North river has always been known as such.

Along the bank of the river a highway was reserved by the town in the original laying out of the lots, and was in existence here as late as 1784. The laying out of Federal street probably caused its disappearance.

In the sketches that follow, after 1700 the titles and deeds referred to pertain to the houses and lands under and adjoining, and not always to the whole lot, the design being, after that date, to show the history of the houses then standing.

Waller Price Houses. This corner lot belonged to Rev. Hugh Peters. After Mr. Peters' return to England, his attorney Charles Gott of Salem, for forty shillings, conveyed it to John Horne of Salem, by a deed in which it was described as "near the meeting house in Salem, on the north side thereof, running along the highway, being the land of Mr. Hugh Peters, provided if Mr. Peters shall return to New England in person and repay the said John all charges of building or otherways bestowed upon the said land that then Mr. Peters shall have the land again," Dec. 28, 1652.* Mr. Horne apparently sold, before 1659, the eastern part of the lot on which Capt. Walter Price of Salem, merchant, built a dwelling house; and Mr. Horne built a house upon the corner, in which he lived until just before 1: 10 mo: 1659, when he conveyed the house and lot to Mr. Price, for one hundred and fifty pounds, it "being the corner in the same street near unto the meeting house."† Mr. Price died June 5, 1674, aged sixty-one. In his will he had devised to his wife Elizabeth all his real estate for her life, and then to his son John, who was requested to live with his mother. She died, however, Nov. 11, following. The inventory of his estate shows that he was possessed of both houses on the corner "near the meeting house," stable, etc., which were appraised at four hundred pounds. A writer of many years ago has stated that the large house on the corner was similar to the residence of Governor Bradstreet, which stood farther down the street, and was an excellent specimen of the early aristocratic mansion.

Capt. John Price, who succeeded his father on this corner, was a merchant. He died Aug. 13, 1691, aged forty-six; and upon the decease of his widow, Sarah Price, Mar. 25, 1698, the estate descended to Maj. Walter Price, their only child that survived. According to the inventory of the estate of Capt. John Price a dwelling house, barn and land were valued at three hundred and fifty pounds, and land and "an old house where Rich^d Mayber lives near the meeting house on w^{ch} y^r is an execution," seven pounds. Major Price was a merchant and lived here. For five hundred pounds, he conveyed the buildings and land, "near the meeting house, town house and watch house," to John Pratt of Salem, innholder, Sept. 1, 1727.* Mr. Pratt died March 12, 1729-30, aged sixty-five, having devised all his estate to his wife Margaret, with power to dispose of it, but if she did not dispose of it it should be equally divided among children at her decease. In 1733, the estate was in the possession of Philemon Sanders and others. It is said that she removed to this house in 1747, and kept an inn to the time of her death, which occurred March 22, 1759, when she was eighty-seven years old. She devised the estate to her daughters Abigail, Hannah, Lydia and Maverick Pratt. Lydia probably died young, Maverick died, unmarried, Jan. 23, 1763, aged forty-nine, having devised her interest in the estate to her sisters Hannah Pratt and Abigail Pratt. Hannah Pratt died, unmarried, Feb. 9, 1765, aged fifty-eight, having devised the estate to her sister Abigail: and Abigail Pratt died, unmarried, between Sept. 18, and Oct. 15, following, having devised the estate to her sister Ruth Jeffry, wife of James Jeffry, Ruth to support Abigail's negro man, Peter, as long as he lived. Mrs. Jeffry, then of Salem and a widow, for seven hundred and eighty pounds, conveyed the lot to Benjamin Pickman, esq., Dr. William Stearns and Jonathan Waldo, esq., all of Salem, May 10, 1792,† the buildings having been taken down that year.

Josiah Wolcott and Edward Lyde Houses. These lots were the homestead of John Woodbury, one of the old planters, who died in 1641, leaving wife Ann. He left a will, which was duly proved by his widow, but neither the original nor a copy of it is known to be in existence. His widow Ann Woodbury conveyed these lots and "a small dwelling house," formerly built thereon, in Salem, near unto the meeting house," for thirty pounds, to George Corwin of Salem, a merchant, 1: 6 mo: 1660.* Mr. Corwin apparently moved the little house back, and erected near the street a large new house. He died possessed of the estate Jan. 6, 1685, having, in his will, devised to his wife Elizabeth during her widowhood "one-third of the mansion house, garden and orchard where Captain Corwin did last live in Salem." The inventory of his estate shows that in the house there was a hall, with a closet in it, a leanto, with a closet in it, a parlor, on the floor of which was a leather carpet, a hall chamber, parlor chamber, with a closet in it, a porch chamber and a garret. July 4, 1685, the heirs agreed that the western halves of each of the houses and western end of the lot should belong to Josiah Wolcott in right of his deceased wife Penelope, daughter of the deceased, and the eastern halves of each of the houses and the whole of the barn and the remainder of the lot should belong to Edward Lyde in right of his deceased wife Susannah, daughter of the deceased. The division of the homestead occurred Dec. 25, 1696.† The division was confirmed by Jonathan Corwin of Salem, esq., son of Capt. George Corwin, the deceased, Margaret Corwin, widow of John Corwin, of Salem, deceased, son of Captain Corwin, for herself and for her children, for whom she was guardian, James Russell of Charlestown, esq., and his wife Abigail, daughter of Capt. Corwin, William Brown, of Salem, esq., who married Hannah, daughter of Captain Corwin, and Edward Lyde of Boston, merchant, who married Susannah, daughter of Captain Corwin, Dec. 1, 1701.‡

Mr. Lyde lived in Boston, being a merchant, and, for two hundred pounds conveyed his part of the estate to Timothy Lindall of Salem, merchant, Jan. 1, 1702.§ Mr. Lindall removed to Boston, and, for one hundred and sixty-five pounds, conveyed the estate to John Pickering of Salem, yeoman, Sept. 30, 1707.* Apparently Mr. Pickering conveyed the two halves of houses to Mr. Wolcott, who owned the other halves, and the latter removed the houses so that they stood wholly upon his own lot.

Mr. Wolcott was a judge of the court of common pleas, and died in 1729, administration being granted on his estate to his widow Mary Wolcott April 17, 1729. The estate descended to their son John Wolcott. A dispute relative to the title was settled in the superior court of judicature in October, 1730, apparently on the ground that Josiah Wolcott had only a right by curtesy. The parties in whose favor the decree was made were Elizabeth Corwen, singlewoman, Lucy Guinn, widow, Peter Thacher, clerk, and his wife Hannah, Abiel Walley, merchant, and his wife Margaret, all of Boston. For one hundred pounds, they released to John Wolcott of Salem, gentleman, "our one-fourth of ye moiety of ye mansion house and lands in Salem, formerly ye estate of Capt. George Curwin, deceased, lately in ye tenancy of Josiah Wolcott, esq., deceased, by ye curtesy," Dec. 20, 1733.† The little house was probably gone.

John Wolcott lived here. He graduated at Harvard college in 1721, and was high sheriff of Essex county. He died in 1747, aged forty-five, administration being granted to his widow Elizabeth Wolcott July 16, 1747. Mrs. Wolcott apparently died a few months later, at Mr. Wolcott's mother, widow Mary Wolcott, was appointed administratrix de bonis non March 17, 1748. As administratrix, Mrs. Wolcott, who was then of Boston, conveyed the Wolcott mansion house and lot to James King of Salem, blacksmith, Jan. 31, 1752.* Mr. King, who was then a shopkeeper, for two hundred pounds, conveyed the western part of his estate to his son James King, jr., of Salem, gentleman, Aug. 26, 1788.* Mr. King died in 1789, possessed of the remainder of the lot. Administration was granted on his estate to his son James, then a merchant, July 17, 1789. The deceased's part of the house and lot was then valued at one hundred and seventy pounds. The estate was insolvent, and the administrator conveyed the land and buildings, for one hundred and seventy-two pounds, to John Norris of Salem, merchant, Nov. 8, 1793;† and immediately Mr. Norris conveyed the same to Mr. King, personally.‡

In 1793, Benjamin Pickman wrote that a small house was then standing on the lot and occupied by Mrs. Brown, who sold English goods; and that the large house which was ready to fall down, was occupied by Capt. William Hathorne, who kept a huckster's shop in front.

James King conveyed the house and lot to Jacob P. Rust Sept. 16, 1800;‡ and the house was removed that year.

Margaret Williams House and Estate of Bartholomew Gedney Lot. These lots constituted the estate of Thomas Weeks of Salem, who died in 1656, his will, dated 9: 7 mo: 1655, being proved 24: 4: 1656. The dwelling house, with a shop, barn and the lot was then appraised at thirty-five pounds. By the provisions of the will, one-third of the estate went to his wife Alice, and the remainder to his daughters Bethiah and Hannah. The widow married Nicholas Potter of Salem, bricklayer, and died 26: 11: 1658. Feb. 21, 1659, Mr. Potter, for eighty pounds and a pair of shoes yearly "so long as I shall live," conveyed the house, barn, orchard, etc., to Isaac Williams of Salem, cordwinder.§ Mr. Williams died in 1696, having, in his will, dated Jan. 21, 1695, and proved Nov. 9, 1696, devised his real estate to his wife Margaret. She died, his widow, in October, 1702, having devised to "my son Isaac Williams ye south chamber of my dwelling house with ye garret over it," porch, one-half of the cellar, and one-half of the land to the northward of the leanto that joins the house, Isaac to have the eastern part. The remainder of the house and land she devised to her son Ebenezer Williams. Ebenezer lived in Salem, probably in this house, being a cordwainer, and, for fifty pounds, conveyed his interest in the estate to his brother Isaac Williams of Salem Jan. 25, 1708-9.* Samuel Browne, esq., of Salem, for one hundred and thirty pounds, conveyed the "old dwelling house" and land to John Ward of Salem, wig-maker, July 24, 1729.† How the title passed from Isaac Williams to Samuel Browne the records have not revealed. The house was gone before Aug. 13, 1742, when Mr. Ward conveyed the lot to Michael Moore.‡

The lot marked "Estate of Bartholomew Gedney" apparently became the property of Bethiah Weeks, who subsequently married John Archer of Salem, cooper. Mr. Archer conveyed the lot, for thirty-two pounds, to Thomas Maule of Salem, merchant, Dec. 8, 1691.§ Mr. Maule, for thirty-three pounds, conveyed it to Maj. Bartholomew Gedney of Salem, merchant, Feb. 20, 1691-2.|| Major Gedney erected a shop upon the lot, and died possessed of it Feb. 28, 1697-8. This shop and lot were then appraised at fifty pounds. The heirs made an agreement for the division of the estate Nov. 3, 1701, and this lot and shop was assigned to his daughter Bethiah Gedney who subsequently married Francis Willoughby.

Estate of Deliverance Parkman House ("Ship Tavern"). This lot was the estate of John Gedney, sr., as early as 1660. He conducted a tavern here from a very early date, probably some years prior to 1660, and it was widely known at first as "Gedney's," and subsequently as "Ship Tavern." The early quarterly county court was held for many years in one of the chambers of this house. Mr. Gedney died in 1688, having devised the estate, one-half to Susanna Gedney, widow of his son John Gedney, and her children by her said husband, and the other half to his son Col. Bartholmew Gedney. Colonel Gedney died Feb. 28, 1697-8, possessed of his half of Ship Tavern and the land belonging to it, etc. Samuel Gedney, Hannah Grafton, Lydia Corwine, Bethiah Gedney and Deborah Gedney, all of Salem, children of Col. Bartholmew Gedney, conveyed one-half of Ship Tavern in Salem, now in the occupation of Mr. Francis Ellis, to their uncle John's widow, Susannah Parkman, wife of Deliverance Parkman, of Salem, William Gedney of Salem, merchant, and Nathaniel Gedney of Salem, mariner, Dec. 10, 1698.* Fourteen days later, William Gedney of Salem, merchant, and Nathaniel Gedney of Salem, mariner, only surviving children of Mrs. Susannah Parkman, conveyed to Deliverance Parkman of Salem, merchant, one-half of ye Ship Tavern and land belonging to it now in the tenure and occupation of Francis Ellis.† Mr. Parkman died Nov. 15, 1715, and the estate descended to his daughter Mehitable, who married Rev. George Curwen. Upon her death, Nov. 13, 1718, it descended to her two surviving sons, Samuel and George Curwen. Samuel, being the eldest, had a double share; and George, who lived in Salem, being called a gentleman, conveyed to his brother Samuel his third of ye Ship Tavern and barn and the land about them Nov. 1, 1740,‡ the tavern being at the time under lease to Mrs. Pratt. Samuel Curwen of Salem, gentleman, for fifteen hundred pounds, conveyed the estate to John Turner of Salem, esquire, June 11, 1745.§ In 1748, the ancient hostelry was taken down by Mr.

Turner, and a fine house erected upon the lot. Mrs. Pratt, who had conducted the tavern since her husband's decease in 1730, removed to her house on the corner now occupied by Neal and Newhall's block, and, it is said, continued in the business of innkeeping.

Benjamin Browne House. Peter Palfrey, one of the old planters of Salem owned this corner very early. He removed to Reading about 1651, and was a yeoman. He conveyed this dwelling house and lot to Mr. William Browne of Salem, merchant, for forty-two pounds, May 7, 1661.* Mr. Browne may have erected the house that subsequently stood upon the lot. He died Jan. 20, 1687-8, having been one of Sir Edmund Andros' council the preceding year. In his will he devised this house "I now live in" and the land belonging to it to his son Benjamin. Benjamin Browne was a merchant, and lived here. He died Dec. 7, 1708, having devised the estate to Benjamin Browne, son of his nephew Capt. John Browne. The last named Benjamin Browne was an esquire, and lived here. He died Feb. 3, 1749-50, having devised the estate to his three children, John Browne, Hannah Browne, and Eunice Browne. The widow of the deceased married a Boston gentleman the next year, and removed thither. The house was subsequently occupied by Rev. John Sparhawk, who died here in 1755. The house was afterward occupied by Richard Lechmere, esq., Andrew Oliver, esq., and John Turner, esq. Hannah and Eunice Browne apparently released their interest in the estate to their brother John Browne. John Browne lived in Boston, being a merchant, and, for six thousand six hundred and sixty-six dollars, conveyed the land and buildings to William Goodhue of Salem, innholder, Nov. 29, 1780.† Mr. Goodhue opened a tavern here, and subsequently he let the house for the same purpose to Samuel Robinson and Capt. Benjamin Webb successively. The latter conducted there in 1793 the most noted tavern in Salem. It was called the Sun Tavern. Mr. Goodhue conveyed the estate to Jeremiah Allen, esq., of Boston, Nov. 7, 1796,* and Mr. Allen, for seven thousand five hundred dollars, conveyed it to William Gray, jr., of Salem, merchant, the house being still occupied by Captain Webb as a tavern, Dec. 9, 1796.† This was the famous "Billy" Gray and he took down the old house and erected an elegant residence upon the lot.

Estate of John Turner House. The lots of Elizabeth Priest, Samuel Beadle and Robert Gray and this lot constituted, in 1651, one lot which was owned by Henry Bartholmew. The Elizabeth Priest lot belonged years before to Thomas Oliver, and to Samuel Archard of Salem, marshall, 26: 4: 1651, when, for three pounds, the latter conveyed them to Henry Bartholmew.‡ Mr. Bartholmew already owned the Samuel Beadle and Robert Gray lots and this lot at that time. Mr. Bartholmew lived in the house upon this lot, and, for one hundred and ten pounds, conveyed this house and all of said lots, then constituting one, to Robert Gray of Salem 13: 7: 1655.§ Mr. Gray died in 1662; and his house, barn, kitchen and land under and adjoining were appraised at three hundred pounds. In his will, he devised that part of the lot which was formerly Samuel Archard's to his daughter Elizabeth Gray, who subsequently married John Priest of Salem. He devised the Samuel Beadle lot and that part of this lot north of the dashes to his son Joseph Gray of Salem, gunsmith; and, for fifteen pounds, the latter conveyed it to his step-father Capt. Nicholas Manning of Salem, gunsmith, July 8, 1673.|| Mr. Manning, for eight pounds, and on the same day, conveyed the Samuel Beadle lot to Samuel Beadle of Salem.¶

Mr. Gray had devised his house and land around it to his wife Elizabeth. She married, secondly, Capt. Nicholas Manning, who, for fifty-two pounds, mortgaged the house and lot to John Browne, sr., ruling elder of ye church of Salem and Henry Bartholmew of Salem, merchant, overseers and feoffees in trust for the children of Robert Gray, March 14, 1663-4;* and the mortgage was foreclosed.

Mr. Gray devised the Robert Gray lot to his son Robert with a "kitchen" upon it, and the lot was set off to him 28: 9: 1679. Captain Manning who had occupied the premises for many years had removed the "kitchen" and built a shop in its place, and the captain was held to pay to Robert five pounds, which was the difference in value between the "kitchen" and the shop.‡

Elizabeth Manning (formerly the widow Gray), Thomas Walton and Mary Gray, all of Salem, for eighty-two pounds and ten shillings, conveyed the house and lot to Lott Gourding of Boston, mariner, Sept. 29, 1681.† Mr. Gourding, for one hundred and ten pounds, conveyed the dwelling house, shop, garden and orchard to John Barton of Salem, surgeon, Oct. 16, 1682.§ Doctor Barton died of yellow fever, at Barbadoes, in 1695, and his widow and administratrix, Lydia Barton, released the estate to Capt. John Turner of Salem, merchant, Feb. 24, 1697.|| Doctor Barton had mortgaged the property to Captain Turner's father. John Turner, also of Salem, merchant, and the mortgage was foreclosed by taking possession. This deed was given to perfect the record title, as the mortgage had been lost. Captain Turner died, and administration was granted on his estate July 28, 1692. In the appraisal of his estate this house and lot were valued at one hundred and sixty-five pounds. In the division of the estate, March 22,

1696-7, one-fourth of the house and lot was assigned to Benjamin Gerrish of Salem, merchant, in right of his wife Elizabeth, a daughter of the deceased, and three-fourths to Freestone Turner, another daughter of the deceased. For twenty-five pounds and ten shillings, Mr. Gerrish released the quarter interest to Freestone Turner's husband, Capt. Walter Price of Salem, merchant, March 6, 1704-5,* the estate being then in the tenure and occupation of widow Barton. For one hundred and fifty pounds, Mr. and Mrs. Price conveyed the dwelling-house, shop, orchard and garden to Habbakuk Gardner of Salem, mariner, June 17, 1707.† Mr. Gardner removed to Boston, and for two hundred pounds, mortgaged the house and lot to Benjamin Browne of Salem, esq., Aug. 11, 1738.‡ The estate was at that time in the tenure of Benjamin Woodbridge, and in 1745, when it still belonged to Mr. Gardner, the tenant was John Punchard. The mortgage was probably foreclosed by Mr. Browne soon after, and he died possessed of the estate Feb. 3, 1749-50. Mr. Browne, in his will, devised the property to his three children, John, Hannah and Eunice Browne. Of these children, John Browne of Boston, merchant, and Eunice Plaisted of Salem, widow, with the consent of Nathaniel Balston, esq., of Boston and wife Eunice, for one hundred and sixty pounds, conveyed the estate to Jonathan Webb, jr., of Salem, mariner, which was then in the latter's occupation, Oct. 30, 1758.§ Mr. Webb, for two hundred and fifty-five pounds, conveyed the house and lot to his son Benjamin Webb of Salem, coaster, Feb. 28, 1791.|| Mr. Webb became a merchant and died in 1815. His widow, Mary Webb, and his heirs, Samuel Webb, jr., merchant, Jonathan Webb, esq., and widow Mary Barton, all of Salem, Nathaniel W. Williams of Beverly and wife

Priscilla, in her right, conveyed the estate to William Potter, innholder, and Jonathan Ward, sadler, both of Salem, April 28, 1824.* Mr. Potter released his interest in the property to Mr. Ward Nov. 1, 1824.† Mr. Ward conveyed it to Nehemiah Cleaveland of Topsfield, Benjamin Hale of Newbury, Thomas Haven of Portsmouth, N. H., esquire, and Ephraim Wildes of Boston, esquire, Nov. 8, 1824.‡ These grantees conveyed it to the Eastern Stage Company June 15, 1825.§ The Eastern Stage Company conveyed the estate to William Manning of Salem, gentleman, Feb. 13, 1828.|| Mr. Manning conveyed it to the Mercantile Bank Nov. 27, 1830;¶ and the bank conveyed it to Joseph S. Leavitt of Salem April 2, 1841. The property is still owned by Mr. Leavitt's estate.

JOHN TURNER HOUSE.

The old house is still standing on the original lot, but is a part only of the large old house now there. It is the northeastern quarter, and two stories high. A cut of the house as it now appears is given above.

Robert Gray House. This was a part of the lot of which Robert Gray died seized in 1662. In his will Mr. Gray devised it with the "kitchen" thereon to his son Robert, and it was assigned to him by metes and bounds 28: 9: 1679.

Capt. Nicholas Manning, who had married the widow of Mr. Gray, had removed the "kitchen" and built a shop on the lot in its place. Captain Manning was held to pay to Mr. Gray five pounds, which was the difference in value between the "kitchen" and shop.* Mr. Gray erected a dwelling house thereon, and lived in it. He was a gunsmith, and had his shop on the southeast corner of this lot. He died in 1725, having devised his house, barn and land adjoining to his wife Sarah for her life, and then to his sons Samuel and Benjamin and daughter Sarah three-fourths of it, and the other fourth to Robert, William and Abigail, minor children of the deceased's son John Gray, to whom he bequeathed only five shillings, "for reasons too sorrowful here to express." The dwelling house, barn and land around them were appraised at one hundred and fifty pounds. The daughter Sarah married Michael Driver of Salem, mariner, and for thirty-seven pounds and ten shillings, they conveyed their one-fourth interest in the estate to her brother Samuel Gray of Salem, gunsmith, Feb. 3, 1727.† Benjamin Gray of Salem, gunsmith, released his quarter interest, for a similar consideration, to his brother Samuel Gray Dec. 5, 1729.‡ Samuel Gray died possessed of the estate in 1730, and his widow Elizabeth Gray conveyed one-quarter of the mansion house and land around it to Robert Gray of Salem, shipwright, probably a son of Samuel Gray, June 12, 1749;§ and on the same day the parties divided the house and lot, Mrs. Gray taking the easterly end of the house and Robert the westerly end, the division line passing through the stack of chimneys.|| Robert Gray was called a blacksmith in this partition. He died in the winter of 1769-70, possessed of the westerly end of the house and lot, which was then improved by widow Mary

Gray. This part was assigned to Ruth Gray, widow of the deceased, as a portion of her dower; and March 4, 1771, she conveyed it to Capt. Eleazer Moses of Salem, sail-maker.* Mr. Moses died in 18—, and his widow Sarah Moses bought his part of widow Mary Deal, widow Sally Pitman, James Crowell, mariner, and his wife Hannah, in her right, Benjamin Hale, mariner, and his wife Betsey, in her right, and Rebecca Moses, singlewoman, all of Salem, heirs of Benjamin Moses of Salem, deceased, and John Hunt, mariner, and his wife Deliverance (who had a dower right, being widow of a son of Benjamin, deceased), and Moses Yell, mariner, and his wife Rebecca (who had a dower right), all of Salem, and Moses Yell in behalf of his children, Betsey, Moses, Mary, Abigail, Martha and Ann Yell, grandchildren of said Benjamin, deceased, Nov. 1, 1813;† and on the same day she conveyed it to Benjamin Webb of Salem, innholder.‡ In these latter conveyances the house is called an "old dwelling house," the consideration being small.

The easterly end was conveyed by the administrators of the estate of widow Elizabeth Gray, who had died possessed of that part, for sixty pounds, to Benjamin Ward of Salem, shoreman, April 30, 1770.§ Captain Ward died in 1774, possessed of this part of the house and lot, which part was then appraised at one hundred pounds. The next conveyance found recorded of this portion of the house is that of William Gray of Middleton, yeoman, to Samuel Gray, jr., of Salem, cordwainer, the deed conveying two-fifth parts, March 4, 1795.|| Mr. Gray conveyed it to Benjamin Webb, who owned the westerly part of the house, July 9, 1801.¶ Isaac White of Boston, merchant, and Ebenezer

Beckford of Salem, esquire, executors of the will of widow Deborah Palfray of Salem, deceased, conveyed to Mr. Webb, who was then of Salem, yeoman, certain portions of the easterly part of the house and lot Dec. 1, 1809.* Probably the house was taken down by Mr. Webb.

Samuel Beadle House. This was a part of the lot of which Robert Gray died seized in 1662; and was the eastern half of the quarter acre devised by Mr. Gray to his son Joseph Gray of Salem, gunsmith. For fifteen pounds, Joseph conveyed it to his stepfather Nicholas Manning July 8, 1673.† On the same day, for eight pounds, Mr. Manning conveyed this portion of the lot to Samuel Beadle of Salem.‡ Mr. Beadle built a house upon the lot, and died possessed of it in 1706. In the division of his estate, Aug. 2, 1708, the house and lot were assigned to his son Lemman Beadle of Salem, carver. Lemman conveyed the same to his mother Hannah Beadle Aug. 6, 1708.§ Mrs. Hannah Beadle died in 1736, having devised the estate to her daughters Hannah Beadle and Sarah Elvins and the latter's husband Richard Elvins. Hannah probably released her interest to Mr. Elvins, who lived in Salem, being a baker. Mr. Elvins conveyed the house and land, for two hundred and fifty pounds, to Joseph Symonds, jr., joiner, and Jonathan Very, jr., cordwainer, both of Salem, Sept. 29, 1743.|| Mr. Very bought out Mr. Symonds' interest and died in 1768, having in his will devised the real estate to his wife Mary for her life, and the remainder to his son Jonathan Very, daughters Abigail Very, Mary Symonds, Elizabeth Cheever, Martha Pickman and Bethiah Archer, and three grandchildren Joseph Pratt, Susannah Pratt and William Cook. The house and lot were occupied by the deceased's son, Jonathan Very, who died possessed of the estate in 1823. It was then appraised at fourteen hundred dollars. The heirs conveyed it to Joseph S. Leavitt by various deeds: By William Osborn, jr., of Salem, stablekeeper, and his wife Ann H., one-fifth and four-sixths of one-fifth, the latter fractional interest having been purchased of other heirs in 1832, March 19, 1834;* James Odell and wife Sally, in her right, and Benjamin Cox and wife Elizabeth, in her right, all of Salem, two-fifths, March 19, 1834;† Samuel Dowst and wife Hannah, and Elizabeth Dowst, one tenth, June 21, 1834;‡ Jeremiah S. Batchelder of Boston, housewright, and his wife Abigail, in her right, one-twentieth, July 1, 1834;§ William Peele and Eliza Peele, in her right, one-thirtieth, Nov. 4, 1834;|| John Cunningham of Gloucester, trader, one-twentieth, Feb. 19, 1835;¶ and Eben. C. Stodder of Nashville, Tenn., and wife Mary, in her right, one-thirtieth, Oct. 1, 1838. The house was taken down by Mr. Leavitt in 1858.

Elizabeth Priest Lot. This was the lot devised by Robert Gray, who died in 1662, to his daughter Elizabeth, who married John Priest in 1672. Mr. and Mrs. Priest conveyed the western part of the lot, west of the dashes, to their daughter Elizabeth Priest of Salem, singlewoman, May 18, 1699.†† Mrs. Priest died before the year was out, and so the title to the remainder of the lot also came to Elizabeth Priest, the daughter, she being the only child and heir. She owned the lot until 1718.

Daniel Epes Lot. The lots of Daniel Epes, William Browne, Israel Porter, Benjamin Hooper and Town of Salem constituted "Governor Endecott's field" of the first settlement. Governor Endecott died March 15, 1665, having devised his houses and ground at Salem to his wife Elizabeth. At her decease, her son Zerubbabel Endicott was her only child, and inherited this field.

The part of this Daniel Epes lot south of the dashes was the acre that Zerubbabel Endecott, then of Salem, gentleman, conveyed to his son John Endecott of Salem, for love, Aug. 9, 1678;* and John conveyed it, for thirty-six pounds, to William Browne, jr., of Salem, esquire, Aug. 14, 1678.† Mr. Browne bought of Zerubbabel Endecott the Town of Salem lot and that part of this lot lying north of the dashes June 5, 1679.‡ Mr. Browne conveyed the whole of this lot, for sixty-six pounds, to Daniel Epes of Salem, schoolmaster, March 26, 1698.§ Mr. Epes owned it after 1700.

Town of Salem (Jail). This lot was a part of the "Governor Endecott field," and belonged to Zerubbabel Endecott June 5, 1679, when he conveyed this lot, and that part of the Daniel Epes lot lying north of the dashes, for thirty pounds, to Capt. William Browne, jr., of Salem.‡ Mr. Browne conveyed this lot to the town of Salem, for the site of the new jail or prison, May 20, 1684;|| and in the same year the new jail was built. Here the persons accused of witchcraft in 1692 were confined, and those that perished went from this prison in the cart to the place of execution. The jail was rebuilt in 1763, some of the timbers being used in the construction of the new building. The residence of Abner C. Goodell, esq., occupies the site of the ancient gaol, and it is stated that some of the timbers of 1692 are contained in the present house.

Estate of Thomas Putnam, John Cromwell and Job Swinerton Lots. These lots constituted, before 1660, one lot, which was owned by John Symonds of Salem, joiner. The southeastern corner of the Estate of Thomas Putnam lot, within the dashes, belonging to Henry Skerry, sr., of Salem, cordwinder, April 23, 1660, when, for ten shillings, he conveyed it to Robert Temple of Salem, tailor.* For thirty shillings, Mr. Temple conveyed it to Lt. Thomas Putnam of Salem, farmer, Aug. 10, 1660.† Mr. Symonds gave the rest to his son-in-law Job Swinerton, jr., before 1665, but apparently no deed passed between them. Mr. Symonds and Mr. Swinerton joined in a deed of the remainder of the Estate of Thomas Putnam lot to Lieutenant Putnam March 8, 1665.‡ Mr. Putnam died May 24, 1699, and the lot came into the hands of Dea. Edward Putnam, who owned it a number of years.

The John Cromwell lot was a part of the John Symonds lot, which he gave to his son-in-law Job Swinderton, jr., of Salem, and which the latter conveyed, for ten pounds, to Jacob Barney, sr., of Salem Nov. 29, 1667.§ Mr. Barney died April 28, 1673; and in the division of his estate, 28:4:1673, this lot was assigned to his son-in-law John Cromwell, who had married his daughter Hannah. The lot was then appraised at nine pounds. Mr. Cromwell died Sept. 30, 1700, possessed of the lot.

The Job Swinerton lot was a part of the lot given to him by his father-in-law John Symonds; and Mr. Swinerton died in 1701, possessed of it.

John Mackmallin House. This lot and a house that then stood upon it probably belonged to John Symonds before 28:11:1652, when Ellinor Felton of Salem, for seven pounds, conveyed the estate to William Maston of Salem.|| Mr. Maston, for thirty shillings, conveyed the lot, the house apparently being gone, to Allester Mackmallin of Salem on or before 5:2:1661 (the date of the acknowledgement of the dead).¶ Mr. Mackmallin probably erected a new house upon the lot in that year; and died possessed of the estate in 1679. The house and lot were then appraised at forty pounds. His widow Elizabeth Mackmallin married, secondly John Baxter, and continued to live in the house as late as 1694. Mr. and Mrs. Mackmallin had two sons, Alexander Mackmallin, chairmaker or turner, and John Mackmallin, carpenter, both of Salem, and Alexander released to John the southeastern portion of the lot, six rods, for four pounds, May 14, 1694,* having probably released to John another part of the lot previously. John Mackmallin probably conveyed the house and the land on which it stood to Alexander, after 1702, as the latter, for eighteen pounds, conveyed the estate to widow Mary Grant of Salem Jan. 21, 1719-20.† She conveyed the house and lot, for twenty pounds, to James Grant of Salem, gentleman, Jan. 4, 1737,‡ she being the occupant of the house at that time. Mr. Grant conveyed the same estate, for fifteen pounds, to Benjamin Bates of Salem, fisherman and mariner, Sept. 16, 1743.§ Mr. Bates, for twenty pounds, conveyed it to his son Benjamin Bates, jr., of Salem, mariner, June 17, 1751;|| and the son, for twenty pounds, conveyed it to William Meachem of Salem, mariner, Nov. 24, 1752.¶ Mr. Meachem was sued by widow Mary Williams of Salem who obtained judgment against him, and this house and lot was set off to her in satisfaction of the judgment March 24, 1757. Mrs. Williams, for sixty pounds, conveyed the house and lot to John Brown of Salem, mariner, Jan. 1, 1778.†† How much longer the house stood is not clear.

Joshua Rea Lot. This was a part of the original John Smith lot, and it was probably conveyed by Thomas West to Joshua Rea about 1665. Mr. Rea was its owner in 1700.

John Guppy House. Reuben Guppy owned and occupied this house and lot as early as 1658. He apparently conveyed the estate to his son John Guppy in or before 1681; and died about 1685. John Guppy also lived here, and upon his decease, in 17—, the estate descended to his daughter Bethiah, wife of Thomas Marston of Salem. The house was sold to William Hacker before 1779, and was probably removed from the lot soon afterward. Mr. and Mrs. Marston, who were then of Boston, for three pounds, six shillings and eight pence, conveyed the lot to Benjamin Daland of Salem, truckman, Feb. 27, 1769.*

Estate of Timothy Lindall House. This lot was a part of the lot that belonged to John Smith of Salem, tailor, before Jan. 28, 1658, when he conveyed it to Thomas Hale of Salem.† Mr. Hale was a glover, and conveyed the lot to Thomas West of Salem, planter, March 10, 1658-9.‡ Abraham Toppan of Salem, tailor, owned it Oct. 3, 1666, when he sold it to William Dounton of Salem, carpenter.§ In an action against Mr. Dounton, Philip Cromwell of Salem, slaughterer, recovered judgment, which was satisfied by this lot being set off to him. Mr. Cromwell, for sixteen pounds, conveyed it to John Henderson of Salem, mariner, Dec. 30, 1681.|| Mr. Henderson built a house on the lot and lived here. Oct. 29, 1684, a sad fatality occurred in this house. Rebecca Booth was killed by the careless discharge of a gun in the hands of John Dounton, son of William Dounton, who lived in the next house.¶ Mr. Henderson mortgaged the house and land to Timothy Lindall of Salem, merchant, for one hundred and seven pounds and eighteen shillings, payable in fish, Feb. 16, 1690.* Mr. Lindall died, and the mortgage was foreclosed by his executors in December, 1699. They conveyed the estate, for forty pounds, to the mortgagor's son, Peter Henderson of Salem, mariner, June 17, 1700.† Peter Henderson died in 1722, having devised his house and lot to his wife Hannah for her life, and then one-third to his son William and two-thirds to his son Daniel. William Henderson was of Salem, cordwainer, and he conveyed his interest in the estate to his brother Daniel Henderson of Salem, mariner, Nov. 24, 1733.‡ Daniel Henderson and his mother, for sixty pounds, conveyed an undivided half of the lot and the eastern end of the house to Lois, wife of William Pemberton of Boston, mariner, May 7, 1739.§ The next owner, as far as the registry of deeds shows, was the mother of Thomas Bright and widow Abial Hooper. How their mother came into the possession of the estate, or who she was, has not been learned. Mrs. Hooper lived in Salem in 1793, but her mother and brother Thomas had died and the house was gone.

Thomas Flint House. This house and lot belonged to John Smith of Salem, tailor, before Jan. 28, 1658, when he conveyed the house and lot to Thomas Hale of Salem, glover.¶ Mr. Hale conveyed the estate to Thomas West of Salem, planter, March 10, 1658-9.¶ As far as the records have revealed the next owner of the house and lot was Abraham Toppan of Salem, tailor, who, for thirty-seven pounds, conveyed them to William Dounton of Salem, house-carpenter, Oct. 3, 1666. For ten pounds, Mr. Dounton, having been appointed keeper of the house of correction next to the prison, and removing thereto, conveyed the house and lot to his son-in-law Thomas Flint of Salem Jan. 10, 1693-4.* Captain Flint was a husbandman, and lived in Salem Village, when he died, possessed of the lot, the house being gone, in 1721.

Estate of Benjamin Hooper House. This was a portion of the Governor Endecott field, so called, Governor Endecott having died possessed of it in 1665. He devised his estate to his wife Elizabeth, and at her decease, her only child and heir then living, Zerubbabel Endecott, inherited this field. Zerubbabel Endecott lived in Salem, being called a gentleman, and, for twenty-five pounds, conveyed this lot to Benjamin Hooper of Salem, cordwainer, Oct. 27, 1682.† Mr. Hooper immediately erected the house now standing upon the lot.

The original portion extends only as far as the second story overhangs the first, the large chimney being at the eastern end. The fireplace was one of the largest of its time, and was removed many years ago. The spaces between the upright timbers are filled with bricks set in clay, and laths split from the log are still found in the attic stairway. The timbers are heavy and of oak, the posts are shouldered and more ornamented than any others that the writer has ever seen.

The cut on the next page shows the end of one of the beams that support the overhanging second story.

Benjamin Hooper died in or before 1693; and after the death of his widow, after 1702, the estate came into the possession of his son Benjamin Hooper, who died in 1718. The lot and house were then valued at eighty pounds. The estate was released to his

The house, land, etc., were then appraised at three hundred and thirty pounds. In the division of his estate, the next year, the westerly end of the house and lot was assigned to his daughter Elizabeth Hooper, and the easterly end to the heirs of his son James Hooper, who had died subsequently to his father. The son James' part was assigned in the division of his estate, in 1785, to son James Hooper of Salem, boat-builder, who died in 179— possessed of the easterly end of the house and lot. His administrator, for ninety pounds, conveyed the same to Henry Rust, jr., of Salem, mariner, June 1, 1795.† Miss Hooper's end of the house and lot was conveyed by Samuel Symonds, shoreman, and John Leach, gentleman, both of Salem, for sixty-five pounds, to Jacob Very of Salem, mariner, Nov. 10, 1792.‡ Captain Very, for four hundred and fifty dollars, conveyed the same to Mr. Rust, March 30, 1797.§ Thus Mr. Rust became the owner of the entire estate. He removed to Norway, Me., and died in 1820, possessed of the house and lot. His executor, for twenty-eight hundred dollars, conveyed the estate to Miss Elizabeth Rowell of Salem May 11, 1822.* She married John Gardner of Salem fifteen days later; and died, his widow, intestate, and possessed of the property May 5, 1862, at the age of seventy-four. Her heirs were her children, George A. Gardner of Salem and Clara C., wife of Louis Thies of Cambridge. Mr. and Mrs. Thies conveyed her half of the estate to Eliza J., wife of Eleazer Hathaway of Salem, baker, Aug. 25, 1865.† George A. Gardner died May 28, 1865, at the age of thirty-eight, leaving two young children, Ann R. and Clara J. Gardner; and their guardian conveyed their half of the estate to Mrs. Hathaway Aug. 25, 1865.‡ Mrs. Hathaway died, a widow, Sept. 22, 1884, having devised the estate to her son George G. Hathaway, who still conducts the bakery business here that was carried on by his father prior to 1864.

Israel Porter Lot. This lot was also a portion of the Governor Endecott field, of which he died possessed in 1665. He devised the field to his wife Elizabeth; and at her decease it descended to her then only child and heir, Zerubbabel Endecott. He died possessed of it in 1684, having provided in his will that this and the next lot to the south should be improved by his executor and overseers to bring up the deceased's daughters Elizabeth and Mehitable Endecott. Capt. Israel Porter of Salem, one of the overseers named in the will, agreed to bring up Mehitable, and the executor and overseers conveyed this lot to him about 1690(?)§ Mehitable died in October, 1698, at the house of widow Hannah Weeden in Boston; having declared to Mr. Weeden and Susanna Gyles that she wished her sister Elizabeth Endecott to have her property, no other friend having come to her in her last sickness. Elizabeth married Nathaniel Gilbert of Boston, joiner, and Captain Porter conveyed this lot to her April 16, 1701.*

William Browne Lot. This was a part of the land devised by the will of Zurubbabel Endecott, as stated above, to be improved by his executor and overseers for the bringing up of his daughters Elizabeth and Mehitable. The executor and overseers conveyed this lot to Capt. William Browne of Salem March, 3, 1685 6,† he having agreed to bring up Elizabeth. Mr. Browne died possessed of the lot in 1716. Governor Endecott's town residence probably stood on this lot as late as 1659. He had removed to Boston in 1655.

Daniel Epes House.

This lot was a part of the Governor Endecott field. That part of the lot at the southwest corner within the dashes belonged to Thomas Oliver of Salem Jan. 11, 1667-8, when he conveyed it to Robert Gray of Salem, seaman.‡ This little corner belonged to Edmund Batter of Salem, merchant, April 18, 1679, when, for ten pounds, he conveyed it to Daniel Epes of Salem, school-master.§ The little strip, subsequently situated in the street, south of the dashes shown in the street, was conveyed, for thirty-five shillings, by Bridget Oliver, widow and administratrix of Thomas Oliver, lately deceased, to Mr. Epes June 14, 1681.* The remainder of the southern half of the lot, below the middle dashes, was conveyed by Zerubbabel Endecott, son of the governor, with Zerubbabel's son John, for fifteen pounds, to Mr. Epes June 20, 1681.† Upon the western end of this lot Mr. Epes built a large house, a picture of which, as it appeared about 1775, is given herewith.

The northern half of the lot was also a part of Governor Endecott's field, which descended to his son Zerubbabel Endecott from the latter's mother. Zerubbabel died in 1683-4, having devised this part of the lot to his son Zerubbabel Endecott of Salem, gentleman. The latter conveyed it to Joseph Read of Salem, husbandman, Nov. 24, 1684;‡ and, for twenty-four pounds, Mr. Read reconveyed it to Mr. Endecott Dec. 16, 1684.§ On the next day, for twenty-five pounds, Mr. Endecott conveyed it to Mr. Epes.¶

DANIEL EPES HOUSE.

Mr. Epes died in 1722, aged seventy-three, having devised the house and land around it to his wife Hannah for her life, and at her decease to his son Samuel Epes of Salem, mariner, who, for five hundred and fifty pounds, conveyed the same to Rev. John Sparhawk of Salem Aug. 3, 1737.¶ Mr. Sparhawk, for eight hundred pounds, conveyed the house and land about it to Timothy Orne of Salem, merchant, July 18, 1746.* Mr. Orne, for a similar consideration, conveyed the estate to his son Timothy Orne, jr., of Salem, merchant, Oct. 14, 1747.† Timothy Orne, jr., lived here several years, and after his removal the house was occupied by Thomas Somerville, a Scotsman, who conducted an inn here known as the "Sign of the Indian King." Mr. Somerville removed in the winter of 1767-8. Mr. Orne, the owner, died in the summer of 1767, having devised the house and land to his son Samuel Orne. The house and lot were then valued at three hundred pounds. Samuel Orne died in 1785, owning the estate, valued at four hundred and fifty pounds, which was then in the possession of Capt. Jonathan Webb, who then conducted a tavern here. Timothy Orne of Danvers, gentleman, widow Rebecca Cabot of Salem, widow Sarah Pickman and Rev. John Clarke of Boston and his wife Esther, brother and sisters of the deceased, released the estate to their sister Lois, wife of William Paine, esq., of St. John, N. B., Aug. 5, 1788.‡ Mr. and Mrs. Paine, who had removed to Salem, for five hundred pounds, conveyed the house and land to Deborah Saltmarsh of Salem, singlewoman and spinster, May 20, 1789.§ She subsequently married Capt. Zadock Buffinton of Salem, gentleman, and they conveyed the estate to his brother Nehemiah Buffinton of Salem, mariner, Aug. 19, 1789;|| and on the next day, Nehemiah Buffinton reconveyed it to Mr. and Mrs. Buffinton as joint tenants.¶ In 1792, Captain Buffinton by remodelling the house destroyed every vestige of its original style of architecture, raising it another story. Mr. and Mrs. Buffinton again conveyed the estate to Nehemiah Buffinton March 15, 1799;¶ and he conveyed the same to Zadock Buffinton alone, on the same day.* And on that day Captain Buffinton made his will, which was proved June 26th following. He devised the estate to his wife Deborah. The buildings and land were then appraised at six thousand dollars. Mrs. Buffinton remained a widow, and died in 1815, leaving the estate to Jonathan Buffinton of Boston, merchant, son of her husband. Capt. Zadock Buffinton conducted the "Ship Tavern" here for many years, being succeeded by others. Jonathan Buffinton, for five thousand dollars, conveyed the tavern, then known as Buffinton's tavern, stables, barn and land to Gilbert Newhall of Salem, horse-letter, May 14, 1822.† Mr. Newhall lived here, and carried on his stable business in the rear of his residence. He died Oct. 15, 1863, and his son Gilbert G. Newhall of Salem, merchant, died Dec. 5, 1863, the latter having devised his interest in his father's estate to his wife Eliza E. Newhall in trust. The heirs of Gilbert Newhall (the father), sons Benjamin S. Newhall of Danvers and Thomas A. Newhall of Philadelphia, Pa., and Gilbert G. Newhall's trustee, for twelve thousand dollars, conveyed the estate to Willard L. Bowdoin of Salem, dentist, Aug. 31, 1866.‡ Mr. Bowdoin conveyed it to John H. Goldsmith of Salem April 29, 1869.¶ Mr. Goldsmith conveyed it to Daniel C. Manning of Salem May 18, 1870;§ and Mr. Manning conveyed it to Charles S. Buffum of Salem July 31, 1871.¶ Mr. Buffum still owns the estate, having about 1885 removed the house to the rear of its original site, and using it for a stable. The original part of the east end, being then exposed, showed very ancient Dutch-like carved ornaments, painted red, in the gable.

Benjamin Ropes House. Thomas Oliver owned this lot and the small house upon it as early as 1661. He died possessed of the estate in 1679. It was then appraised at forty-five pounds. His widow Bridget Oliver continued to live here until 1681, and married Edward Bishop, being hanged as a witch in 1692. In the distribution of Mr. Oliver's estate, in 1693, this house and lot were assigned to his grandson Job Hilliard of Boston, cordwainer, it being valued at that time at thirty-eight pounds. Mr. Hilliard, for sixty-five pounds, conveyed the house and lot to Benjamin Ropes of Salem, cordwainer, Jan. 22, 1694-5.* Mr. Ropes, then of Salem, innholder, conveyed the house and lot, "my late homestead now in the possession of Mr. John Swinnerton" to Nathaniel Ropes of Salem, cordwainer, Nov. 6, 1716.† Mr. Ropes conveyed the house and land about it to John Shillaber of Salem, shopkeeper, Oct. 4, 1727.‡ Mr. Shillaber conveyed the same estate to his son-in-law John Skinner of Salem, worsted comber, March 26, 1729;§ and Mr. Skinner conveyed the estate to David Masury of Salem, mariner, for thirty pounds, Feb. 1, 1759.|| Mr. Masury probably removed the house before 1768.

John Ropes House. This was probably the home and lot of George Ropes of Salem, carpenter, 1661. He died in 1670; and was succeeded by his son, John Ropes, who died in June, 1722, this administrator conveyed the estate to his son John Ropes of Salem, cordwainer, July 18, 1732.¶ How long the house stood after that date is unknown.

Simon Orne House. This lot was a part of the homestead of Dea. John Orne, or Horne, a house carpenter, who died in 1684. The northerly and new end of his house, "in which I have dwelt for a long time," stood here, and he devised to his son Simon that end of the house and lot. After drawing his will in 1679, Deacon Orne gave possession of this and other parts of the homestead to his three sons. Simon subsequently removed to Newport, R. I., conveying, for seventy-five pounds, the house and lot to Josiah Orne of Salem, cordwainer, May 15, 1711.* The house was probably taken down some years later.

Benjamin Orne House. This lot was the middle portion of Dea. John Orne's homestead, and on it stood the southern and old end of the house in which he had lived a long time. He died in 1684; and in his will he had devised that end of the house and the lot to his son Benjamin Orne. After drawing his will in 1679, Deacon Orne gave possession of this part of his house and land to Benjamin, and the latter "pulled down" that part of the house before his father's death. Benjamin erected "a new dwelling house which is set about half a foot upon the land of Simonds' part, and part of the porch," etc. Benjamin Orne died possessed of this house and lot in 1702. They were valued at eighty-five pounds. In the division of his estate they were assigned to his son Benjamin Orne. How long the house stood after this time the records are not clear.

Joseph Orne House. This lot was the southern portion of the homestead of Dea. John Orne, who had erected a house upon it just before 1679: and he conveyed the house and lot to his son, Joseph Orne of Salem, cordwinder, July 17, 1684,† when Joseph was already occupying the house. In one end of the house, Deacon Orne's daughter, Mrs. Harvey, was living in 1679. Joseph Orne died possessed of the house and lot, and the estate descended to his son Joseph Orne, who removed the old house probably about 1740.

Town and Court House. When the first meeting-house was taken down in 1672, the town voted that the timbers be reserved for the construction of a town-, school- and watch-house. This was done and out of them was built such a building. It was first set between the present meeting-house and the tunnel, but before it was finished the town voted that it be removed to the middle of the street near the house of John Ropes, and it was located there, the site being shown on the plan, in 1677. In 1679, the second story was fitted up for the court, which had previously sat in Ship Tavern, or John Gedney's, as it was then called, and here occurred the witch trials of 1692. In 1712, a new watch-house was built on the north side of Town-House square, in the middle of Washington street, and the old watch-house was added to the school accommodations. In 1718, a new town- and court-house was erected on the south side of Town House square, between the present meeting-house and the tunnel, and the old building became wholly devoted to school purposes. It was taken down in 1760.

ANSWERS.

252. Susanna, wife of Jacob Gale, sr., of Kingston, N. H., was his wife and of Kingston in 1740. Is the queriest correct in stating that she was born Aug. 5, 1719; that her son Jacob Gale, jr., was born in 1736; and that this was her second marriage, her first husband having been Dea. John Collins of Salisbury, N. H.?—Ed.

255. Benjamin Ingersoll was born in 173—. His mother, Mary Ingersoll, became a widow before Jan. 21, 1744, when she married Philip Bayley. The Ingersolls lived at Eastern point, Gloucester, and they sold the estate in 1769. The Gloucester records may show the exact date of Benjamin's birth or baptism.—Ed.

258. John Tucker of Newbury, shipwright was son and heir of John Tucker of Sheepscott, according to the deed given by him and his wife Susannah, June 10, 1729, for fifty pounds, to Rev. Christopher Tappan of Newbury, by which he conveyed "all the Lands in the Eastern parts of New England in America from the northerly side of Mussweegs great River up along the main River as far as Cowsegon being as far as Thomas Clives Lease runs down the River and so to Run four miles due north from the main River of Cowsegon being called by The Englis the Lower Narrows with all the privelidges of Timber marsh or marshes fresh or Salt with The privelidges of The Two Rivers called the munsweeges all Which Lands Privelidges & premises my Hon^d Father John Tucker Dec^d formerly bought and purchased of Beamegen alias Robin Hood Indian Sagamore the Original Owner & Proprietor Thereof as appears by A good Deed under his hand & Seal Dated 1662 & recorded The Eighth of September 1666 Relation Thereto or To the Record Thereof being had Will more fully Appear." NEW PUBLICATIONS.

GENEALOGICAL SKETCH OF THE LAMB FAMILY. Compiled by Fred W. Lamb. Second edition. Manchester, N. H., 1903. This is a pamphlet of seven octavo pages, with a frontispiece of a half-tone portrait of the compiler.

THE PRESERVATION OF PARK STREET CHURCH, BOSTON. Boston, 1903. This is a pamphlet of seventy-five octavo pages issued by the committee for the preservation of Park street church. The frontispiece is a full-page engraving of the church. A picture of St. Brides', Fleet street, London, is also given.

GEN. JOHN GLOVER AND HIS MARBLEHEAD REGIMENT IN THE REVOLUTIONARY WAR. By Nathan P. Sanborn. Marblehead, 1903. This is a paper read before the Marblehead historical society by its president. It is a valuable collection of facts; and is issued in a little cloth-bound book of fifty-six pages, General Glover's portrait being the frontispiece.

ANCESTRY OF NATHAN DANE DODGE AND HIS WIFE SARAH (SHEPHERD) DODGE. By Mary A. (Dodge) Parsons. Salem, 1896. This cloth-bound book of seventy-six octavo page was prepared by a daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Dodge, and published by their children. It contains a record of their American ancestry and their children. Mr. Dodge was born in Ipswich, Mass., Dec. 11, 1808, and always lived there. His wife was from Deerfield, N. H. A portrait of Mr. Dodge forms the frontispiece.

THOMAS DUDLEY AND SIMON AND ANN BRADSTREET; A study of House-lots to determine the location of their Homes, and the Exercises at the Dedication of Tablets, July 31, 1902. Ipswich, 1903.

The homes of Governors Dudley and Bradstreet in Ipswich have been located by Rev. T. Frank Waters, president of the local historical society, and this pamphlet gives the titles and locations of them. Its frontispiece is a view of the tablet erected on Meeting House hill.

ARNOLD'S MARCH FROM CAMBRIDGE TO QUEBEC. A critical study, together with a reprint of Arnold's Journal. By Justin H. Smith. New York, 1903. Mr. Smith is professor of modern history at Dartmouth college, and therefore well qualified for this work which he has so well performed.

This is the first time that the story of the American invasion of Canada in 1775 and 1776 has been thoroughly written.

The route of Arnold's small force lay through an unbroken and unknown wilderness. It was a campaign against the forest, flood, fatigue, famine, sickness, death. Every detail is of intense interest, and we are glad that so much is here preserved.

The volume is illustrated by eighteen maps and plans. It is bound in cloth, and contains 498 small octavo pages. It is published by the Knickerbocker Press, G. P. Putnam's Sons, 27 West 23d street, New York City.

HISTORICAL COLLECTIONS OF THE TOPSFIELD HISTORICAL SOCIETY. Published by the Society. Topsfield, Mass., 1902, 1903. The volumes of the Collections of this Society for 1902, 1903 and 1904 are out. The volume for 1902, which is volume eight of the Collections contains one hundred and thirty-two pages. The leading article occupies the larger part of the volume, and is the most valuable paper published by the society. It is an account of the dwelling houses, stores, shops and public buildings in Topsfield, being compiled from the assessors' records and from deeds and various records in private hands, by John H. Towne, a member of the society. Many beautiful pictures of the houses are given.

The vital records of the town complete to 1850 form the double volume for 1903 and 1904.

The annual membership fee of this society is only fifty cents, and each member is entitled to a free copy of the Collections each year.

UNION CEMETERY.

THE West parish of Rowley, now the town of Georgetown, increased in population very slowly until about 1730. Then land was quickly taken, houses built and homes established. The inhabitants attended church at Byfield after the incorporation of the church there in 1702, except the Spoffords on the hill, who worshipped at Bradford. The population was so increased in 1729 that a meeting house was erected where David Brocklebank now lives. Previous to that time the dead had been buried either at Bradford or Byfield, no burial place being here. Some understanding had been reached in the summer of 1732 relative to the establishment of a cemetery near the meeting house, and a quarter-acre of ground, now the extreme eastern portion of Union cemetery in Marlboro' district, was the place selected. Mrs. Hannah Nelson, wife of Joseph Nelson, the owner of the land, was buried here in July, 1732, and Richard Boynton in December of the same year. Others were subsequently interred and Feb. 27, 1733-4, Mr. Nelson, for two pounds and ten shillings, conveyed the plot to the parish for burial purposes.

The cemetery was enlarged in 1755 by land purchased of Rev. Moses Hale. The next year the parish "voted to fence the Buring place the front with good white pine boards and white oake posts sat in clay the fence to be four feet and half high well playned and capt with a bord about six inches wide the fence to be colred with Spanish brown and oyle the gate to be five feet wide well hung with good Iron hinges * * * the three in sides to be Don with a Substanchiel Stone wall four feet high."

It was again enlarged in 1805 by adding to the westerly end one-half of an acre of Job Brocklebank's land for which the parish paid fifty dollars. Dr. Amos Spofford, one of the parish committee chosen to make this enlargement, was the first person who died in the parish after it was made. He died Dec. 20, 1805, and was buried in the new part. The next year a faced wall was built along the front of the yard, in place of the fence.

In 1844, the cemetery was again enlarged by land purchased of David Brocklebank on the westerly side, and the next year the present iron fence along the highway was erected.

Another addition was made in the rear of the cemetery a few years ago.

The ancient stones are fast yielding to the hand of time, and many of the old ones have doubtless entirely gone, leaving no trace.

The following are all the inscriptions there are bearing dates prior to 1800.

SALEM IN 1700. NO. 15.

BY SIDNEY PERLEY.

The map on page 69 represents that part of Salem which is bounded by St. Peter, Brown, Winter and Bridge streets, Washington Square North and the North river, the latter being now filled and Bridge street extended over it. It is based on actual surveys and title deeds, and is drawn on a scale of two hundred feet to an inch. It shows the location of all houses that were standing there in 1700. The braces marked "a" show where Ives court now runs, "b" where Kimball court runs, "c" where Howard street begins, "d" where Williams street begins, "e" where Mall street runs, and "f" where Oliver street runs.

North river has been known as such since the days of the first settlement of Salem by Endecott. The section of the river shown on the plan, which is a cove, was called very early Waller's cove, Christopher Waller living at the foot of St. Peter street where the jail now stands. He was probably the cause of the name.

St. Peter street was one of the original streets leading down to the water. It was called a lane or highway in 1662; lane y^t leads down to ye North river, 1670; ye highway as you goe to ye North river, 1677; highway to ye North river, 1677; street or lane, 1677; prison lane, 1694; street near ye prison, 1696; prison street or lane, 1700; lane or highway by ye prison, 1706; St. Peter street, 1743; and highway leading from the church to the North river, 1762. Since 1800, it has constantly been known as St. Peter street.

Brown street was also one of the early lanes. It was called a lane or highway that goes to the town pound in 1661; ye lane by ye pound, 1667; ye lane or street going into ye common, 1685; street or highway that leads into the training common, 1696; street against Nathaniel Beadle, sr.'s, 1698; highway or lane leading to ye new church, 1733; ye back street leading to ye training field, 1734; highway or lane leading to St. Peter's church, 1742; highway leading to ye church, 1746; the back lane, 1750; ye lane leading from St. Peter's church to ye training field, 1754; lane leading from Prison lane to the Training field, 1755; Church lane, 1783; and Brown street, 1800.

Washington Square North was one of the early ways. It originally followed along the northern side of the common, but in 1768, it was straightened, and the strip of land, from about Mall to Winter streets was conveyed by the town to the adjoining owners. The widest part of the strip was about twenty feet wide, and the ends were tapering. It was called the common highway in 1658; the common highway that comes into Beverly ferry highway, 1741; ye highway or training field, 1756; common or highway, 1758; highway by Salem training field, 1759; the new way, so called, 1768; way on north side of common, 1788; Brown strip, 1796; Newbury street, 1819; and for a number of years it has been known as Washington Square North.

The Common, or Washington Square, was called Ye common commonly called ye pen in 1668; the common, 1671; ye common or common lands, 1673; ye town common, 1674; ye training field commonly called ye pen, 1694; ye training common, 1700; Salem town common training field, 1716; and Washington Square for a number of years. In 1802, it was greatly improved.

Winter street was an ancient road. It was called a lane or highway in 1668; Road leading to Beverly ferry, 1705; Highway leading from the training field to Beverly ferry, 1760; the way to the ferry, 1769; Road, 1771; Way leading to ferry lane, 1771; the ferry lane leading to Beverly, 1779; Ferry lane, 1780; Ferry lane or the way leading to Essex bridge, 1793; and Winter street, 1795.

Bridge street, which extended as late as 1827 to Mall street only, was called ye highway next ye North river in 1701; highway leading down to the North river, 1764; road leading from the North river to the ferry, 1785; road to ferry from North river, 1788; and New street to Beverly bridge, 1810. It has been called Bridge street for many years.

About 1827, North river was filled sufficiently to build the present Bridge street from Mall to St. Peter street; and the new part was called Forrester street in 1840. In the original layout of the town, a highway was left along the river bank here from Mall to St. Peter street at least, and in 1664 it was known as the highway by ye North river.

Ives court was laid out before 1887.

Howard street was laid out in 1801.

Williams street was laid out by Henry Williams through his land in 1796, twenty-four feet wide, except toward the common where it was only nineteen feet.

Mall street was laid out and so called in 1810.

Oliver street was laid out and so called in 1808.

In the sketches that follow, after 1700, titles and deeds referred to pertain to the houses and land under and adjoining and not always to the whole lot, the design being, after that date, to give the history of the houses then standing principally.

Edward Berry House. This house and lot before 1658, were the house and part of the homestead lot of Christopher Waller, who lived here, being a tray-maker. He conveyed the house and this lot and the William Jameson and Samuel Robinson lots, for thirty-six pounds, to Matthew Price of Salem, tailor, May 23, 1662.* In consideration of the support of himself and wife for their lives, Mr. Price conveyed this house and lot to his son-in-law John Edwards and the latter's wife Elizabeth, Jan. 31, 1683-4, saying in the deed: "Know ye y^t wheras I, Mathew Price & Elizabeth my wife are grown antient, & itt hath pleased y^e Lord to visit me with a long & tedious sicknes, soe y^t thereby I am disinabled to provide for myself & wife, soe as I might and would doe if I had my strength, & helth, and for the confidence I have in my son in law John Edwards, & his wife Elizabeth, of theire dutie, love, & care of me & theire mother my wife Elizabeth," conveyed to him, etc.* Mr. Edwards was a seaman, and lived here. He conveyed the house and lot, for thirty pounds, to Francis Elliott of Salem, seaman, March 26, 1686.† Mr. Elliott conveyed the house and lot, for sixteen pounds, to Edward Berry of Salem, weaver, Jan. 8, 1689-90.‡ Mr. Berry conveyed the house and lot to William Coffin of Salem, husbandman, Dec. 20, 1706.§ The next owner that the records show is Edward Nichols of Middleton, yeoman. Mr. Coffin probably conveyed the estate to Mr. Nichols. The latter, for twelve pounds, conveyed the estate to Thomas Fowler of Salem, tailor, Sept. 6, 1731.|| Mr. Fowler died about 1790; and Edward Roberts of Salem and his wife Mary, in her own right, for sixty dollars, conveyed one fourth of the lot to Benjamin Henman of Salem, laborer, July 17, 1801.¶ Widow Sarah Henman of Salem, for one hundred dollars, conveyed one-fourth of the lot to Jacob P. Rust of Salem, trader, July 21, 1801. Mr. Henman, above mentioned, for sixty dollars, conveyed one fourth of the lot to Mr. Rust July 21, 1801; and, also, another fourth interest, Mr. Henman being then called a trader, Aug. 25, 1803.†† Widow

Margaret Robinson, for forty dollars, conveyed one quarter part to Mr. Henman, April 21, 1803.* May 6, 1811, Mr. Rust conveyed his three-fourths to the county of Essex for the site of the jail.† Widow Anna Williams of Salem, a daughter and heir of Thomas Fowler, for seven hundred dollars, conveyed a fourth interest in the lot and the whole of the house, which was a small one, to the county May 11, 1811;‡ and the house was removed.

William Jameson Lot. This lot was a portion of the Christopher Waller homestead, and a part of the ninety rods conveyed by him to Mathew Price of Salem, tailor, May 23, 1662.† In consideration of love, Mr. Price conveyed that part of the lot south of the dashes to his son-in-law William Jameson of Charlestown, tailor, and the latter's wife Sarah, Dec. 28, 1677;§ and the remainder of the lot Jan. 31, 1683-4.¶ Mr. Jameson died before April 16, 1714, when his son and executor John Jamison of Stonington, Conn., tailor, for ten pounds, conveyed the lot to Alexander Mackmallin of Salem, turner.¶¶

Samuel Robinson House. This lot belonged to Christopher Waller until May 23, 1662, when he conveyed this lot and the lots of Edward Berry and William Jameson to Matthew Price of Salem, tailor.† Thomas Ives of Salem, slaughterer, owned it in 1677, having about that time probably erected thereon the house that subsequently stood upon it. He removed from Salem to Lynn, and for twenty-five pounds, conveyed the house and lot to Samuel Robinson, jr., of Salem, carter, May 31, 1690. Mr. Robinson conveyed the house and lot to his father Samuel Robinson, sr., of Salem June 2, 1696.†† Samuel Robinson, jr., died in 1699; and his father conveyed the house and lot to his son Samuel's widow and administratrix Mary Robinson for the benefit of her son William Robinson, Jan. 11, 1699-1700.* Samuel's widow, Mary Robinson, married, secondly, John Blethen, and they and her son William were living in Swansey May 7, 1716, when all of them joined in a conveyance of the house and lot to Daniel Southwick, jr., of Salem, husbandman.† Mr. Southwick sold the house and lot to John Henderson of Salem, laborer, for twenty-five pounds, but died in 1733, before the deed had been executed. His children, John Southwick, 3d, Jonathan Buxton and wife Elizabeth, widow Hannah Potter and Daniel Southwick, all of Salem, executed a deed of the same to Mr. Henderson Aug. 30, 1740.‡ Mr. Henderson died in 1741, having devised the house and lot to his wife Hannah for her life and the remainder in fee to his son Daniel. In some way, not indicated by the records, John Henderson's grandson David Henderson of New Boston, N. H., laborer, (probably son of Daniel above named) was the owner of the estate Dec. 26, 1766, when he sold it, for fifty-three pounds, six shillings, and eight pence to William Crowell of Salem, laborer.§ Mr. Crowell, for one hundred and six pounds thirteen shillings, and four pence, conveyed the house and lot to John Robinson of Salem, mariner, Nov. 27, 1771.¶ Mr. Robinson died before 1791, leaving five children, all daughters. Three of them, widow Sarah Sennet, widow Anne Keith and widow Eunice Coaburn, all of Salem, for twelve pounds, conveyed their interest in the estate to their sisters Lydia Robinson and Elizabeth Robinson, both of Boston, spinsters, Aug. 18, 1791;¶ and on the next day Lydia and Elizabeth Robinson conveyed the house and lot, for sixty pounds, to Lewis

PART OF SALEM IN 1700. NO. 15.

Hunt of Salem, baker.* Mr. Hunt died in 1797, having devised his real estate to his wife Mary for her life, and the remainder in fee to his nine children, William, Lewis, Sarah, Eunice, Mary, Elizabeth, John, Joseph, and Benjamin. Widow Mary Hunt, widow Sarah Symonds, John Russell, esq., and wife Eunice in her right, John Hunt, apothecary, Mary Hunt, daughter of Mary Hunt first above named, and Elizabeth Hunt, conveyed seven ninths of the house and lot, for seven hundred and seventy-eight dollars, to the county of Essex, for the site of the jail and its yard, Oct. 27, 1813.† The guardian of Benjamin Bowditch Hunt and Deborah Hunt, children and heirs at law of Lewis Hunt, conveyed to the county the other two ninths of the house and lot Feb. 4, 1814.‡ The house was removed by the county before the erection of the county buildings at that time.

John Cromwell Lot. This lot was a part of the lot of Christopher Waller, who conveyed it, for three pounds, to George Keaser of Salem, tanner, Jan. 16, 1664-5$. Mr. Keaser, for fifteen pounds, conveyed it to John Cromwell of Salem, slaughterer, May 28, 1674.¶ Mr. Cromwell died possessed of the lot Sept. 30, 1700.

John Ward House. This lot was the property of Christopher Waller, and was conveyed by him to James Browne of Newbury, glazier, July 14, 1664.¶ James Browne removed to Salem, and died in 1676, having devised all of his real estate to his wife Sarah for her life and then this lot to go to his son Abraham. Abraham probably released it to his mother.

The northern end of the lot, above the dashes, was conveyed by the widow, who had married William Healey, to Ezekiel Cheever of Salem March 1, 1677-8.

Mr. Cheever mortgaged the lot to Eliard Veren, jr., of Salem April 1, 1677, and released the equity in the same to the executor of Mr. Veren March 1, 1684.† Capt. John Price of Salem, executor, for thirteen pounds and shillings, conveyed it to John Ward of Salem May 9, 1684;‡ and Mr. Ward died possessed of it in 1732.

The central portion of the lot, between the dashes, was conveyed for two pounds and sixteen shillings, to John Hardy of Salem, mariner, by Sarah, widow of James Browne, May 1, 1677. For thirteen pounds and fifteen shillings, Mr. Hardy conveyed it to Joseph Allen of Salem, seaman, Nov. 23, 1678.¶ Allen died in 1682, and Nov. 13, 1683, his widow and administratrix, Deborah Allen, conveyed it, for eighteen pounds, to Mr. Ward.¶ The ancient and interesting house now standing upon this was erected by Mr. Ward in 1685. Ward died in 1732, possessed of the house and the whole lot, the house having a lean-to and being of two stories height. The house was then valued at one hundred and seventy pounds and half acre of land at eighty pounds. Ward devised the estate to his son Benjamin Ward of Salem. Capt. Benjamin Ward died possessed of it in 1774. The house was then called his mansion house and was valued, with the land, at three hundred and forty pounds. The estate descended to his daughter Deborah, wife of Warwick Palfrey of Salem. She died a widow, in 1806; and in the inventory of her estate this house is called "the mansion house formerly of Mr. Benjamin Ward, deceased, the father of the deceased." Mrs. Palfrey's administrator, for five hundred and fifty dollars, conveyed the estate to Temple Hardy of Salem, baker, Dec. 6, 1816. Mr. H.

three thousand dollars, conveyed the house and lot to Stephen B. Ives of Salem, bookseller, March 8, 1853.* Mr. Ives, for thirty-six hundred dollars, conveyed the estate to David P. Wetherbee of Salem April 12, 1871.† Mr. Wetherbee died in 1874: and the trustee under his will conveyed the house and land to the county of Essex Feb. 28, 1887.‡ The county has since owned the estate. The frontispiece is a view of this ancient house, and shows the overhanging second story.

The southern end of the lot, south of the lower dashes, was conveyed by Abraham Browne, with the consent of his mother Sarah, then wife of William Healy, to Mr. Richard Pytharg of Salem, sadler, March 29, 1682.§ Mr. Prytherich (or Pytharg) and his wife conveyed it to Rev. Samuel Cheever of Marblehead and his wife Ruth Aug. 15, 1694;|| and Mr. and Mrs. Cheever, for ten pounds and eight shillings, conveyed it to Mr. Ward July 16, 1696.¶ Mr. Ward died possessed of it in 1732.

John Cromwell House. This lot was a part of the James Browne lot of which he died seized in 1676, having devised this lot and other land to his son Samuel Brown, subject to the life interest of his (Samuel's) mother Sarah Brown. Samuel probably conveyed it to his mother, who conveyed it to her son James Brown of Salem, glazier, before Feb. 23, 1677, when he conveyed it, for seven pounds and four shillings, to Richard Pytharch of Salem, sadler. Mr. Prithrich erected a house upon the lot immediately; and, for fifty pounds, conveyed the house and lot to John Cromwell of Salem, slaughterer, July 3, 1693.†† Mr. Cromwell died in 1700; and his surviving executor, and heirs, widow Anna Phippen, and Jane, wife of Jonathan Pickering, shipwright, for twenty pounds conveyed the house and lot to John Webb of Salem, carpenter, Anna's son-in-law, March 10, 1709.* Mr. Webb built a new house thereon before he sold the estate in 1749.

James Browne House. This lot was a part of the lot conveyed by Christopher Waller to James Browne of Newbury, glazier, together with the house thereon, in which Mr. Waller then lived, July 14, 1664.† Mr. Waller had probably erected the house immediately after his sale of his other house to Mathew Price May 23, 1662, as stated above. Mr. Browne moved to Salem, and lived here. He died in 1676, having devised the house and lot to his wife Sarah Browne for life and the remainder to his son Samuel. Samuel probably conveyed the lot and house to his brother James Browne then living in Newbury, glazier, who conveyed the lot, for fifteen pounds, to Jonathan Glover of Salem, house carpenter, June 17, 1710.‡ The house was gone.

Joseph Masury House. This was a part of the Christopher Waller lot. He conveyed the half part west of the dashes and a part of the adjoining lot to John Marston of Salem, for three pounds, Jan. 1, 1657-8.§ Mr. Marston purchased, probably of Mr. Waller, the eastern half of the lot before May 20, 1670, when he conveyed this lot, for love, to his son-in-law Samuel Pickworth and wife Sarah (daughter of Mr. Marston).|| Mr. Pickworth erected a dwelling house upon the lot, and five years later entered into the service of the colony in Capt. Joseph Gardiner's company, being corporal. He was slain by the Indians in December, 1675, while without the garrison. In the inventory of his estate, taken in 1676, his house and lot are appraised at fifty-five pounds. His widow, Sarah married, secondly, Joseph Masury of Salem, laborer, who paid the children (Samuel, Sarah, Hannah and Mary Pickworth) of the deceased their shares in the estate. Mr. Masury mortgaged the house and lot, for nine pounds, to William Browne, esq., of Salem, merchant, Nov. 19, 1705.* This mortgage was evidently foreclosed as Mr. Browne, for thirteen pounds and seven shillings, conveyed his interest in the house and lot to widow Judah Masury of Salem Dec. 5, 1710.† On the next day she conveyed the estate for twenty-four pounds, to Joshua Mackmillan of Salem.‡ She was then living in the house, and she subsequently married Mr. Mackmillan to whom she had conveyed the estate. They evidently built an addition to the western end of the house, and then conveyed the old or eastern end of the house, the lower room, chamber, garret and cellar, for fifty pounds, to her son Samuel Masury of Salem, fisherman, Jan. 8, 1728.‡ Mr. Masury, for sixty pounds, conveyed his end of the house and one-half of the lot to David Glover of Salem, housewright, June 28, 1737.§ Mr. Glover, for twenty-two pounds, conveyed his half of the lot and the east end of the house to Joshua Trask of Salem, mariner, April 5, 1743.|| Joshua Mackmillan died possessed of the western end of the house and lot in 1733; and his brother John Mackmillan of Salem, housewright, one of the heirs, released the estate to Mr. Trask Dec. 13, 1743.¶ Mr. Trask died possessed of it before Jan. 22, 1762, when his widow Elizabeth Trask released the house and lot to her son Joseph Trask of Salem, mariner. Joseph Trask lived in the house, and conveyed the estate for fifty-three pounds, six shillings and eight pence, to David Phippen of Salem, gentleman, March 14, 1762. For eighty-three pounds, six shillings eight pence, Mr. Phippen conveyed the house and lot to widow Priscilla Hall of Salem Dec. 25, 1769;† and the house was gone before 1807.

John Marston House. John Waller owned the western half of this the Masury lot very early, and Christopher Waller owned it Jan. 1, 1657 when he conveyed it with the Masury adjoining, to John Marston of Salem, painter, the houses of the grantee and William Marston, which had been erected upon the lot.‡ William Marston of Salem, mariner, owned the eastern half of the lot March 29, 1685-6, when he engaged it with the house thereon to his brother John Marston, for five pounds and seven shillings in silver.§ This mortgage was foreclosed soon after 1700 and John Marston, of Salem, carpenter, conveyed the southeastern corner, with the dashes, with the house, to Thomas Marston of Salem, mariner. John Marston conveyed the remainder of the lot with no house thereon, for forty pounds to Thomas Marston Sept. 2, 1702. Thomas Marston died in 1702, possessed of both parts of this lot, the "house" being on the smaller part of the lot. In the inventory of his estate the house and lot are valued at forty pounds. The house was gone before May 31, 1733, when Philip English, merchant, Philip English, jr., innkeeper, John English, mariner, William Brown, mariner, and his wife Mary, John Touzel, mariner, and his wife Susannah, all of Salem, for five shillings conveyed the lot to Rev. George Burdett of Marblehead, missionary, William T. esq., James Gibson, merchant, John Manning, gunsmith, and John Smith, shopkeeper, all of Salem, a committee appointed to build an Episcopal Nathaniel Gedney House. John Gedney, sr., of Salem, vintner, owned this lot and "dwelling house newly" built June 18, 1661, when he conveyed the house and lot, for love, to his son John Gedney, jr., of Salem, mariner.† Mr. William Sweatland lived in the house in 1677. John Gedney, jr., died in 1684, leaving two sons, Nathaniel and William Gedney, both of Salem. Nathaniel was a mariner, and William a merchant. William released his interest in the estate to his brother Nathaniel Nov. 23, 1696.‡ Nathaniel Gedney died in 1701; and the house was occupied by his widow Mary Gedney Sept. 18, 1704, when his mother Susanna and her then husband, Deliverance Parkman of Salem, merchant, released the house and lot to the surviving son William Gedney.§ How much longer the house stood is uncertain.

William and Hannah Roach House. John Gedney of Salem, vintner, possessed this house and that part of the lot west of the dashes 12: 11 mo: 1661, when, for love, he conveyed the estate to his son-in-law Nicholas Potter, sr., of Salem, bricklayer, and his wife Mary (daughter of the grantor).† Mr. Potter died 18: 8: 1677, having devised the estate to his six children, Samuel, Benjamin, Sarah, Mary, Hannah and Bethiah. By an agreement, made Aug. 14, 1697, among the last three named, probably the only survivors of the family, Mary who had married Samuel Elson, Hannah, William Roach, and Bethiah, Thomas Witt, the house and lot were assigned to the said William Roach and his wife Hannah.|| Mr. Roach died before 1715, and his widow married, secondly, Daniel Darling of Salem, cordwainer, April 15, 1717.

Mr. and Mrs. Darling, for love, conveyed the house and lot to her son William Roach of Provincetown, tanner, July 16, 1718;* and the house was gone before April 13, 1732, when the lot was sold by Mr. Roach, for fifty pounds, to Daniel Needham of Salem, cabinet-maker.†

The strip of land east of the dashes was originally owned with the Eastwick lot. One Burrowes, a cooper, owned it very early. It was next owned by Capt. Benjamin Fermaies, whose widow died possessed of it before 1661. Esther (or Hester) Eastwick, widow of Edward Eastwick, owned it before 1677, having probably obtained it in satisfaction of a claim against the estate of Benjamin Fermaies in or about 1666. Mrs. Eastwick, for four pounds and six shillings, conveyed this strip to William Roach Feb. 16, 1696-7.‡ Mr. Roach was a weaver, and at that time a resident of Salem. It then became a part of his house lot.

Exercise Miles House. This house and lot belonged to Richard Stackhouse of Salem and his wife Susan July 20, 1658, when, for fifteen pounds, they conveyed the same to Isaac Page of Salem, bricklayer.§ The estate belonged to Joseph Miles as early as 1660. He died in 1693, possessed of the house and lot, the house being then "greatly impaired & Gone to Decay." In his will he devised the estate to his wife Exercise Miles. Their daughter Sarah's husband, Thomas Elkins of Salem, coaster, "repaired and amended" the house at the request of the widow, who died in the summer of 1704, having devised the estate to her said son-in-law Thomas Elkins. At the time of Mr. Miles' decease the house and lot were appraised at ten pounds, and at Mrs. Miles' death the house was valued at twenty pounds and the land at ten pounds. Mr. Elkins, for sixty pounds, mortgaged the estate to Col. Samuel Browne, esq., of Salem Oct. 10, 1718.* Sarah, wife of Edward Knowles of Eastham, yeoman, and daughter of Thomas Elkins, who had deceased, for five pounds, released her share of the estate to Colonel Browne Aug. 18, 1726;* and on the same day Stephen Snow of Eastham, husbandman, who married Margaret, daughter of Mr. Elkins, released her interest in the house and lot, for five pounds to Colonel Browne.† The house was gone before 1731.

Stephen Haskett House. This house and lot and the lot of Benjamin Ellingwood belonged to Rev. Edward Norris, teacher of the Church of Salem, 31: 6: 1657, when he conveyed the same to John Marsh of Salem, cordwinder.‡ For twenty-seven pounds and ten shillings, Mr. Marsh conveyed the house and lot, orchard, garden, yard, etc., to Mr. Philip Cromwell of Salem Dec. 20, 1660.§ In 1661, Samuel Beadle occupied the place. For eighty-eight pounds, Mr. Cromwell conveyed the dwelling house and lot and a soap house, "two coppers set up in ye same," etc., to Stephen Haskett of Salem, soap-boiler, Jan. 2, 1664-5.|| Mr. Haskett died in or before 1709, possessed of the lot, the house being gone.

Benjamin Ellingwood House. This lot was a part of the house lot of Rev. Edward Norris which he conveyed to John Marsh, as above, 31: 6: 1657,‡ and which Mr. Marsh conveyed to Philip Cromwell, as above, Dec. 20, 1660.§ Mr. Cromwell conveyed it with the rest of the lot to Stephen Haskett, as above, Jan. 2, 1664-5.|| Mr. Haskett, for twenty pounds, conveyed this lot and a "high-way" twelve feet wide on the eastern side of his lot from this lot to the highway by North river, to William Bath of Beverly, fisherman, Oct. 2, 1677.¶ Mr. Bath erected the house, and lived in it.

He purchased of widow Eastwick of Salem, for four pounds, seven shillings and six pence, a way on the east side of Mr. Eastwick's lot twelve feet wide, from the lot to the lane (Brown street), June 1, 1698.* Mr. Bath, for the support of himself for life, "in my old age," conveyed the house and lot and the two ways to Benjamin Ellingwood of Beverly, coaster, Oct. 13, 1699.† Mr. Ellingwood, who still lived in Beverly, for twenty-six pounds, conveyed the house and lot and the ways of twelve feet wide, to Daniel Stone of Salem, mariner, Feb. 24, 1700 1.‡ Mr. Stone died before May 16, 1721, intestate, and his son and administrator, Daniel Stone of Hopkinton, husbandman, for twenty-six pounds, conveyed "ye old dwelling house" and lot and ways to John Williams of Salem, cooper, June 20, 1721.§ The house was gone soon after.

Esther Eastwick House. This lot and that part of the William and Elizabeth Roach lot lying east of the dashes were owned by one Burrowes very early. They were next owned by Capt. Benjamin Fermaies, whose widow died possessed of the whole lot with a house upon it before 1661. Esther (or, Hester) Eastwick, widow of Edward Eastwick, owned the whole lot before 1677, having perhaps inherited it from Mr. Fermaies about 1661. Mrs. Eastwick conveyed the strip included in the Roach lot to Mr. Roach Feb. 16, 1696-7,|| and died about 1700. The house and lot descended to Elizabeth, wife of Thomas Searle, and Elizabeth's brother Eastwick Bush. The house was standing in 1702, and gone in 1715.

William Gedney Lot. This lot was a part of the homestead estate of George Williams, who died in 1654, having devised the house and lot to his son John Williams after the death of the testator.

wife, who died a few months after her husband. John Williams conveyed this lot with a house thereon to John Gedney of Salem, vintner, about 1659. Mr. Gedney, for love, conveyed the lot, no house being mentioned, to his son John Gedney, jr., of Salem, mariner, Aug. 28, 1667.* Mr. Gedney died possessed of the lot in 1684. The lot was then valued at thirty pounds. His widow, Susannah Gedney of Salem, for love, conveyed it to her sons William and Nathaniel Gedney Oct. 16, 1689.† Nathaniel Gedney, for fifteen pounds, released his interest in the land to his brother William Gedney July 6, 1696.‡ William Gedney died possessed of the lot in 1730.

Estate of Samuel Williams House. This lot was a part of the homestead of George Williams in 1654, when he died possessed of it. In his will he devised the estate to his son John Williams of Salem, who, for six pounds, conveyed this lot and a lot of the same size on the east side of it to Samuel Williams of Salem, cooper, and John Gedney of Salem Dec. 14, 1658.§ Apparently a division of the lot was made before 1672, by the grantees, Samuel Williams taking this lot as his half. Mr. Williams erected a house upon this lot, and died in 1689 possessed of the lot and the house and shop thereon, it being his homestead. The estate was then appraised at one hundred and thirty pounds. He devised his entire estate to his wife Mary, and if anything remained at her decease it was to go to his children; but the administrator of the estate, for forty-four pounds, conveyed the house and lot and orchard to William Browne, esq., of Salem, Nov. 1, 1706.|| Mr. Browne died in 1716; and his sons Samuel Browne and John Browne, his executors and residuary devisees, for forty-eight pounds, conveyed the house and lot to John Williams of Salem, cooper,

Nov. 12, 1716.* In this conveyance the house is described as "a dwelling house old." Mr. Williams died possessed of the house and lot in 1732; and in the division of his estate, in 1750, the house and lot were assigned to his daughter Anstice, wife of Capt. John Crowninshield. The house was gone in 1755, while Mrs. Crowninshield owned the lot.

John Higginson Lot. This lot was a part of the homestead of George Williams in 1654, when he died possessed of it. He devised the homestead to his son John Williams after the decease of the widow. John Williams of Salem, for six pounds, conveyed this lot and the lot west of it to Samuel Williams of Salem, cooper, and John Gedney of Salem Dec. 14, 1658.† Apparently a division of the lot was made, John Gedney taking the eastern half, which was this lot. Isaac Williams of Salem, shoemaker, owned this lot June 29, 1672, when, for eight pounds, he conveyed it to John Higginson, sr., of Salem;‡ and Mr. Higginson, for love, conveyed it to his son John Higginson, jr., Sept. 1, 1676.‡ Colonel Higginson owned it until his decease, March 23, 1719.

John Higginson House. That part of this lot west of the dashes was the estate of Daniel Rumball as early as 1658. In the spring of 1660, he exchanged a part of the lot for some land in the pen common with the town. At a general town meeting held April 30, 1660, it was "voted that Goodman Rumble shalle haue a peec of ground In the penn wheare it maye be Leaft prediudise to the towne in Leiu of the ground hee spared to build vppon a house for mr Higginson: foot for foot: to be Layed owt by the select men." Upon this lot the town built a "ministry house" for Rev. John Higginson, the then new pastor of the church in Salem. Mr. Rumball's house probably went to decay some years later, the land being transferred to Mr. Higginson.

The strip east of the dashes was conveyed by John Williams of Salem, for seven pounds paid by Capt. George Corwin for the use of Mr. Higginson and thirty shillings in silver paid by Mr. Higginson, to Mr. Higginson Nov. 20, 1682.* Mr. Higginson's barn then stood upon this strip, and his house on the front of the main part of the lot. Mr. Higginson died Dec. 9, 1708, having devised the house and lot, garden and orchard, to his son John Higginson. It was then valued at seventy-five pounds, the house being of considerable size. Colonel Higginson died March 23, 1719-20, possessed of the estate. In his will he had devised the house and land to his wife for life and then to his daughter Mary, wife of James, Lindall, and her children. Mrs. Lindall died in 1753, and left three children Timothy Lindall, Sarah Lutwyche and Abigail Jennison. Sarah released her interest in the estate to her sister Abigail Jennison, Sarah being of Boston and Abigail of Salem, both widows, July 29, 1754.† Mrs. Jennison then lived in the house. Timothy and Abigail divided the estate July 31, 1754, Abigail taking the house and that part of the lot.‡ Mrs. Jennison removed to Danvers before 1759, when the house was occupied by Ruth Putnam and William Patterson, a mariner. Mrs. Jennison conveyed the house and lot, for one hundred and seventy-three pounds, to Mr. Patterson Jan. 1, 1761.§ Mr. Patterson died in 1770; and his administratrix conveyed the "old house" and lot, for twenty-three pounds, six shillings, and eight pence, to Jonathan Andrew of Salem, gentleman, May 9, 1771;|| and the house was gone before 1788.

Estate of John Williams House. The lot of William Gedney and Estate of Samuel Williams, the two John Higginson lots, this lot and lot of Thomas Mason comprised the estate of George Williams, who died in 1654, having devised the entire estate to his son John Williams after the decease of the testator's wife Mary. Before 1661, four houses were standing upon the entire lot. John Williams died in the winter of 1696-7, and the heirs divided the real estate Oct. 5, 1700. The land and orchard, and the buildings, consisting of a house, small barn and shop, were then appraised at seventy-five pounds. The dwelling house was then called "very old." The orchard had an area of about an acre, and the trees were then old and decayed. The house and land around it was released to the eldest son, John Williams, subject to the interest of his mother. John Williams took the old house down soon after 1702.

Thomas Mason House. This lot was a part of the homestead of George Williams who died in 1654, having devised the estate to his son John Williams after the decease of the testator's wife, Mary. John Williams, then of Salem, cooper, conveyed this lot to Ephraim Skerry of Salem, cordwinder, June 17, 1668.* Mr. Skerry built a house upon the lot, and died possessed of the estate in 1676. It was then valued at one hundred and three pounds. His widow, Martha Wells of Boston, who was also administratrix of his estate, and his children, Hannah Skerry of Boston, singlewoman, John Neale and wife Martha, and Elizabeth Skerry of Boston, singlewoman, for fifty pounds, conveyed the house and lot to Thomas Mason of Salem, fisherman, Dec. 29, 1694.† Mr. Mason probably removed the house about 1710.

John Best House. All the land between George Williams' estate and Winter street belonged to Thomas Watson of Salem, tailor, very early. Mr. Watson, conveyed this lot, which was a part of his homestead, to John Best of Salem, carrier Nov. 25, 1671.‡ Mr. Best erected a two-story house upon the lot, and died possessed of the same in 1712, having devised the estate to his sons William and Benjamin Best. The will is dated May 9, 1704, and probably Benjamin Best died young. William Best lived in Newport, R. I., and was a mariner. He died in 1712, and his executor, for thirty-eight pounds, conveyed the estate, except the widow's dower, to George Hull of Beverly, cooper, John Best's wife's brother, April 8, 1713.* Mr. Hull, for love, conveyed it to David Best of Salem, a minor son of John Best, deceased, April 10, 1713.* The executor of the will of William Best aforesaid, for sixty pounds, conveyed the homestead or mansion house of said John Best to the latter's son David Best of Salem, currier, May 24, 1720.† David Best died possessed of the house and land in the summer of 1730; but the house was probably gone soon after.

William Browne Lot. Thomas Watson conveyed his homestead, of which this lot was a part, to Jacob Pudeater of Salem, blacksmith, for support of the grantor and his wife for their lives, Oct. 18, 1672.‡ Mr. Pudeater died in 1682, having devised the estate to his wife Ann for life, and the remainder to his cousin Isaac Pudeater. Mrs. Pudeater, who was executrix of her husband's will, for thirty pounds, conveyed this lot to William Browne, jr., of Salem, merchant, April 18, 1685.§ Mr. Browne died possessed of the lot in February, 1716.

Robert Brimsdon House. This was a part of the homestead of Thomas Watson which was conveyed to Jacob Pudeater as above stated. Mr. Pudeater conveyed this lot to John Knight, sr., of Beverly Jan. 24, 1674,|| Mr. Watson having sold it to Thomas Brockett, who in turn had sold it to Mr. Knight, but Mr. Watson having died without giving a deed of the lot. Mr. Knight was a yeoman, and removed to Salem. He (or Thomas Brackett, after 1661) built upon this lot

a house 26x18 feet, and conveyed the house and lot to Robert Brimsdon (or, Brimsdell) of Boston, merchant, Oct. 16, 1673 (1674?)*. Mr. Brimsdon let the house, and in the spring of 1681 a Mr. Mould was living in it. Mr. Brimsdon died in Boston about 1705(?), and his children, Benjamin Brimsdon of Boston, merchant (the deceased's only son), Samuel Greenwood of Boston, shipwright (executor of the will of the deceased), and his wife Elizabeth, Jonathan Evans of Boston, merchant, and his wife Mary, and William Clark and his wife Sarah, for twenty pounds, conveyed the house and lot to John Williams of Salem, cooper, Oct. 20, 1708.† For one hundred pounds, Mr. Williams conveyed the house and lot to Peter Cheever of Salem, cordwainer, Sept. 13, 1728.‡ Mr. Cheever lived in the house, and conveyed the house and lot, for five shillings and his support for life, to Joseph Pratt of Salem, fisherman, May 8, 1780.§ For two hundred and sixty pounds, Mr. Pratt, who was then of Orford, N. H., yeoman, conveyed the house and lot to James Wright of Salem, baker, June 18, 1793.|| The house was apparently gone about 1800, while Mr. Wright owned the land.

Estate of Bartholmew Gedney House. This was a part of the Thomas Watson homestead, which he conveyed to Jacob Pudeater Oct. 18, 1672.|| Mr. Pudeater, for thirty pounds, conveyed this house and lot, "formerly house and land of Goodman Watson, deceased," to John Greenslade of Salem, glover, May 22, 1681. The house was small. Mr. Greenslade (as the probate records give his name) died, probably at sea, in 1693. The house and lot were then appraised at twenty pounds. The heirs apparently conveyed the house and lot to Col. Bartholmew Gedney of Salem immediately, as he died possessed of the estate Feb. 28, 1697-8. It fell to his daughter Deborah, who married Francis Clarke of Boston, merchant, and, for twenty pounds, they conveyed the house and lot to Philip English of Salem, merchant, Jan. 15, 1705-6. The house was gone before Mr. English's death, 1735.

William Browne House. This was a part of the homestead of Thomas Watson of Salem, tailor, very early, and he conveyed the lot at the southeastern corner, south of the dashes, to Jacob Pudeator of Salem, blacksmith, April 14, 1668.† Mr. Watson conveyed the remainder of the lot (and the Gedney lot with the house thereon) to Mr. Pudeator, for support of the grantor and his wife for their lives, Oct. 18, 1672.‡ Mr. Pudeator carried on his blacksmithing business here, and died in 1682, having devised the estate to his wife Ann for her life, and appointed her executrix of his will. There were then two dwelling houses, barn, shop and orchard upon the lot, which were appraised at two hundred and ten pounds. The location of the house of Mr. Pudeator is marked on the map, but the location of the other house is unknown to the writer. It was gone early, and no trace of its exact location has been discovered. Mrs. Pudeator lived here until the fateful summer of 1692. She was condemned as a witch, and executed Sept. 22, 1692, being about seventy years of age. According to the will of Mr. Pudeator, after his wife's decease the property descended to his cousin Isaac Pudeator. No conveyance has been found from him; and William Browne was in possession soon after. Mr. Browne owned the estate until his decease in 1713, when the house was probably gone.

A SPRING STORM.

MR. HALL,

As one Corner of your Gazette is devoted to the Muses, your giving the following Lines a Place therein may amuse some of your Readers; though I must confess they are out of Season, as the Thoughts were suggested by the violent Storm, which we had on the last of March and first of April, 1768.

Your's,

Y. Z.

A SPRING STORM

WHEN from the southern Climes, the God of Day
To blest our Hemisphere directs his way;
And through the Groves the feather'd Warblers sing
In Notes melodious, to salute the spring;
Rough Boreas, dreading his approaching Fate, (Possess'd of Power unlimited so late,
When Winter's Rigours, spreading all around,
Heap'd Desolation o'er the stiffen'd Ground,) With all the Malice Envy can inspire Relists the Influence of his genial Fire;
Calls forth his airy Pow'rs, unlocks their Caves, Knocks off their Fetters, and commands the Slaves,
Regardless of their native Woods and Dens,
To blow their Blasts o'er Seas, Bogs, Lakes, and Fens,
Till dusky Clouds the Mountains Tops beset,
Convulse the Air, and second Chaos threat.
The Giant Furies, now with Malice fell,
(Like Satan, Sin and Death escap'd from Hell)
Traverse without Controul Earth, Sea and Air,
And now to execute their Charge prepare.
First Neptune's Empire the rude Shock sustains,
To foaming Mountains swell his liquid Plains,
While from their hoary Tops dark Vapours rise,
Till thick'ning Clouds and Mists obscure the Skies:

The gath'ring Storm, with unremitting Roar,
Rolls on majestick tow'rd the distant Shore.

Mean while from humble Vales and prostrate Plains;

From Mountains Tops, which wave their shagged
Manes;

From Rivers, charg'd with Tribute for the Deep;
From stagnant Lakes, where future Aquas sleep;
From Quagmires, Marshes, Bogs and Common-Shores,

(Where Mud-Nymphs sleep in aromatick Bow'rs),

A fierce Detachment of th' Eolian Band

Collect the noxious Vapours o'er the Land;

And whirling them aloft, in mid-Air form

A bluf'ring Squadron for the destin'd Storm:

Their airy Forces join'd in dread Array

Move Eastward to obscure the rising Day,

Till meeting Eurus with his hostile Train,

Th' opposing Pow'rs a doubtful War maintain, }
With Conflict dire convulsing Sea and Main. }

Phœbus, high thron'd above their jarring Sphere,
Shines on serene and guides the rolling Year;
Derides their Impotence, enjoys their Spite,
And sees these Sons of Chaos and old Night
By mutual Jars subvert each other's Power,
Till all descend in one prolific Shower.

STORM OF OCTOBER 20, 1770.

One of the most violent and destructive storms of wind and rain that ever occurred on the New England coast prevailed on Saturday, Oct. 20, 1770. It began Friday night and continued most of the following day, the wind blowing from the north-northeast.

At noon the tide rose to an extraordinary height, being greater than any that had occurred since the famous tide of 1723, and within a foot as high as that. Vast quantities of salt hay floated from the marshes of Lynn; and the wind blew down stores, barns and sheds, unroofed houses, and tore up fences and trees. Along the coast it caused a large number of vessels to be wrecked and many lives to be lost.

Off the Isles of Shoals, fourteen schooners were engaged in fishing when the storm came on. One of the small vessels, belonging to the Shoals, Richard Randall, skipper, with four men on board, was anchored, as soon as the gale was upon them, but the wind and waves were so furious that the mainmast was cut away. Before this could be done the anchor was lost, and the vessel was driven through the merciless sea until the storm was past. They were soon overtaken by a sloop from Maine which towed the wreck into the harbor of Salem, Mass. Two of the schooners off the Shoals were driven ashore at Cape Ann, and the men saved. Another, belonging to Kittery, Benjamin Parsons, skipper, was stove to pieces on the rocks near Thatcher's island, and the captain and one of the men were drowned. Still another was driven on the eastern point of Duck island, and dashed to pieces. The skipper was drowned, but the rest of the men reached shore in safety, though their limbs and bodies were much bruised. The number of wives who were made widows and children orphans by this storm must have been large. In the joy and glow of youth and the strength of manhood the men sailed out from the town, and the widows and the fatherless day after day eagerly watched the offing, hoping against hope to witness the approach of the vessels on which their loved ones had gone out; but in vain.

At both Newbury and Gloucester goods in storehouses were also damaged.

A new ship, Captain Dunlap, master, left Newburyport as the storm came on, and was driven on Plum island. While pursuing its wayward course it struck a sloop belonging to Newbury, and stove it to pieces.

At Salem the wind prostrated fences, tore up trees, and injured bridges. On the south shore of North river, for a distance of a mile or more, firewood, timber, all sorts of lumber, as boards, plank and shingles, also staves, barrels, hogsheads, boats and other articles belonging to many persons were so promiscuously thrown together that the owners could not ascertain their respective property. About fifty cords of wood and fifteen or sixteen hundred bushels of sand for scrubbing floors were carried off from Barr's wharf at the North bridge. At the south side of the town, where most of the business was then done, the confusion and destruction were much greater, vast quantities of lumber of various kinds and many boats being violently driven to the opposite shore. All the wharves were overflowed, and salt, sugar, and other perishable articles in the storehouses, of which there was a great amount, were destroyed by the water. The bridges over Forest river, one being on the same site as the present bridge, at the lead mills, and the other farther up the stream, were so much damaged that they were impassable. A large bridge at Danversport was also totally ruined. At Salem much damage was done to the vessels in the harbor and at the wharves. A schooner of large size broke away from her mooring, and dashed up against North bridge, being kept off the top of it with difficulty. The bridge was considerably injured. Another schooner, which was fastened at a wharf farther down the stream, also broke her cables and drove over a small sandy beach upon the grassy upland. Still another schooner of nearly eighty tons burden; that had lately arrived from the West Indies, broke away from the wharf and was driven in a similar manner up on the land to so great a height that it lay with its keel considerably above the high-water mark. In the southern section of the harbor were anchored a ship, a snow, a brig, and nine other vessels. They were driven from their anchorage, and forced up Forest river toward Captain Gardner's mills, which then occupied the site of the lead mills. Several of these vessels were laden, and ready to sail for the Straits and the West Indies. The brig, which was commanded by Captain Warren, and a schooner by Captain Wather were much damaged. Another schooner, commanded by Captain Motley, was driven so far on the land that it seemed impossible for the waves and wind to have performed the feat. The schooner of Capt. Samuel Webb was forced from its wharf across the harbor, and some distance up on the land of the opposite shore. With great difficulty the other vessels were prevented from leaving the wharves. Only one ship in the harbor out-rode the storm successfully, and that was the Antelope, which was commanded by Captain Putnam.

In the harbor of Marblehead, twenty-one brigs, schooners and sloops were cast ashore, but none of them were very much injured.

A schooner, with no one on board, was driven on Deer island in Boston harbor, it being supposed that it had drifted from Lynn or Marblehead.

A ship from Glasgow, but last from Newbury, commanded by Capt. Dun, was lying at anchor in Nantasket road when the storm began. The cable that held it parted, and it was driven upon the flats in Braintree bay, but the masts being cut away it was prevented from driving farther ashore.

The day before the storm a small fishing schooner sailed from Salem, and was cast away in the storm at Scituate, the five persons on board being saved.

This storm was more disastrous to the commerce on our coast, than any other had been up to this date. Many valuable cargoes went to the bottom of the sea, more than a hundred vessels were wrecked, and a hundred lives lost.

NOTES.

S A L E M, April 25.

A very melancholy Accident happened, last Saturday Morning, on board the Brig Pitt-Packet, commanded by Capt. Thomas Power, belonging to Marblehead, and bound in there from Cadiz: The Brig, when within about 7 Leagues of Cape-Ann, came across the Rose Man of War. was boarded, and two of her Men impressed; but these being, for some Reasons, released, the Lieutenant of the Rose, with a Number of Men, again boarded the Brig, in order to take some of the other Men, who, 4 in Number, had secured themselves in the Fore Peak, determining to defend themselves with some Harpoons, &c. they had provided for the Purpose, as long as they had Life. The Lieutenant made use of moderate, kind and persuasive Arguments, and offered, first, to take but two, and afterwards but one, if they would surrender themselves; but all Proposals and Intreaties being ineffectual to induce them to come up, the Lieutenant informed them that he was determined to make use of Force; and the Sailors as resolutely protested that they would kill any who should attempt to take them: A Pistol Charge of Powder was first fired at them, which burnt the Face of one Michael Corbett: and afterwards another of them received a Pistol Shot in his Arm, which broke the Bone: This increased their Resolution of dying rather than to surrender: And their whole Conduct seemed to manifest such an Abhorrence of being forced on board a Man of War, as to prefer Death to such a Life as they deemed Slavery. --- They repeatedly declared they would kill the first Man that offered to approach them: And a Man the Lieutenant sent in to begin the Attack upon them, was considerably wounded; on which he retreated. The Lieutenant then told them that he would lead the Way to them himself: Corbett answered him, with the most solemn Protestations, and called Almighty God to Witness, that so sure as he advanced one Inch further, he should instantly lose his Life. The Lieutenant told them he had seen many a brave Fellow, should take a Pinch of Snuff, and then consider of it; which having deliberately done, he began to step towards them, when Corbett, agreeable to his Promise, immediately threw a Harpoon, which did instant Execution, it hit the Lieutenant near his Throat, and cut the jugular Vein; on which he only had Time to say, that they had taken his Life; and, gasping three or four Times, fell down and expired. The Sailors still continued to defend themselves, notwithstanding there was a large Number of Marines at this Time on board the Brig; but having provided themselves with a Quantity of Liquor, all but Corbett became so intoxicated therewith that they were soon pulled out; he continued to defend himself for three Hours and an half after he killed the Lieutenant, and, it was thought, would have been killed upon the Spot, rather than have been taken, if he had retained the Use of his Limbs; but being also overcome with Liquor, was by that Means taken. The Lieutenant, we hear, was named Paddison, a young Gentleman between 20 and 30 Years of Age, and was much respected. The Captain of the Rose, after this tragical Affair, thought himself obliged to take Charge of the Brig, as well as the Men, and carried them to Boston. The Corpse of the Lieutenant was kept on board the Brig, where it was to remain till a Jury of Inquest should be summoned on the same. . . . Not one American belonged to the Brig.

We hear that a Number of Weavers are greatly wanted in some Towns in this populous County, the Country People being at much Trouble to get the great Quantities they spin wove into Cloth: Therefore a Number of that Business would undoubtedly find great Encouragement this Way. We are told by a Person belonging to Middleton, who is desirous of encouraging American Manufactures, that he has now a House empty, and will let any Person, who can carry on the Business properly, have the same, for one Year, Rent-free.

William Peabody, of Middleton, advertised for sale, May 4, 1769, "Between 90 and 100 Acres of Land, a Dwelling-House and Barn, with two Shops thereon: The whole Place well fenced with Stone Wall, and commodiously situated on the East Side of Ipswich River, within about one Mile and a Quarter of the Meeting-House, and 2 Miles of a Corn Mill.—40 and 50 Barrels of Cyder is made thereon, one Year with another, and before the Worms took to the Trees, upwards of 100 Barrels of Cyder were made in a Year. And a fine young Orchard is coming on. Also a Wood Lot about 3 Miles from the House; and 3 Acres and an Half of Winter and Spring Rye sowed on said Farm

And Also one Half of a Pew in Middleton Meeting House.

NEW PUBLICATIONS.

VITAL RECORDS OF MIDDLETON, MASS. Topsfield, 1904. This is the second volume of vital records that have been published by the Topsfield Historical Society under the recent statute. It contains the records of births, baptisms, intentions of marriages, marriages and deaths in Middleton before the year 1850, making a cloth bound volume of 143 octavo pages. In this work records from other sources than the town records are included, being particularly designated, such as data from gravestone inscriptions, bible records, etc.

VITAL RECORDS OF MANCHESTER, MASS. Salem, 1903. This is the first volume of these records that has been published by the Essex Institute under the recent statute. It contains the births, baptisms, intentions of marriages, marriages and deaths in that town before 1850, making a cloth bound volume of 296 octavo pages. In this work records from other sources than the town records are included, being particularly designated, such as data from gravestone inscriptions, bible records, etc. The importance of this work cannot be overstated.

ROGER CONANT IN AMERICA as Governor and Citizen. By Mrs. Sarah S. Bartlet. Roxbury, 1901. This pamphlet of twelve large closely-printed pages is an address delivered by Mrs. Bartlet at the Conant Family Reunion held at Hotel Vendome, Boston, June 13, 1901. The address is made up principally of the known facts of Conant's life; and it is a valuable addition to the literature of the Old Planters. The price of the address is thirty-five cents, and may be had of Mrs. Bartlet. Her address is 617 Warren street, Roxbury, Mass.

REUNION OF FOURTH-DISTRICT SCHOOL, BOXFORD, MASSACHUSETTS, Wednesday, July 15, 1903. This is the report of the reunion of one of the old district schools of Boxford, the district system having been abolished in 1870. The most noticeable thing about the district is the fact that of the fifty-seven teachers of the winter terms that are given twenty-one were students from Dartmouth college, many of them being in their senior year in college. If this showing is at all general it is not surprising that the old district schools produced such numbers of men and women that have made their mark in the world's progress.

THE STORY OF BYFIELD: A New England Parish. By John Louis Ewell, D. D. Boston, 1904. Byfield is an ancient parish located in Newbury and Rowley, and was established in 1702. This volume is the outcome of the two hundredth anniversary of that event, and includes the principal addresses of the celebration. The author is a native and summer resident of the old parish, and much interested in its history and traditions and peculiar characters. Many curious items are given from the ledger of Stephen Longfellow, which begins in 1710 and continues more than forty years. This was the ancestor of the poet Longfellow, and to him the latter dedicated his "Village Blacksmith." Here were also the homes of the Moodys, Parsons, Wheelwrights, Dummers and Colmans, as well as the Longfellows.

The volume treats particularly of natural features, ancestral homes beyond the sea, the pioneers, the ministries of the pastors of the parish, soldiers, college graduates, Female seminary and Dummer academy. Many inventions have been made and promoted here, and many distinguished men have here begun their lives.

There are many illustrations, portraits, meeting houses, schoolhouses, homesteads, landscapes, maps, fac similes of church records, etc.

There are three hundred and forty-four octavo pages in the volume, and it is bound in buckram. It is well printed, having issued from the University press, Cambridge. It will be sent by mail, postpaid, for $4.25, by the publisher, George E. Littlefield, 67 Cornhill, Boston, Mass.

TRADITION.

DURING the last few years, incidental to the greatly increased critical examination of evidence relied upon in support of alleged historical facts, a question has often arisen in reference to tradition being recognized as possessing any element of probative force, and if it does what its value is.

Some contend that it has none; that if a tradition ever had a legitimate origin it is probably so changed in the course of its transmission that there is no certainty that in any degree it resembles the original statement.

Others say that if a tradition has descended through those persons who would be likely to know best about the subject matter, and who are interested in the truthfulness of the transmitted statements, it is to be relied upon, more or less fully, as evidence of fact; that as there is nothing perfect in the matter of evidence, whether direct or hearsay, hearsay of certain kinds, existing under certain conditions, is to be received, although of course it is liable to be diverted or colored by the personality or bias of the agents by whom it has been transmitted.

Perhaps the largest numbers of investigators use traditions as clues on which to base research, and for no other purpose. This, certainly, is a safe and excellent use to which to put tradition.

The main question, after all, is this: Can tradition be relied upon as evidence when standing alone?

The word tradition, in its general sense, according to Webster's Dictionary, means "that which is transmitted orally from father to son, or from ancestors to posterity; knowledge or belief transmitted without the aid of written memorials."

There is a difference between traditions of thousands of years ago and those of our own time. Ancient tradition, whether of civilized or semi-barbarous races, was an almost sacred thing, to be carefully guarded and transmitted. It was an instrument for keeping in mind those things which needed to be remembered. One of the best examples of the care taken to perpetuate a nation's history and laws orally is that afforded by Moses as leader of the Hebrew race. Lest they, as a people, should forget the laws he had prepared for them and the wonderful things their eyes had seen, he commanded that they teach them diligently unto their children, to talk of them when they sat in their houses, when they walked by the way, when they lay down, and when they rose up.

Now, tradition is an accident merely, —a loose and trivial thing. Everything which it is important to have accurately preserved and transmitted is written down carefully; and what we have in modern tradition is the mere fragmentary survival of things which have not been forgotten. So tradition has fallen into disrepute.

Much that is called tradition is really gossip, idle talk, or statements concerning some comparatively recent event or condition, made without consideration and with little or no regard for accuracy.

Gossip often starts without any foundation, or only a fancy or thought entirely without reason and disseminated so carelessly that it soon becomes half-turned around and in direct opposition to the original statement.

One of the first decisions to be made in the consideration of a tradition is this possibility of its being gossip. In making the decision, generally one need not go farther than an inquiry into the history of its transmission. Unless it is shown to have come down as tradition descends, from generation to generation, it is needless to go farther.

Traditions, at least so called, today abound on every hand. Shall they be regarded as evidence or not? The tendency of the investigator naturally is to regard tradition as evidence, not because he believes to any appreciable degree in tradition, but because he is desirous and in the habit of securing everything written or oral that will throw light upon his search.

In these days of multiplicity of newspapers and other periodicals and books, and the complete records that have been made all through the period of American history it is difficult to conceive of a time when there were no printing presses and scarcely any records. The day of the need of tradition is past, in this region, at least, and the subject must be treated now and locally in a different light from ancient tradition.

Tradition may evidence details of an historical incident which a record fails to give. It may also be used as relating to single facts connected with written history, as well as to the history itself. Again, it may be used to explain doubtful writings, etc.

There are some rules that are important in the treatment of this matter:—

1. Tradition must descend from one generation to another. Before the days of records history was carried down by oral repetition. In a lesser sense this statement is literally true in New England before the days of modern newspapers and the multiplication of other periodicals and books. Today persons do not have as good memories as individuals had in ancient times. Memory grows strong by exercise; and weak from lack of continued effort. There is so much that flashes across the vision and over the brain, scarcely having time to find lodgment or make an impression there before something else engages the attention and dims the earlier recollection. Today the morning and evening newspapers are extensively read; but after the paper of tomorrow is similarly treated how little of what has been read on the preceding day lingers in the memory, and that little is only remembered in the most general way. Long years ago people took time to reflect, and to thoroughly receive and assimilate the statements that had been spoken to them or which they had read.

Again, passing among the scenes that have been associated with the speaker or his ancestors, facts of events connected with the places of which he has been informed come to him with the force of living, stirring incidents, as if it had been he that had taken part in them. Such a man having with him his boy cannot refrain from speaking of the events known to him connected with the place where they may chance to be. Under such conditions these memories come to the lips of people spontaneously. Boys and girls are always interested listeners in the statements of their parents relative to personal matters, and treasure the things spoken. They wish to know the details of a story, and will, by many questions, seek to learn all that is known by their informant.

In the olden days in New England there were families that seemed peculiarly gifted with this talent of preserving and orally transmitting history accurately and fully. Their representatives are found scattered through Essex county: for instance, the Buffum family of Salem, Bushby of Peabody, Gould of Topsfield, Nelson of Georgetown, Nichols of Danvers, Pool of Gloucester, and Wood of Boxford.

To give so called tradition a color of reliability it ought to be shown that it has come from an earlier generation.

2. It must have been known for a long time. It must be shown that the tradition has existed long enough to have become known generally in the place of its origin. Time must be allowed for contradiction. It must have existed long enough for it to become so well known that, if it were capable of denial, some one would have refuted it.

Tradition is hearsay evidence, and should be treated somewhat as other hearsay. It should never or rarely be used to establish a fact if direct and positive evidence is obtainable. If there are persons living who are cognizant of the subject matter, resort to tradition is not only unnecessary but indefensible. The reason of this rule is that the repeater of a statement cannot be questioned as to the means the original declarer of the fact had to know of the truth of his statement, while such original declarer can be cross-examined and the grounds of his belief in the statement fully investigated. Modern tradition is liable to be general, much detail being usually unknown. If there is some person living who actually knows the facts, he will be able to give many details, and questioning will freshen the memory and not only bring forth new matter but enable him to fortify his statements by contemporaneous facts, and by explanation, which tradition never gives.

3. It must be current in the neighborhood of its origin, or among the people whom it concerns, and believed. A tradition of a local incident must be best known and generally accepted in the neighborhood where it occurred, as that is the place where, if it were not true, it would have been disputed and eradicated early in its existence. A local tradition is universally attached to and flourishes only in the locality where it originated. So a family tradition should be best known in the family to which it relates, and there we must look for its most accurate transmission. If one told the story erroneously the many would correct

it. There is no reason why a tradition should be expected to be found in any place or among any people or family other than that with which it is associated.

It has been said already that tradition descends from parent to child, and that often the sight of places and scenes around them causes a father to tell his boy what occurred there. The continuous and intimate association of father and son, especially in the olden days, cements their lives together, and the character and hopes and fears of the father and many of his thoughts unconsciously become those of the child. If they live in the neighborhood where the events of former generations have taken place, the parent will be reminded of some incidents, and will involuntarily speak of them. If, however, they live in another place, where the parent is not reminded of the days that are long past by the sight of familiar places, there will be no occasion to speak of occurrences that have stirred the father, and the tradition will hardly be transmitted by him, unless it is something remarkable and of wide interest, and even then the story will grow more and more indefinite.

A tradition must be shown to have been believed, and to have been transmitted as history, and not simply as a fable or a myth, or a story that is told merely because it is amusing or interesting.

4. It must come from a probable source. Tradition rarely if ever comes down through persons having no particular interest in the history transmitted. To give a tradition credit it must come through those persons who have lived in the vicinity of the local occurrence, or are of families or peoples whom the tradition concerns. Otherwise, there is no reason why the event should be particularly mentioned by persons of one generation to those who are to succeed them. There is not then the incentive to tell the story that locality and personal reasons furnish.

5. There must not be contradictory traditions. If there are two traditions, apparently relating to the same thing, one being contrary to the other, and both of the same weight, they should not be considered. Both cannot be right, and as it cannot be ascertained which has the greater apparent truthfulness, one cannot be taken to the exclusion of the other. Sometimes three or four traditions, so-called, are abroad about the same incident, no two of which are alike.

6. A tradition must be reasonable. Every tradition must be reasonable, on the face of it in the time and at the place of its origin to have it believed. Myths and legends are generally unbelievable because they are abnormal. This rule does not mean that an impossibility must be stated, but it is sufficient if the tradition is composed of improbable statements. A statement that a communication was made by the magnetic telegraph eighty years ago is an impossible one, and not to be believed. A statement that the body of a soldier who was slain in King Philip's war was buried at his home in some inland town many miles from the place of his death is not to be credited because of the lack of means of transportation, though it were a possible act. What would have been done reasonably by the persons engaged in an act must be determined after a consideration of all known facts relative to the conditions at the time and place of its occurrence.

NOTES.

Boston, April 27.

We hear that the Rev. Mr. William Clark, Son to the late Rev. Mr. Peter Clark of Danvers, has received Ordination from the Bishop of London, for the Episcopal Church at Dedham, and would have returned in one of the last Vessels from England, but was not entirely recovered from the Small-Pox.

Boston, May 1.

The Rose Man of War, mentioned under the Salem Head, arrived here last Week, and brought in the Brig with the Body of the Lieutenant who was killed, and his Remains were interred last Thursday. The Brig has since been dismissed, but the Men taken out of her 'tis said, are in Irons on board one of the Men of War in our Harbour.

Account of Goods imported into Salem this Spring from England.

Benjamin Pickman, Esq; 50 Pieces of Russia Duck. This is all the Goods he wrote for, and all he expects.

Francis Cabot, Esq; about £.60 Sterling in Lines, Twine and Hooks.

Peter Frye, Esq; about £.130 Sterling in course Kerseys, Baize, &c. which Goods were wrote for and expected before the Agreement took Place; and about £.140 Sterling in Duck, Hemp, Oznabrigs and Hooks, all which were excepted in the Agreement.

Mr. HALL,

The Reason of sending you the above is, That it has been industriously propagated in Boston, that the Traders in Salem have broke through their Agreement, have loaded a Ship with Goods from England, which came into Marblehead, and delivered the same Goods at Salem. I wish the Design of this may not be to break through the Agreement made at Boston, and lay the first Breach of Promise on this Town. There has not been any Goods imported here, or expected, that has been wrote for since the Agreement, but the above, which were excepted.

I am informed, that on board that Vessel the above Goods came in, there were upwards of 20 Chests of Tea for Boston, but the Persons to whom it was consigned is put down in the Manifest Order.

THE DESERTED HOUSE.

BY EDNA A. FOSTER.

The house is empty, but the door stands wide,
 As if the last departing soul that fled
 To make his home thereafter with the dead
 Was loth the last warm glimpse to be denied,
 And left it thus—ajar. By its gray side
 The roses cling and vines their tendrils spread Across the threshold, now unchecked by tread
 Of glad or weary feet; their blossoms hide
 The gap where sill and step have broken tryst.
 Along the bare, dim rooms there seems to steal
 A sweet illusive shadow; laughter's breath
 Is borne around me, and I almost feel
 The touch of hands; while thro' the memory's mist
 There dawns a face refuting change and death.

SALEM IN 1700. NO. 16.

BY SIDNEY PERLEY.

The map on page 115 represents that part of Salem which is bounded by Essex, St. Peter, and Brown streets and Washington Square West. The plan is drawn on a scale of two hundred feet to an inch, and is based on actual surveys and title deeds.

Essex street was called the street or highway from ye meeting house to ye harbor in 1656; the street that comes straight from the meeting house, 1659; ye street or lane that goeth from y^e meeting house to the field or training place, 1671; the main street, 1694; and Essex street in 1805.

St. Peter street was called a lane that goes to ye north river in 1656; street that goes to y^e north river, 1683; ye lane that goes along by y^e house Samuel Beadle now lives in, 1685; lane which goes down to ye prison in Salem, 1690; Prison lane, 1711; street from Main street to the prison, 1776; and St. Peter street, 1733.

Brown street was called the narrow lane that goes to the pound in 1659; ye lane y^e goes from y^e pound to the common, 1659; ye street or highway, 1670; ye lane that goes to ye town pound, 1683; street or lane that runs down along by Nathaniel Beadles into y^e common, 1685; the lane or highway that leads into the training common, 1716; ye back lane, 1750; the back lane leading from St. Peter's church (so called) to ye Training Field, 1754; Lane leading from prison lane so called to the Training field, 1758; ye Lane leading from the Church to the Training Field so called, 1759; the lane from prison to training field, 1768; lane from St. Peter's church to Beverly Ferry, 1768; and Brown street, 1795.

Washington Square West was called the Common in 1656; Towne Common commonly called the penn, 1659; ye highway, 1694; The Common or Training field, 1730; Newbury street, 1809; and Washington Square West in 1880.

This entire square was the estate of Lucie (Winthrop) wife of Emanuel Downing, and she had owned it and probably lived here since 1640. In that year the end next the common was paled. The house was that marked on the map "Ann Bradstreet," as the marriage portion of her daughter Ann, who married Capt. Joseph Gardner, Mrs. Downing conveyed the estate to Captain Gardner Aug. 8, 1658.*

In the sketches that follow, after 1700, the titles and deeds referred to pertain to the houses and lands under and adjoining, and not always to the whole lot, the design being, after that date, to give the history of the houses then standing.

Samuel Prince House. This lot was a part of the lot conveyed by Capt. Joseph Gardner to Richard Prince of Salem, tailor, March 28, 1659.† Mr. Prince erected a dwelling house upon the lot, and died possessed of the estate in 1675, having devised this part of the lot, with the house, barn and warehouse upon it, to his son Samuel Prince of Salem, tailor. Samuel Prince lived here, and died in 1703, possessed of the house and land around it valued at sixty pounds. His administrator, for seventy pounds, conveyed the house and land around it to Hon. William Browne of Salem Dec. 15, 1703.‡ Mr. Browne, for one hundred and thirty-two pounds, conveyed the lot "together with the house which lately stood upon the said land" to Nathaniel Osgood of Salem, cordwainer, April 19, 1711.§ Mr. Osgood died in the summer of 1756; and by virtue of a power contained in his will, his widow Hannah Osgood, for two hundred and sixty-six pounds, thirteen shillings and four pence, conveyed "the mansion house and homestead of the deceased" to her grandson Christopher Osgood of Salem, cordwainer, Dec. 26, 1769.|| Christopher Osgood conveyed the estate to his father, Nathaniel Osgood of Salem, cordwainer, Feb. 9, 1770.* For three hundred and fifty pounds, Nathaniel Osgood conveyed the estate to Christopher Osgood of Salem, sugar baker, Dec. 14, 1785.† For three hundred and thirty-five pounds, Christopher Osgood, who had removed to Danvers and become a yeoman, conveyed the house and land to Capt. Joseph White of Salem, merchant, Feb. 28, 1792.‡ The house was taken down that year, and Mr. White built, upon the same site, the succeeding year, the house that still stands there.

Samuel Beadle Lot. This lot was a part of the lot conveyed by Joseph Gardner to Richard Prince March 28, 1659.§ Mr. Prince died in 1675, aged sixty-one years, having devised this part of his orchard to his son Jonathan Prince of Salem, cordwinder. Jonathan conveyed the lot, for thirty pounds, to Mr. Philip Cromwell of Salem, slaughterer. Aug. 15, 1683.¶ Mr. Cromwell conveyed it for fifty pounds, to Samuel Beadle, tavern-keeper, who lived directly opposite on the westerly side of St. Peter street, Oct. 29, 1685;¶ and Mr. Beadle died possessed of the lot in 1706.

William Browne House. That part of this lot lying to the west of the western dashes was a part of the lot conveyed by Captain Gardner to Richard Prince March 28, 1659.§ Mr. Prince died possessed of the lot in 1675, having devised this portion of it to his son Samuel Prince of Salem, tailor. Samuel Prince, for twenty-seven pounds and ten shillings, conveyed it to William Browne of Salem, merchant, Nov. 14, 1690, and Mr. Browne owned it in 1700.

That part of the lot lying between the dashes was a part of that conveyed by Captain Gardner to Richard Prince March 28, 1659.§ Mr. Prince died in 1675, having devised this lot to his son Richard Prince of Salem. Richard Prince, jr., dug a cellar upon the lot, and conveyed the cellar and lot to William Browne, jr., of Salem, merchant, Nov. 20, 1677.* Mr. Browne was its owner in 1703.

That part of the lot lying east of the eastern dashes was conveyed by Capt. Joseph Gardner, for seventy pounds and four shillings sterling, to William Browne, jr., of Salem, merchant, Aug. 3, 1664.† Mr. Browne built upon this lot a dwelling house, and lived here. He died in February, 1715-6, having devised the house and lot to his eldest son Col. Samuel Browne of Salem, esquire and merchant. Colonel Browne died possessed of the estate in 1731, having devised it to his son William Browne of Salem, esquire. William Browne died possessed of the house and lot in 1763, having, in his will, dated Oct. 24, 1750, and proved Sept. 2, 1763, devised the estate to his son William Burnet Browne, who was then twenty-six years of age. William Burnet Browne removed to King William county, Virginia, before Oct. 28, 1768, when he conveyed the house and lot to widow Catharine Sargent of Salem, for four hundred pounds.‡ She sold the estate, for three hundred pounds sterling, to Paul Dudley Sargent, esq., of Salem Sept. 16, 1780.§ For two thousand pounds, Mr. Sargent conveyed the house, barn and land to Jesse Fearson of Salem, merchant. Nov. 12, 1781.¶ For one thousand and three pounds, Mr. Fearson conveyed the same estate to William Gray, 3d, of Salem, the famous merchant, Sept. 17, 1783.¶ Mr. Gray greatly beautified the estate, making it his residence. He conveyed the property, for thirteen thousand and five hundred dollars, to the Union Marine Insurance company of Salem June 25, 1805;* and the house then became the "Sun Tavern." The Union Marine Insurance company, for twelve thousand dollars conveyed the estate to William Manning of Salem Nov. 15, 1824,† and Mr. Manning took the old house down, erecting the present Bowker block in 1830.

Ann Bradstreet House. This lot belonged to Lucy Downing wife of Emanuel Downing of Salem, Aug. 8, 1658, when she conveyed it by deed, as a marriage portion, to their son-in-law Capt. Joseph Gardner, the husband of their daughter Ann.‡ The house and lot had probably been in the Downing family for some twenty years. Capt. Gardner lived here, and went into King Philip's war in command of a small company of soldiers, being slain by the savages Dec. 19, 1675. His wife Ann survived him, and married, secondly, Gov. Simon Bradstreet, who then lived in Boston, June 6, 1676. Governor Bradstreet removed to Salem, and subsequently lived in this house. He died March 27, 1697, at the age of ninety-four. She survived him, and continued to live here until April 19, 1713, when she died, having devised the estate to her sister's grandchildren. These grandnieces were the daughters of Col. John Wainwright of Ipswich, and were Elizabeth, wife of Addington Davenport, esq., Anne, wife of Adam Winthrop, esq., and Lucy, wife of Paul Dudley, all of Boston. They leased the estate to Elisha Odlin immediately, and he conducted a tavern in the old mansion, naming it the "Sign of the Globe." In December, 1715, Benjamin Ropes of Salem succeeded Mr. Odlin as innholder in the ancient house. These grand-nieces of Mrs. Bradstreet and their husbands, for three hundred and twenty pounds, conveyed to their tenant, Mr. Ropes, the land and house "called and known by ye name of ye Globe Tavern" Nov. 1, 1716.* Mr. Ropes died in the autumn of 1717; his widow Ann Ropes married John Green and continued the tavern business in this house for two years. The business was then conducted by her husband, John Green, until 1726, when the son Benjamin Ropes became of age, and also, at his mother's request, landlord of the Globe Tavern. During the tenancy of Benjamin Ropes, in 1728, the homestead was divided, the western part of the house being assigned to the widow as a portion of her dower, and the eastern part to her son Benjamin Ropes. The widow died about 1734, and three of the remainder-men, children of Benjamin Ropes, conveyed their interests, one-fifth each, to Miles Ward, jr., of Salem, joiner, as follows: Thomas Ropes of Salem, mariner, July 27, 1734;† Joseph Lamberth of Salem, tailor, and his wife Lydia, daughter of the deceased, March 22, 1738;‡ and George Ropes of Marblehead, cooper, June 26, 1739.§ Miles Ward, jr., conveyed these three-fifths interests in the house and lot to Nathaniel Ingersoll of Salem, mariner, July 3, 1741.|| Benjamin Ropes the son died early and his mother Hannah Ropes inherited his part (two-fifths, being the eldest son he inherited a double share) of the house and land. Captain Ingersoll and Mrs. Ropes took down the ancient house in 1753.

William Bowditch House. This lot was a part of the homestead of Capt. Joseph Gardner, and was probably given by him to his niece Hannah, wife of John Buttolph, perhaps at the time of their marriage in 1663. A house was immediately erected thereon; and, Sept. 14, 1671, when Mr. and Mrs. Buttolph were of Boston, they conveyed the house and lot, for one hundred and twelve pounds, to Thomas Gardner, jr., of Salem.* Mr. Gardner died Nov. 16, 1695; and his administrator conveyed the house and lot to John Higginson, 3d, of Salem, merchant, for one hundred and twenty-five pounds, Dec. 20, 1698;† and Mr. Higginson conveyed it back to the administrator, Capt. William Bowditch, son-in-law of the deceased, for the same consideration, Dec. 27, 1698.‡ Captain Bowditch was a merchant, and died possessed of the estate May 28, 1728, at the age of sixty-four, his wife Mary having died four years previously. In his will he devised his house, barn and homestead land to his eldest son Joseph Bowditch, esq., the estate being appraised at three hundred and seventy-eight pounds and fifteen shillings. Joseph Bowditch lived here, and died possessed of the house and lot Oct. 6, 1780, at the age of eighty, having devised the estate to his daughter Elizabeth, wife of William Jeffry. She was the owner of it when the house was removed in 1793. This ancient house stood nearly in front, a little to the east of Plummer Hall, and in its latter days projected into the street as far as the present curbstone. Since that time the lot and the street here have been raised several feet.

Joseph Henfield and Mary Henfield House. This lot was a part of each of the lots conveyed by Capt. Joseph Gardner to his brother Samuel Gardner of Salem, mariner, 13: 6: 1656,§ and April 22, 1659,|| the dividing line being at the dashes, and running straight through from the street to the lane. The western part was bought first. Samuel Gardner built a house upon the lot upon his marriage in 1657, and died in October, 1689, possessed of the house and lot which he devised to his son Jonathan Gardner. Jonathan Gardner died in 1693, having devised the house and lot to his niece Mary Henfield and nephew Joseph Henfield. As executor of the will of Jonathan Gardner, his brother Abel Gardner gave a deed of release of the house and lot to Joseph and Mary Henfield Nov. 22, 1694.* Mary Henfield, being of Salem, singlewoman, for seventy-seven pounds, conveyed her half of the house, shop and lot to her uncle William Gedney, esq., of Salem March 20, 1700-1, the grantee being already in possession of the estate.† Mary Henfield married Manasseh Marston, jr., of Salem, blacksmith, only three weeks from that day, and a month and three days after their marriage they gave a confirmatory deed of the estate to Mr. Gedney.‡ Her brother Joseph Henfield, who was of Salem and a cooper, conveyed his half of the estate, for seventy-two pounds, to Mr. Gedney July 17, 1707.§ Mr. Gedney was sheriff of Essex county, and died Jan. 24, 1729-30, at the age of sixty-two. He devised the house, shop and land to his young granddaughter Elizabeth Davie, who subsequently married James Butler of Boston, goldsmith, and died Feb. 15, 1739-40, nine months after her marriage. The executor of her will, for four hundred and twenty-five pounds, conveyed the estate to Bartholmew Gedney of Boston, shopkeeper, May 7, 1741.¶ Mr. Gedney, for a similar consideration, conveyed it to James Grant of Salem, gentleman, July 14, 1741.¶ For two hundred and thirty-three pounds, six shillings and eight pence, Mr. Grant conveyed the house, barn and land to Jonathan Gardner of Salem, mariner, Oct. 31, 1750. Mr. Gardner took down the old house the next year.

William Gedney Lot. This was a part of the lot conveyed by Capt. Joseph Gardner to his brother Samuel Gardner of Salem, mariner, April 22, 1659.* Samuel Gardner died in October, 1689, having devised this part of his lot to his son Abel Gardner of Salem, tanner. For thirty-five pounds, Abel Gardner conveyed his lot to his brother-in-law William Gedney, esq., of Salem, merchant, Nov. 12, 1694,† and he owned it until his death, Jan. 24, 1729-30.

Hannah Gedney Lot. This lot was a part of each of the lots conveyed by Capt. Joseph Gardner to his brother Samuel Gardner of Salem, mariner, 13: 6: 1656,‡ and April 22, 1659,* the dividing line being at the western dashes, and the western part being the first purchased. Samuel Gardner died in October, 1689, having devised that part of this lot lying east of the eastern dashes to his daughter Hannah, wife of William Gedney, esq., of Salem, and that part lying west of the eastern dashes to his son Jonathan Gardner. Jonathan Gardner died in 1693, having devised his part of this lot to his sister Hannah Gedney. As executor of the will of Jonathan Gardner, his brother Abel Gardner gave a deed of release of this part of the lot to the devisee, Hannah Gedney, Nov. 22, 1694;§ and she died possessed of the whole lot Jan. 4, 1703-4.

Samuel Robinson House. This lot was a part of each of the lots conveyed by Capt. Joseph Gardner to his brother Samuel Gardner of Salem, mariner, 13: 6: 1656,‡ and April 22, 1659,* the dividing line being at the dashes, the western part having been the first purchased. Samuel Gardner conveyed this lot to Samuel Robinson of Salem, tailor, Feb. 26, 1671.|| Mr. Robinson had already built a house thereon. Mr. Robinson died in the winter of 1723-4; and the executrix of his will, for sixty-two pounds and ten shillings, conveyed the house and lot to Benjamin Bray of Salem, mariner, April 28, 1725.* Mr. Bray was living in 1770, and was deceased in 1795, the house being gone.

Nathaniel Beadle House. This lot was a part of the lot of land conveyed by Capt. Joseph Gardner to his brother Samuel Gardner of Salem, mariner, 13: 6: 1656.† Samuel Gardner conveyed this lot to Samuel Symonds soon after, as Mr. Symonds removed to Rowley Village (now Boxford) before 1664, having disposed of this lot to Anthony Ashby of Salem. Mr. Ashby, for one hundred and ten pounds, conveyed the land and the house and barn thereon to Nathaniel Beadle of Salem, cordwinder, Dec. 25, 1670.‡ Whether the house had been built by Mr. Symonds or by Mr. Ashby is unknown. Mr. Beadle died just before April 24, 1704, when administration was granted on his estate to his eldest son Nathaniel Beadle. The house and lot were then appraised at eighty pounds. The easterly part of the house and lot was apparently conveyed to Peter Henderson, son-in-law of the deceased, before May 15, 1708; and Mr. Henderson died possessed of the same before Jan. 3, 1718-9, when administration was granted on his estate. His part of the house and land was valued at ninety pounds; and it remained in the possession of his widow Elizabeth Henderson as long as the house stood. The westerly part of the house and lot was conveyed by the administrator of the estate of Nathaniel Beadle, for thirty pounds, May 15, 1708, to Benjamin Henderson of Salem, mariner, son-in-law of the deceased.§ Benjamin Henderson died before Jan. 24, 1722-3, when administration was granted upon his estate. His part of the lot and house, then called "an old house," was appraised at twenty-five pounds. Mr. Henderson's children, Benjamin Henderson of Salem, glazier, and Samuel Cook of Salem, fisherman, and his wife, Abigail, sell their father's part of the house and lot, for thirty-two pounds, to David Glover of Salem, housewright, June 27, 1739.* Mr. Glover conveyed his part of the house and lot, for eleven pounds, to James Grant of Salem, tallow-chandler, April 15, 1742.† This part was then occupied by Ebenezer Collins. The house was removed by the respective owners before 1750.

The first consideration in the selection of a patient for treatment with the new method is the nature of the disease. It is not a method of treatment for all diseases, but only for those in which the disease is localized in the lungs and the patient is in good general health. The second consideration is the age of the patient. It is not a method of treatment for old people, but only for young people.

The third consideration is the nature of the patient's occupation. It is not a method of treatment for people who are engaged in heavy manual labor, but only for people who are engaged in light manual labor or in office work. The fourth consideration is the patient's social and domestic life. It is not a method of treatment for people who are married and have children, but only for people who are single or who have no children.

The fifth consideration is the patient's financial resources. It is not a method of treatment for people who are poor, but only for people who are rich. The sixth consideration is the patient's religious and moral beliefs. It is not a method of treatment for people who are not Christians, but only for people who are Christians.

The seventh consideration is the patient's previous medical history. It is not a method of treatment for people who have had other diseases, but only for people who have not had other diseases. The eighth consideration is the patient's present medical condition. It is not a method of treatment for people who are in poor health, but only for people who are in good health.

The ninth consideration is the patient's present mental condition. It is not a method of treatment for people who are mentally ill, but only for people who are mentally sound.

The tenth consideration is the patient's present physical condition. It is not a method of treatment for people who are physically weak, but only for people who are physically strong. The eleventh consideration is the patient's present social condition. It is not a method of treatment for people who are socially isolated, but only for people who are socially integrated. The twelfth consideration is the patient's present domestic condition. It is not a method of treatment for people who are domestically isolated, but only for people who are domestically integrated.

The thirteenth consideration is the patient's present financial condition. It is not a method of treatment for people who are financially poor, but only for people who are financially rich. The fourteenth consideration is the patient's present religious and moral condition. It is not a method of treatment for people who are religiously and morally isolated, but only for people who are religiously and morally integrated.

The fifteenth consideration is the patient's present medical condition. It is not a method of treatment for people who are medically ill, but only for people who are medically sound. The sixteenth consideration is the patient's present mental condition. It is not a method of treatment for people who are mentally ill, but only for people who are mentally sound.

The seventeenth consideration is the patient's present physical condition. It is not a method of treatment for people who are physically ill, but only for people who are physically sound. The eighteenth consideration is the patient's present social condition. It is not a method of treatment for people who are socially ill, but only for people who are socially sound.

The nineteenth consideration is the patient's present domestic condition. It is not a method of treatment for people who are domestically ill, but only for people who are domestically sound. The twentieth consideration is the patient's present financial condition. It is not a method of treatment for people who are financially ill, but only for people who are financially sound.

The twenty-first consideration is the patient's present religious and moral condition. It is not a method of treatment for people who are religiously and morally ill, but only for people who are religiously and morally sound.

The twenty-second consideration is the patient's present medical condition. It is not a method of treatment for people who are medically ill, but only for people who are medically sound. The twenty-third consideration is the patient's present mental condition. It is not a method of treatment for people who are mentally ill, but only for people who are mentally sound. The twenty-fourth consideration is the patient's present physical condition. It is not a method of treatment for people who are physically ill, but only for people who are physically sound.

NEW PUBLICATIONS.

PUBLICATIONS OF THE SHARON (MASS.) HISTORICAL SOCIETY. No. 1, April, 1904. Boston, 1904. The Sharon historical society was organized last year, and this is the first of its publications. The number contains thirty-six pages, and includes several papers, "Annals of Sharon," "A Surveyors' Song," etc., besides space devoted to the origin and work of the society, which is to be congratulated upon its enterprise in beginning to print so early in its history.

THE OLD FAMILIES OF SALISBURY AND AMESBURY, MASS. By David W. Hoyt. Part 8. Providence, R. I., 1904. This is part eight (or part three of volume two) of Mr. Hoyt's valuable work on the genealogies of the two towns named, with some related families of adjoining towns and of York county, Maine. This part contains the Blaisdell family, earlier generations of the Gooch, Knight, Littlefield, Ordway, Pecker, Sanders, Sawyer, Symonds, Titcomb, Wadleigh and Wheelwright families, and extracts and lists of names from the earliest Friends records. Paper covers; seventy-two octavo pages; price, one dollar. Address David W. Hoyt, Providence, R. I.

MOSES BROWN, CAPTAIN U. S. N. By Edgar Stanton Maclay. New York, 1904.

Mr. Maclay is the well known historian of the United States navy; and in this volume he preserves much of the biography of Capt. Moses Brown, the commander of privateers, as well as the history of two important battles he fought upon the ocean. This kind of history is comparatively rare as battles fought at sea have few spectators.

Moses Brown was born on Ring's Island, Salisbury, Jan. 23, 1742, being a son of Edward and Dorothy (Pike) Brown. He was apprenticed to Capt. William Coffin at the age of fifteen; and sailed on the first of his many voyages in October, 1757, in the sloop Swallow for Halifax. The next year he made two voyages to the West Indies. His home was at the Port in Newbury, afterward Newburyport. In 1761, when in his nineteenth year, he experienced his first sea fight, in His Majesty's service in the schooner Phabe. Alone the crew fought two French privateers, Brown being wounded severely. In 1777, he took command of the ship General Arnold which belonged to Nathaniel Tracy, and the next year the vessel was commissioned as a privateer. In 1798, he was commissioned captain of the first sloop of war Merrimack, just launched at Newburyport, carrying twenty-eight guns. He died of apoplexy Jan. 1, 1804, and was buried at sea. A large portion of this volume is devoted to the exciting, interesting and important experiences of Captain Brown in this ship.

The book contains two hundred and twenty well printed pages, attractively bound in cloth, and illustrated by four maps, an engraving of the sloop of war Merrimack, portrait of Captain Brown, fac similes of pages of log books, commissions, etc. The portrait of Captain Brown is given as the frontispiece of this number of The Antiquarian. It was sketched from an old portrait.

The volume will be sent by mail for $1.35 by the publishers, The Baker and Taylor Co., 33 East 17th street, New York City.

BIXBY GENEALOGY.

The name of BIXBY is variously spelled in the old records, Bigsby, Bixbe, Byxbee, etc. The ancestor of the American family is SERG. JOSEPH BIXBY.¹ He first appears in Ipswich in December, 1647, when he married Sarah (Wyatt), widow of Luke Heard of Ipswich. She probably came from Assington, England, as she then had land there. He was a carpenter; and lived in Ipswich until 1660, when he settled in Rowley Village, now the town of Boxford. He belonged to the military company at Topsfield, and was chosen sergeant of the company in 1666. He was a soldier in King Philip's War in 1676; was made a freeman March 22, 1689-90; and died April 19, 1700. The inventory of his estate amounted to £167, 16s., 10d. His wife Sarah survived him, and died, his widow, June 3, 1704, aged eighty-four years.

"JOHNNY BLAISDELL."

John Sawyer Blaisdell was born in the town of Chelmsford, Mass., Nov. 3, 1757. His father was John Blaisdell, son of Henry and Lydia Blaisdell, who was also born in Chelmsford Nov. 23, 1732. His mother was Mary Sawyer, daughter of John and Abigail Sawyer, who was born in Newbury, Mass., March 2, 1729. Johnny's parents were married in Newbury, by the Rev. Moses Parsons Aug. 5, 1756, and settled in Chelmsford. Shortly after Johnny's birth, his father died "in the army of the Havannah" (so his mother said), and when he was but two or three years old his mother went to Newbury to live. Johnny soon after lived out with Enos Bartlett, who then resided "about a mile south of Mr. Hale's meeting house" (1815); and after Mr. Bartlett's death, when Johnny was about eighteen, he went with his mother to live in Byfield parish, Rowley. A year or two after, she being married to Benjamin Wallingford, of Georgetown, Johnny removed with his mother, having been warned out of Rowley. From that time Johnny lived with his mother and step-father in that part of Rowley which is now Georgetown until the spring of 1784, when Mrs. Wallingford purchased of Moses Hazen, for one hundred and twenty pounds, "a lot of land with the westerly half of the house upon it, a right to the well, and the easterly half of the barn upon the westerly side of the road," and with her husband and son removed thereto and settled down once more. This was the old Wallingford house in Boxford, on the Georgetown line, that its owner Thomas B. Masury, in 1878, razed to the ground, it having occupied the same site as his new residence. Mr. Wallingford died in 1790, and the family were soon in destitute circumstances. Johnny was poll-taxed by Boxford till 1796, and had his tax abated each year. Widow Wallingford was taxed in 1796 and 1797 by Boxford, and her tax was abated each year. The property had by this time probably slipped out of their possession, and they were classed among the indigent. The town of Boxford afterwards assisted in supporting the mother and son till their release was wrought by death. The mother died in 1819; and Johnny continued to reside in the west part of the house, alone. The other part of the house was occupied by transient tenants, the place being owned by Major Paul Nelson.

In her youth, Mrs. Wallingford was noted for her beauty, and known, by her companions, as "Fair Rosamond." Johnny was celebrated, locally, as a harmless, inoffensive man, with peculiarities that in Scotland would have gained him the renown of being "daft." Among his eccentric ideas that gave an anxious tremulousness to his disturbed brain, was the fixed thought that he was not his mother's own child, but that in cradle-life her boy was exchanged for him. Any attempt, in a jocular or serious way, to disposses his mind of this, met with the same result. "No, no, the old lady," was his invariable answer when spoken to about his mother; and during her funeral services as Parson Briggs inadvertantly spoke of the relation between them, it so disturbed him, that a neighbor hastened at once to change the current of the remarks. His gentleness reached the humblest and lowliest of God's creatures, for mysteriously conversant with the faith of the Brahmins of the East, he, like them, thought each was tenanted by an angel of its own class; so that beneath his careful feet all creeping life was as safe as in the most secure retreat; and extending to the house-fly, with its eagerness to invade the peace of man, the artful spider, and even to the venomed disturber of "tired nature's sweet restorer," he acquired over the area of his narrow circle, the peculiar fame of the English naturalist, Charles Waterton, to whom cobras and rattlesnakes were harmless playthings, the pastime of many a careless hour. Sometimes in his active life, a fit of wandering gave a ripple of excitement to the matters for talk in the family circles of his neighbors, once, even, on foot reaching Boston, where strangely moving along the streets at the "wee, sma' hours," he was captured by the police, by whom he was taken to Captain Adams, his nearest neighbor, then representing the town in the general court, who at once forwarded him to his home. In this, as at other times, the principal object in his travels was to procure a wonderful book, known as the "Act of Creation," said by him to be three-cornered, but, "will o' the wisp" as it was, it always eluded his grasp. At one time he was married (the death of his wife and three children within a few weeks wrecking his reason, it is said)* and when questioned as to his wife would solemnly assert with a mournful countenance, that the last seen of her was in West Newbury, upon a load of goods, with a brass kettle swinging behind. What peculiar relation such a useful kitchen utensil sustained to this worthy woman was never understood by any one, but to him no doubt there was a wonderful appropriateness in this combination of circumstances, as it was always told as if he had a fresh revelation of the event. Other times he would reply to what had become of his wife in his extremely nervous manner, "She has vanished; she went into the air;" etc. After his mother died, when he was alone, he would fasten the door from the inside with a large stick running from one of the front windows, to keep the witches out, as he said. At such times he would cry out like a man afflicted with the delirium tremens or in a fit.

Johnny's appearance was generally neat, though often his hair would get beyond a proper length, and he kept his face shaved clean, as was the custom of his time. Johnny was short and slim and weighed less than one hundred and twenty. His eyes wore a wild appearance, but his harmless life set at rest all fears any one might have from his company.

The ending of Johnny's earthly career was as tragic and as melancholy as his life. In the winter of 1831-2, the other part of the house was occupied by a tenant named Darling. On Saturday, January 7, Johnny went over to Major Paul Nelson's, who resided near the Old South church, and came home towards dusk. After starting a fire in his fireplace, he was seen by Darling to go out to the well, fill his tea-kettle with water, and enter the house. This was the last time he was ever seen alive. Mrs. Baker, his neighbor, did his washing for him, and on the day in question, early in the evening, her son John carried over to the old house a clean shirt for Johnny, which his mother had washed. John, then a lad of some sixteen years, found the door unfastened, but could not hear nothing from within. He opened the door, when a sickening smell filled the air. John, considerably frightened, ran home and told what he had discovered. His father and brother-in-law, who was then boarding there, immediately repaired to the house, where a horrible sight met their gaze. A few dying embers were in the fireplace, the tea-kettle, containing a small quantity of water, was lying on its side upon the hearth, and across it, with his head just reaching over one of the andirons, with the clothing and flesh somewhat burnt, lay Johnny's dead body. They immediately pulled him off the fire, and sent word to the coroner, a Mr. Parker, then a groceryman at Groveland corner, who came, and before day had dawned on Sunday morning, had chosen the jury and held an inquest upon the body. It was decided that when Johnny was endeavoring to hang the kettle upon the crane in the fireplace, he lost his balance and, falling forward, broke his neck by its falling across one of the andirons, death being instantaneous. SALEM IN 1700. NO. 17.

BY SIDNEY PERLEY.

The map on page 154 represents that part of Salem towards Beverly bridge lying northwest of Bridge street and northeast of Arbella street, and bounded by those streets and by North river and Waller's and Collins' coves, and early called the north neck. It is based on actual surveys and title deeds, and is drawn on a scale of five hundred feet to an inch. It shows the location of all houses standing in 1700. The brace marked "a" shows where Northey street begins; "b" Saunders street; "c" Pearl street; "d" Conant street; "e" Skerry street; "f" Burnside street; "g" March street; "h" Thorndike street; "i" Osgood street; "j" Lathrop street; "k" Watson street; "l" Barton street; and "m" Arbella street.

That portion of Bridge street lying between Winter and Planters streets is substantially in the same location as the old road was in the colonial days. It is probably the first road in Salem, and was undoubtedly used by the old planters before Endecott came. That part of Bridge street between Winter and Mall streets was probably laid out over land of John Neale in 1682, as in that year the town granted to him some land, for that taken for a highway next Thomas Watson's land.* That part of Bridge street between Planters street and Beverly bridge was laid out in 1698 after the location of the ferry was changed to a point near where the bridge now stands. The ferry was changed from its original location in Massey's cove to this place about 1686, and for a dozen years probably travellers followed the shore of North river to the new ferry-landing. The street remained as thus located until April, 1789, after the bridge was built, when the highway was straightened and widened most of its length by the court of general sessions. It still remains as then laid out. It was called the Lane in 1657; ye common country road, 1680; common lane towards Bass River ferry, 1680; ye highway which leadeth down to Beverly ferry, 1695; Ferry lane, 1702; highway going down to ye ferry, 1702; ye country road or highway to ye north ferry, 1704; highway leading from Salem common to Essex bridge, 1791; and Bridge street, formerly Ferry lane, 1795.

Northey street was laid out April 16, 1807,* and has always been called by that name.

Lemon street was one of the ancient highways laid out from the main street running through the town to the water. It was called a lane or highway y^t leads down to y^e North river in 1670; Skerry's lane, 1693; the way leading to the North river, 1727; the way leading from the ferry lane to y^e north river, 1744; Smith's lane, 1800; Water street, 1819; and Lemon street, 1843.

Saunders street was so called in 1831.

Pearl street was a way fifty feet wide leading from Bridge street to the North river in 1806.

Cross street was a highway fifty feet wide in 1806.

Conant street was a "twelve feet way now laid out from the ferry lane to the house and barn of John Peters" in 1781; and was a private way in 1820. It was called Conant street in 1850.

Skerry street was so called in 1858.

The lane on the map leading from what is now Bridge street to Massey's cove was without doubt the very first path or road in this settlement. At the foot of this lane was the Salem terminus of the ancient Bass river ferry, and on either side of this way on the river were the earliest houses. Here, tradition says, and records affirm, the old planters first settled upon their removal from Cape Ann in 1626. From them, probably, arose the appellation of Cape Ann Side as applied to what is now Beverly. "Here," says Hubbard, "they took up their station, upon a pleasant and fruitful neck of land, environed with an arm of the sea on each side, in either of which vessels and ships of good burden might easily anchor.* Two years later, when Endecott came, he established his larger colony farther up the river where Washington street is now. In those earliest days the Old Planters marsh was open grass land, with woods in the rear along North river. Near Osgood street was a sandy ridge running out into the marsh. Massey's cove was exposed to the river on the south, southwest and west, and protected from the north, northeast and east winds by the woods and the high land over which March street now runs. Here were twenty or more houses, which were all, or nearly all, gone before 1661. It seems that the old planters did not claim a title to any part of the land, and later on the town government under Endecott divided the land at this place into small lots, which they granted to various parties. If this is true, and it appears to be, then some of the friction between the Conant and Endecott men doubtless arose out of it. On the hill on the point to which March street runs, an ideal place for a windmill, was very early "Mr. Trask's mill," the road along the river from the ancient lane shown on the map to this point being called, in 1706, "Ye old highway that Leads from ye ferry to Mr. Traffk's mill.† Here, probably, the old planters had a windmill before Captain Trask established a water-mill near the present Peabody line in 1636. This ancient way from Bridge street to the cove was called ye lane which is ye country way in 1657; Lane ranging towards Bass river ferry, 1680; ye old highway downe to ye north river, 1706; country road to ye north ferry, 1707; Robin's lane, 1741; an old way to Beverly ferry, 1781; and a strip of land formerly a street and belonging to the city of Salem, 1839. A few years later, the city sold and conveyed the land to the adjoining owners. When this street was abolished Skerry and Burnside streets were laid out on either side. The ancient road ran under the rear end of the present Skerry street school-house.

March street was a private way fifty feet wide extending from Bridge street to ye North river, laid out by the heirs of Dudley Woodbridge, in 1801; and though a private way it was called March street in 1805. It was called a private way as late as 1828.

Thorndike street was laid out by the Salem Mill Dam Corporation, extending from Bridge street to North river, and called Mill Dam street in 1830.

That part of the highway along the river west of the ancient lane was called the common road going towards ye ferry in 1680; ye highway that leads down to ye ferry upon the banks of ye north river, 1698; and, on both sides of the ancient lane, ye town common or highway, 1698; Ye highway running along by ye river, 1702; Ye country road, 1707; and the old highway by the north river, 1734. It is not mentioned after that date.

Osgood street was so called in 1860.

Lathrop street was so called in 1870.

Watson street was so called in 1870; and was called East Watson street in 1873.

Barton street was so called in 1855.

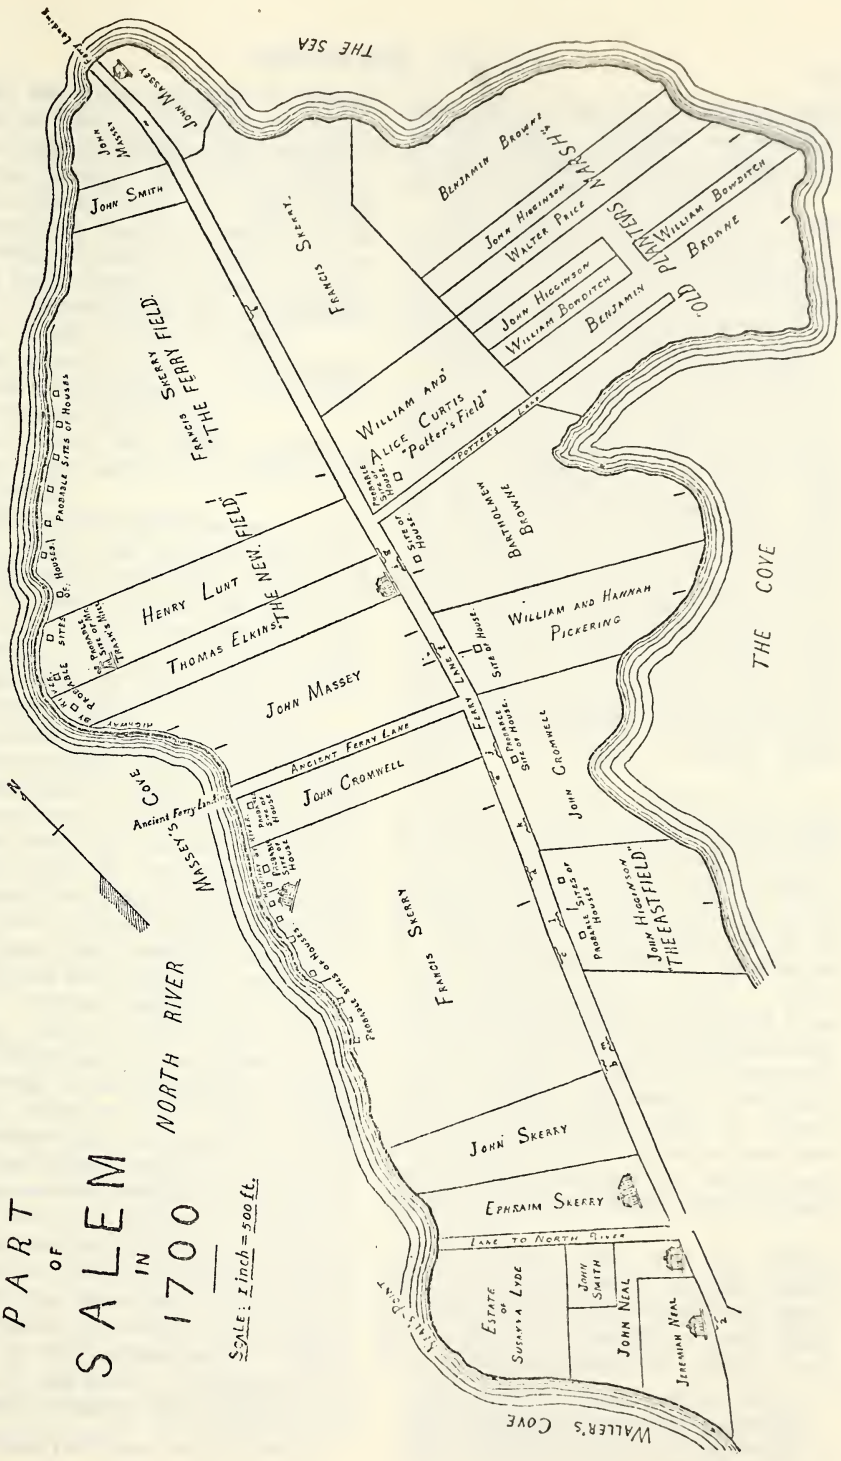

The lane leading to the old planters' marsh was the way to the marsh used by the old planters in the early days. It was called the potter's lane in 1681; ye lane leading to Planters marsh, 1694; and ye lane called Potter's lane leading down to Planters marsh, 1710; From 1681 to 1683, inclusive, the town leased the lane to Francis Skerry, who agreed to fence it in the latter year. This lane was substantially in the same location as the present Planters street. For twenty pounds, the town conveyed to William Browne of Salem, gentleman, "A Certain Strip of Land in Salem formerly improved as a way through the Potters feild to Planters Marsh being in length about Sixty rod & in breadth about one rod & half butting Westerly on land of James Lindall Esq^r Northerly on the Ferry lane Easterly & Southerly on the said Brownes Land & Marsh," March 5, 1739.*

North river has been so denominated since the first settlement. It was called the sea in some 1761 deeds.

Waller's cove was called the cove yt runs up to ye end of Jno. Williams his field in 1683.

Collins' cove was called the sea in 1658; ye cove, 1680; the cove or salt water, 1681; the cove or creek that comes in of salt water, 1682; the salt sea, 1684; ye river, 1694; ye sea or salt water, 1720; Collins' cove, 1730; cove or creek that comes in from the sea, 1748; and the cove near the Neck, so called, 1783.

The Ferry. The ferry, which ran from Massey's cove over to and up Bass river, was established in 1636. It was called Bass River ferry, and was first conducted by John Stone, who was duly licensed to maintain it Dec. 26, that year. He was to conduct it for three years; and to have a penny from each inhabitant of the town and two pence from a stranger for passage. No provision was made for animals apparently. The succeeding term of three years was given to Stone's father-in law William Dixie, and he was to have a boat large enough to carry domestic animals, as horses, swine, etc. The ferry landing on the Salem side was changed in 1686, when John Massey began his service as ferryman, as stated hereafter in connection with the history of his lot. The way by land from the centre of Salem to this new terminus was from the ancient landing along the river bank until 1698 when a way was made very nearly in the present location of the eastern end of Bridge street. At that time it is apparent that the Beverly terminus was changed from Bass river to the present eastern end of Beverly bridge. The ferry was continued until the Beverly, or Essex bridge, as it was first called, was built in 1788.

In the sketches that follow, after 1700, titles and deeds referred to pertain to the houses and land under and adjoining, and not always to the whole lot, the design being, after that date, to give the history of the houses then standing principally.

Jeremiah Neal House. John Neal of Salem, yeoman, early owned all the land shown on the map southwest of Lemon street. Upon this part of the lot in 1670 he built a dwelling house, in which lived his son Jeremiah Neal, carpenter. John Neal died in 1672, having devised the house and this part of the lot to his son Jeremiah Neal. Jeremiah Neal died in 1722, possessed of the house and lot. In 1735, in the division of the estate, this was assigned to the deceased's son Jeremiah Neal, the house being then called "an ancient building," and valued at two pounds. The house was gone before 1749.

John Neal House. This lot was a part of the lot of John Neal, and in his will, dated May 3, 1672, and proved June 28, 1672, to his son Jeremiah Neal of Salem, carpenter, he devised this portion of his lot. Jeremiah Neal released the lot to his son John Neal of Salem, carpenter, for seven pounds, Nov. 10, 1693.* John Neal probably erected a house and barn thereon immediately, and conveyed house, barn, and land to his brother Jeremiah Neal of Salem, carpenter, for one hundred and fifty pounds, Nov. 18, 1702.† Jeremiah Neal, for one hundred and seventy pounds, conveyed the same estate to John Lemmon of Salem, mariner, April 25, 1749.‡

Mr. Lemmon died in 1770, having devised his real estate to his wife Sarah. She conveyed the house and land about it, for twenty-five pounds, to John Fisk, esq., of Salem, March 20, 1794.§ Mr.

Fisk probably took the old house down immediately afterward.

John Smith Lot. This was a part of the lot of John Neal, and was conveyed by him to John Smith of Salem, seaman, March 16, 1670-1;* and Mr. Smith owned it until after 1700.

Estate of Susanna Lyde Lot. This was a part of the lot of John Neal, and was devised by him, in his will dated May 3, 1672, and proved June 28, 1672, to his son Jeremiah Neal of Salem, carpenter. Jeremiah Neal conveyed the lot to Francis Nichols of Salem, joiner, June 10, 1673.† Mr. Nichols conveyed it to William Godsoe of Salem July 31, 1683.‡ Apparently Mr. Godsoe immediately conveyed the lot to Capt. George Curwen of Salem, merchant; and Capt. Curwen died possessed of it in 1685. In the settlement of his estate it was assigned to his daughter Susanna Curwen, who married Edward Lyde of Boston in 1694, and died, childless, before October, 1696. Her heirs were her brother, Hon. Jonathan Curwen, her sisters, Abigail Russell and Hannah Brown, and her nephews, Samuel and Sheriff George Curwen (sons of Capt. John Curwen). George died in 1696, leaving a son, Bartholmew Curwen. Jonathan Curwen, Abigail Russell, Hannah Brown, Samuel Curwen and Bartholmew Curwen were the owners of this lot in 1700.

Ephraim Skerry House. This lot and house constituted the homestead of Marshall Henry Skerry as early as 1673. He died in April, 1697, having devised the house and lot to his son Ephraim Skerry. The house then had a leanto. Ephraim Skerry lived here and died in the spring of 1741, having devised the house and land around it to his sons Ephraim and John, the house being called "an old house." By a division of the real estate the old house and barn and land around them became the property of Ephraim. Ephraim Skerry died before Feb. 11, 1746-7, when administration was granted upon his estate. By a partition of the estate the old house and barn and land around them were assigned to his son Henry Skerry. The house was gone soon afterward.

John Skerry Lot. This lot was a part of the homestead of Marshall Henry Skerry. He died in April, 1697, having devised this lot to his son John Skerry, who, before 1718, removed to Chatham, in Kent, England, and while living there disposed of it.

Francis Skerry House. That part of this lot east of the eastern dashes early belonged to Jeffry Massy, who died 9:9:1676. There was an old house upon that part of the lot at that time. In his will he devised the house and lot to his son John Massy and family. They lived in the house until 1682, when they removed to what is now the Salem end of Beverly bridge. Mr. Massy was then a yeoman, and he conveyed the lot, the house being gone, apparently, to Francis Skerry of Salem, yeoman, Jan. 31, 1682-3.*

Francis Skerry owned the middle section of the lot, between the dashes, in 1682. He had lived upon it from an early date, having erected the present house, now the residence of M. Colby Abbott, about 1683. Mr. Skerry died in the summer of 1684, his will, dated June 25, 1684, being proved Aug. 30, 1684. He devised his dwelling-house and malt-house, and homestead adjoining, after his wife Bridget's decease, to his grandnephew, Francis Skerry (son of Marshall Henry Skerry) of Salem, yeoman. The homestead was then valued at two hundred pounds.

Nathaniel Felton, sr., and John Massey, sr., testified, Jan. 15, 1699-1700. "That y^e land Giuen to Francis Skerry by his uncle Francis Skerry abouesaid called the homestead had Six dwelling houſes upon It before the yeare 1661."†

That part of this lot west of the dashes early belonged to Marshall Henry Skerry, who died in 1697, having devised this land to his son Henry Skerry.* He conveyed it, apparently, soon afterward to his brother Francis Skerry. Priscilla Skerry, widow of Henry, had a life estate in all of Marshall Skerry's land, and was in possession of this in 1702. Three houses stood on this part of the lot before 1661.

Thus this entire lot of land came into the possession of Francis Skerry. Mr. Skerry died in 1736, having devised the house and barn and land around them to his brother Ephraim Skerry of Salem, yeoman, which he also conveyed to him by deed on the same day he made his will, Aug. 20, 1736.† Ephraim Skerry died in the spring of 1741, having devised the house and land around it to his son Henry Skerry of Salem, yeoman. Henry Skerry died in 1781, administration upon his estate being granted Dec. 7, 1781. In the division of the estate, made the next year, the eastern half of the house and western half of the barn and the eastern part of the homestead were assigned to his eldest son Samuel Skerry. The western half of the house and eastern half of the barn were assigned to his son Henry Skerry, who must have conveyed his portion to his brother Samuel before April 8, 1799, when the latter conveyed that part of the house and lot to Benjamin Webb of Salem, innholder.‡ Mr. Webb became a yeoman, and died before Dec. 5, 1815, when administration was granted upon his estate. This part of the house and land descended to his children, Mary Barton, Priscilla Williams, Jonathan Webb and Samuel Webb. Widow Mary Barton and Jonathan Webb, apothecary, both of Salem, and Rev. Nathaniel W. Williams of Concord, N. H., and his wife Priscilla released that part of the house and lot to their brother Samuel Webb, jr., of Salem, March 1, 1831.§ The eastern part of the house and lot was owned by Samuel Skerry until his death which occurred in 1829. It was sold by his administrator to James Archer of Salem, mariner, Nov. 30, 1830.* Mr. Archer died March 7, 1841, and his heirs James Archer and Elizabeth Archer, conveyed the east part of the house and lot to John Archer of Salem, gentleman, June 5, 1841.† The latter, then of Salem trader, conveyed the same interest in the house and land to Samuel Webb of Salem April 11, 1843.‡ Then Samuel Webb became the sole owner of the entire estate. He died April 5, 1865, having devised the estate to the children of his sister Mary Barton, namely, John Barton of Lynn, and William C. Barton, Gardner Barton and Margaret, wife of George D. Phippen of Salem. These conveyed the property, June 11, 1866, to the present owner and occupant,§ who has lived in the house ever since that time. The frontispiece shows the house as it appeared originally. About ten feet has been cut since from the eastern end, an ell added to the western end, and the ancient ell built out to the front. In this house are found the ancient shouldered posts, and the early laths split from the log.

John Cromwell Lot. This was the homestead of Richard Brackenbury before 1661, and he lived in the house which he had built and that then stood upon it. Samuel Ebourne, sr., aged about eighty-seven years, Nathaniel Felton, sr., aged eighty-two, and John Massey, sr., aged about sixty-six, all of Salem, testified, June 7, 1697, "that that field now in y^e possession of John Cromwell next to y^e land w^{ch} was formerly Jeffrey Mafsey was formerly Richard Brakenburys Lott which had on it a dwelling house which was Erected & Inhabited by Said Brackenbury before the year of Our Lord One thousand Six hundred Sixty & one."|| Richard Brackenbury came with Endecott in 1628, and probably erected his house here at that time. The house was probably gone before 1661, and the lot became the property of Thomas Robbins of Salem, carpenter, before April 19, 1680, when the latter conveyed it, for six pounds, eight shillings, to Philip Cromwell of Salem, slaughterer.* Mr. Cromwell died March 30, 1693, at the age of eighty-three, having devised the lot to his son John Cromwell who died possessed of it Sept. 30, 1700.

John Massey Lot. That part of this lot lying west of the western dashes belonged very early to Thomas Reade.

That portion between the dashes was granted by the town to James Smith in 1635.

That part of the lot lying east of the eastern dashes was granted by the town to Michael Sallows in 1635. Mr. Sallows died early in the winter of 1646, but whether he was then possessed of this lot or not the records have not revealed.

The entire lot of five acres was the estate of Thomas Robbins of Salem, carpenter, before Sept. 29, 1657, when he conveyed it, for nine pounds, to John Massey of Salem, husbandman.† Mr. Massey owned the lot until 1707.

Thomas Elkins House. This was a part of the "new field," so called in 1684, which was owned by Francis Skerry as early as 1657. The entire "new field" contained seven acres and there were five dwelling-houses upon it before 1661. This fact was testified to by Nathaniel Felton, sr., and John Massey, sr., Jan. 15, 1699-1700, when these men stated, under oath, "that y^e land Commonly Knowne by y^e name of y^e new field which was given to ffrancis Skerrey and Henry Luntt by their unkle ffrancis Skerry of Salem in New England in y^e Countey of Efsex deceased had fve dwelling houfes upon it before y^e yeare 1661."‡ Mr. Skerry died in the summer of 1684, having, in his will, devised this lot to his nephew Henry Lunt.

That part of the lot east of the dashes came into the possession of Widow Hester Eastwick of Salem before April 19, 1698, when she conveyed it, for seven pounds, to Thomas Elkins of Salem, boatman.*

That part of the lot west of the dashes, Mr. Lunt, then of Newbury, weaver, for seven pounds, conveyed to Thomas Elkins of Salem, boatman, Dec. 16, 1698.† Mr. Elkins erected a house on this part of the lot in the winter of his purchase, and died before Nov. 29, 1705, when administration was granted upon his estate to his widow Sarah Elkins. There was then a small barn as well as the house standing upon the place. His widow Sarah Elkins, and children, Abigail Elkins, widow of son Henry Elkins of Salem, mariner, deceased, Edward Knowles of Eastham, husbandman, and his wife Sarah, a daughter, John Stephens of Salem, husbandman, and his wife Lydia, a daughter, Stephen Snow of Eastham, husbandman, and his wife Margaret, a daughter, and Nicholas Liddiard of Salem, mariner, and his wife Mary, a daughter, for sixty pounds, eighteen shillings, and nine pence, released the house and land around it to Thomas Elkins of Salem, coaster, eldest son of the deceased. Aug. 30, 1718.‡ The house was gone a few years later.

Henry Lunt Lot. This lot was a part of the "new field," so called in 1684, which was owned by Francis Skerry as early as 1657. The entire "new field" had five dwelling-houses upon it before 1661, as already stated. Mr. Skerry devised this portion of the field to his nephew Henry Lunt of Newbury, weaver, in his will dated June 25, 1684, and proved Aug. 30, 1684. Mr. Lunt owned the lot until after 1700.

Francis Skerry Lot. That part of this lot west of the dashes was also a part of the "new field" so called in 1684, which was owned by Francis Skerry as early as 1657. The entire "new field," as previously stated, had five dwelling-houses upon it before 1661. Mr. Skerry devised this part of the field to his nephew Francis Skerry of Salem, husbandman, in his will, dated June 25, 1684, and proved Aug. 30, 1684; and the nephew owned the lot until 1734.

That part of this lot east of the dashes was called the "ferry field" as early as 1684. Nathaniel Felton, sr., and John Massey, sr., testified, Jan. 15, 1699-1700, "that upon the land called & Knowne by y^e name of y^e ferry field in Salem in New England there was before y^e year 1661 five dwelling houses."* The field contained ten acres, and was early in the possession of Francis Skerry who died in 1684, as above stated, having devised this part of the lot to his nephew, Francis Skerry, in his will which was proved Aug. 30, 1684, and the nephew who owned it for many years after 1700.

John Smith Lot. This was a part of the lot of land conveyed by Francis Skerry of Salem, yeoman, to John Massey of Salem, yeoman, Jan. 31, 1682-3.† Mr. Massey apparently conveyed this part of the lot to John Smith before 1695; and Mr. Smith owned it until after the year 1700.

John Massey Lot and House. This lot of land was a part of that conveyed by Francis Skerry of Salem, yeoman, to John Massey of Salem, yeoman, Jan. 31, 1682-3,‡ except the extreme eastern point, possibly, which in 1683 apparently belonged to Capt. George Corwin of Salem, of whom or his heirs Mr. Massey probably bought it before 1699.

March 8, 1685-6, Mr. Massey petitioned the town of Salem to keep the ferry to Beverly, as follows:—

"The petition of Jno massey to the Inhabitants of the towne of Salem now met together march 8th 1685-6 Your petitioner being the Ancientest planter & oldest man now liuing in Salem that was born here, being by the long weaknes of his aged parents now deceased, Reduced to great Straits & brought very low in Estate haueing many Small Children to maintain; the only son whom he hoped would haue been a Comfort & Support in his old age, hauing been (by the prouidence of God) almost blind for this many years: Doth humbly Request that liberty may be granted vnto him to keep a boat on this Side the ferry for the Easier & Readier transportation of all persons Early and late as well towne dwellers as Strangers who shall haue occasion at any tyme to pass that way; which Request if the Towne shal pleas to grant it will much Incoredge Strangers as well as others who haue [been] much Retarded in their business to their great prejudice & damage by a long stay at the ferrey waiting for a boat; and haue many a tyme Chosen rather to traual fiue or Six miles about then pass that way: the granting of what is desired will also be very acceptable to many in this Towne and will Exceedingly oblige your poor petitioner

"John Massey."*

This petition was granted; and Mr. Massey built a small house here, near what is now the Salem end of Beverly bridge, and became an innholder as well as a ferryman. Mr. Massey conducted the business until 1705, when he conveyed the estate to his sons John and Nathaniel,† and particularly one-half of the house, barn and land to his son John, March 7, 1704-5.‡ The business was continued by his son John Massey, to whom the town gave liberty, March 15, 1707-8, to conduct the ferry for twenty years with a Beverly man. Mr. Massey continued the ferry business until April 5, 1711, when he conveyed all his estate to his brother, Nathaniel Massey for his (John's) support.§ Nathaniel Massey was a cooper, and died in 1739, having devised the house and land around it to his son John Massey. The latter died soon afterward, and administration was granted on his estate June 16, 1740. John Shillaber of Salem, shopkeeper, recovered judgment against the estate of John Massey, and, Dec. 9, 1741, the leanto on the north side of the house, then called a "mansion house," and ten square rods of land in the rear were set off to the judgment creditor.* William Shillaber also recovered judgment against the estate, and on the same day, Dec. 9, 1741, a section of the rear part of the house and the land on which such part stood, being a strip seven feet and six inches wide, were set off to this creditor.† The record of the release William Shillaber probably gave to Jane Massey, widow and administratrix of John Massey, has not been found; but John Shillaber released his part to her Aug. 15, 1743.‡ She, as widow and administratrix of Mr. Massey, for one hundred and forty pounds, conveyed the leanto and rear part of the lot to Eleazer Giles of Salem, fisherman, July 23, 1746;§ and the main part of the house and remainder of the lot to him on the same day.|| A new front was added to the house, and Mr. Giles lived here. Samuel Buffum of Salem, shopkeeper, recovered judgment against him, and a portion of the old part of the house and land behind it was assigned to him in satisfaction of his execution Aug. 17, 1767.¶ Mr. Buffum, who was at the time of Salem, and a glazier, released such part to Mr. Giles (then called "3d") Dec. 20, 1768. Mr. Giles removed to Beverly, and died soon afterward, administration being granted on his estate April 3, 1780, to his son Capt. Eleazer Giles of Beverly, mariner. The administrator conveyed the estate to William Homan of Beverly, merchant, Nov. 12, 1782;†† and Mr. Homan reconveyed it to Capt. Giles on the same day.‡‡ Captain Giles probably died in 1809, as his will, dated April 18, 1804, was proved Oct. 2, 1809. In the inventory of his estate, taken Jan. 12, 1810, the "old dwelling house" is mentioned and appraised with the land at a thousand dollars; but according to the inventory of a second administrator, taken Oct. 23, 1811, the house is gone, and the land is appraised at six hundred dollars.

Francis Skerry Lot. This lot was probably bought by Mr. Skerry very early of various parties in small parcels, some of the conveyances being undoubtedly the following: From John Luff of Salem, weaver, three acres near the ferry between Waller's and Edwards' lots, 9: 4 m: 1648;* from Peter Palfray of Reading two acres of marsh lying near the ferry, abutting upon the garden of John Luff, 31: 1: 1653;† Raph Elwood of Salem, planter, one acre near Ipswich ferry, June 22, 1653;‡ and from Philip Cromwell of Salem, butcher, and his wife Dorothy, one acre that was Rich: Leach's, one and one-half acres that was John Leach, sr's, and one-half an acre that was Robert Leach's, lying between ye land of Robert Fuller, 1: 9 mo: 1656.§ Mr. Skerry died possessed of this lot in 1684, having devised it to his nephew Francis Skerry. At that time this and the lot across the ferry road was evidently one lot, the whole lot constituting the "ferry field." Mr. Skerry owned it until 1711.

William and Alice Curtis Lot. This lot was probably granted to widow Isabel Babson in 1637. She built a house upon it and lived there a short time, removing to Gloucester about 1640. William Vincent, a potter, had an early interest in this field, and probably lived there in 1641. The next owner shown by the records is Daniell Rumboll of Salem, blacksmith. He was owning it as early as 1658; and, March 18, 1681-2, he conveyed all his estate to his only daughter Alice and her husband William Curtice, for grantor's support for life.|| They owned the lot until 1704-5; but the house was gone before 1702, and probably before 1678. The lot was called in 1678 "ye Potter's field;" and William Vincent probably had his pottery there. What appeared to be the remains of an ancient brick oven was unearthed there many years ago.

Bartholmew Browne Lot. That part of this lot lying east of the dashes was owned very early by Joseph Young, and he lived in the house that stood upon it as early as 1641. Samuel Ebourné, sr., aged about eighty-seven, Lt. Nathaniel Felton, sr., aged about eighty-two, and John Massey, sr., aged about sixty-six, all of Salem, testified, June 7, 1697, "that y^e Lot of land now in y^e Possession of Bartholmew Browne lying on y^e lane that leadeth to planters marsh was formerly y^e Land of one m^r young & that there was Erected & Standing on y^e vpper Side of Land next to m^r Giffard's Land a dwelling house in which y^e Said m^r young did live before y^e yeare One thousand Six hundred Sixty & one."* John Robinson of Salem, tailor, subsequently owned the lot; and, for thirty-eight pounds, conveyed it (the house being gone) to Bartholmew Browne of Salem, chemist, Nov. 8, 1694.†

That part of this lot which lies west of the dashes was in the improvement of Gervasse Garford 23: 11: 1636, when the town voted that "for as much as m^r Gervas Garford hath built a Cowhouse & impaled a portion of ground neere his dwelling howse vpon the Townes Comon to the hindering of it from receaueing of an other inhabitant That beinge a place fitt for a dwelling house & also it beinge an act not onely done without order or warrant from the Towne but rather ageanst order & warneing. It is therfor agreed That the said m^r Garford shall pay to the Towne twentie shillings fine: & that he pay annually the Rent of Tenn shillings vpon demande so longe as the sd. cowhouse and impaleing so remaine vpon the said Comon, vpon demand." Mr. Garford continued to occupy the lot until shortly before 6: 1 mo: 1653-4, when the town "Granted to John Browne all that land inclosed as well medow as vpland wch was latelie in the possession of mr Garford to all intents and purposes to him and his heyres for euer." Mr. Browne died in 1685, having devised it to his grandson Bartholmew Browne. By agreement between widow Hannah Swinnerton (daughter of Henry Bartholmew, and widow of James Browne, father of said Bartholmew Browne) and her children by her former husband, James Browne, this lot was assigned to the son Bartholmew Browne Sept. 15, 1694.* Bartholmew Browne owned the lot until after 1700.

William and Hannah Pickering Lot. The western part of this lot was granted to Gervasse Garford (who was living here before the two acre lots were limited to one acre), being "upon the north side of birdlesse Cove;" and the eastern part was granted to his daughter Mrs Ann Turland, provided they both build upon them, etc., 7: 10 mo: 1635. A house was erected, partly on each lot apparently, soon after, and Mr. Garford lived in it. Samuel Ebourné, sr., aged about eighty-seven, Lt. Nathaniel Felton, sr., aged about eighty-two, and John Massey, sr., aged about sixty-six, all of Salem, testified, June 7, 1697, "that the feild now in y^e possession of m^{rs} Hannah Swinnerton in Salem lying Eastward of John Cromwells meadow & land was formerly the land of m^r Gaffords & that there was Erected & Standing on Said land a dwelling house in which y^e said m^r Gafford lived before the year of our Lord one Thousand Six hundred Sixty & one."† The house was probably gone before 3: 11 mo: 1650, when Mr. Garford conveyed this lot "where sometime I dwelt," including his interest in the Bartholmew Browne lot to Henry Bartholomew.* Mr. Bartholomew conveyed the lot to John Browne of Salem 3: 8th: 1653;† and Mr. Browne conveyed part of it (probably the strip in Bartholomew Browne lot) to his son John Browne 4: 4: 1673,† and the rest (this lot) to his son James Browne May 10, 1675.† James Browne died in 1676, and by agreement, Sept. 15, 1694, between his widow, who had married Dr. John Swinnerton March 8, 1679-80, and was then his wife, and Mr. Browne's children, that part of the lot lying east of the dashes was assigned to his daughter Hannah Browne, and the west part to his son James Browne. Hannah married Capt. William Pickering of Salem, mariner, June 19, 1695, and to him James Browne conveyed his portion of the lot, for four pounds, ten shillings, March 4, 1698-9.‡ The lot was owned by Captain Pickering and his wife until 1733.

John Cromwell Lot. Capt. Thomas Lawthrop owned this lot, and lived upon it in a house which he had built some time before 1653. Samuel Ebourne, sr., aged about eighty-seven, Nathaniel Felton, sr., aged eighty-two, and John Massey, sr., aged about sixty-six, testified, June 7, 1697, "That that feild w^{ch} is now in y^e possession of s^d John Cromwell lying between y^e land of John Higginson Jun^r & y^e land of M^{rs} Hanah Swinnerton did formerly belong to Cap^t Thomas Lawthrop who built a house upon it & Lived In it before y^e yeare of Our Lord One thousand Sixty & One."§ Jeffry Massey owned the lot in 1653; and the house was probably gone about that time. He died in 1677, having devised the lot to his son John and his family. John Massey of Salem, for thirty-five pounds, conveyed it to Philip Cromwell of Salem, slaughterer, April 14, 1680.|| Mr. Cromwell made his will March 2, 1687-8, "being antient," and it was proved April 4, 1693. He devised his real estate to his son John Cromwell, the latter to maintain his (John's) mother Margaret Cromwell. John Cromwell died possessed of the lot Sept. 30, 1700.

John Higginson Lot. This lot consisted of two lots before 1653, and was known as the "East field" in 1684. There was a house on each of the two lots before 1653, the eastern house and lot being owned and occupied by Robert Goodale of Salem, planter, and the western house and lot by Peter Wolfe. Nathaniel Felton, sr., aged about eighty-two, and John Massey, sr., aged about sixty-six, both of Salem, testified, June 7, 1697, "that y^e ffeild commonly caled y^e East Feild in Salem, lying between y^e great Pasture belonging to Coll^o Gedney & y^e ffeild belonging to John Cromwell now in y^e possession of John Higginson Jun^r was formerly 'Two house Lotts of about Two acres Each Lott & That there was Erected and Standing One Each of Said lotts a dwelling house which were Inhabited by Robert Goodale & Peter Wolfe before y^e yeare of Our Lord One Thousand Six hundred Sixty & One."* The houses were gone, and Mr. Wolfe's lot had come into the possession of Mr. Goodale before 4: 2 mo: 1653, where, for four pounds, ten shillings, he conveyed the premises to Francis Skerry.† Mr. Skerry died in the summer of 1684, having devised this lot to his kinsman Henry Lunt. Mr. Lunt, of Newbury, weaver, for twenty-eight pounds, conveyed it to John Higginson, jr., of Salem, merchant, Nov. 26, 1695;‡ and Lt.-col. John Higginson owned it in 1700.

OLD PLANTERS MARSH.

The old planters marsh has been so called from very early days. This was the marsh of the old planters, probably being greatly valued at first for the supply of thatch for the roofs of their primitive habitations. Apparently the town granted parts of the marsh to several parties very early, the last of it being granted in 1658. Because of the meager descriptions in the ancient deeds, and the absence of records of other deeds, and the fact that all of it became one lot before 1766, the division lines being obliterated, it is impossible to locate the lots. The division lines given on the map are only approximate to the true ones.

April 19, 1678, Francis Skerry, Capt. John Price and William Browne, sr., agreed with Daniel Rumball, all of Salem, that the latter should maintain the fence between the planters' marsh and the potter's field, he to be allowed about six feet of land by the proprietors of planters marsh.*

Benjamin Browne Lot. This was a part of the old planters marsh, and was owned by Peter Palfrey, husbandman, who had removed to Reading before April 15, 1662, when, for sixty pounds, he conveyed it to his son-in-law Samuel Pickman of Salem, mariner.† Mr. Pickman, for seventy pounds, conveyed it to Mr. William Browne, sr., of Salem, merchant, Oct. 3, 1662.‡ William Browne owned it in 1681, and Benjamin Browne in 1700.

John Higginson Lot. This lot was the northeastern half of a lot that once belonged to John Balch, who died in 1648. It descended to his son Benjamin Balch of Beverly, yeoman, who conveyed it to Thomas Gardner, jr., of Salem Aug. 10, 1681.§ Mr. Gardner died Nov. 16, 1695, and his administrator conveyed the lot to Mr. John Higginson, 3d, of Salem, merchant, Dec. 20, 1698.||

Walter Price Lot. This was the western half of the lot that belonged to John Balch, an old planter. Before 1681, this lot had come into the possession of Capt. John Price, who died Aug. 13, 1691, possessed of the lot, which was then valued at twenty-five pounds. It descended to his only son Maj. Walter Price of Salem, merchant, who apparently disposed of it before his death, which occurred in the spring of 1731.

Benjamin Browne Lot. That part of this lot northeasterly of the northeasterly dashes belonged to William Browne, esq., in 1681, and that part southeasterly of the northeasterly dashes to Capt. John Price before 1681.

The point southerly of the southwestern dashes was apparently John Woodberry's originally, as the town, 6: 1 mo: 1653-4, "Granted to mr Georg Emerie the herbidge of that pcell of land wch was John Woodberies in the ould planters marsh and all right of Comonage the towne might haue claymed to him and his heyres for euer." Dr. George Emery owned the lot in 1658, and in 1665 Francis Skerry owned the northwestern end of it. John Brown owned it in 1684.

The wide strip next to the Emery lot, with perhaps the adjoining Bowditch lots, was the seven acres granted by the town, 2: 9 mo: 1658, to William Hathorne of Salem, gentleman, it being the only portion of the planters' marsh that then remained ungranted. It was in the possession of Henry Skerry of Salem at that time and Mr. Hathorne conveyed it to him 28: 1: 1658-9.* Mr. Hathorne evidently bought back the larger part of the lot, a strip on the southwest side which he conveyed to Walter Price of Salem 30: 11: 1665.† Francis Skerry of Salem, maltster, and his wife Bridget conveyed this lot to William Browne, jr., of Salem, merchant, May 24, 1684.‡

The entire lot belonged to Benjamin Browne, esq., in 1698 and 1700.

John Higginson Lot. This lot early belonged to John Balch, who died in 1648. It descended to his son Benjamin Balch of Beverly, yeoman, who con-

OBADIAH WOODS OF IPSWICH.

BY CHARLES E. BANKS, M. D.

The following depositions relating to an Essex county family were gleaned by me in the work of collecting material for a history of Martha's Vineyard upon which I am engaged. Aside from the interesting subject developed by these documents there is the curious baptismal name of the widow Gee, which has brought out passing comment from Savage, Pope, Hammatt, and doubtless others. The correct form of the name may be open to discussion. The gravestone recording her death Nov. 27, 1714, aged seventy-eight years, spells it Haselepony, but it is my belief that Hasabelponah is the proper form and that it is of biblical origin. I think it must be unique in Puritan nomenclature:—

William Harris of Ipswich, aged about seventy years, deposed that he "well remembers Obadiah Woods intermarriage with ye widdow Hazelepony Gee about sixty years since that sd Wood brought her from Boston that it was the Taulk of ye Times when she came to Dwell at Ipswich. That her former husband Gee was an Inhabitant of Marthas Vineyard. That ye sd Hazelpny brought with her Into ye sd Obadiah Woods family Three Daughters viz. Mary Anna & Martha. That Mary married Thomas Pickering. That Anna ye Daughter of sd Hazelepony Intermarried with Samuel Hodgkins of Gloucester That ye sd Martha Intermarried with one Thomas Cotes."

Samuel Wood, aged eighty, son of Obadiah Wood, baker, late of Ipswich, testified as above and also that "her former husband Gee as was reported in Those days was lost at sea", and that Woods married her in Boston and that "Thos. Cotes since deceased in his life time was an Inhabitant of the Island of Marthas Vineyard."

Both depositions are dated October 7, 1736. and recorded in Dukes county deeds, book vi., page 238.

THE OLD BARN.

Rickety, old and crazy,
Shingleless, lacking some doors—
Bad in the upper story,
Wanting in boards in the floors;
Beams strung thick with cobwebs,
Ridgepole yellow and gray,
Hanging in utter impotence,
Over the mows of hay.

How the winds turn around it!—
Winds of a stormy day—
Scattering the fragrant hay-seeds,
Whisking the straws away—
Streaming in at the crevices,
Spreading the clover smell,
Changing the dark old granary
Into a flowery dell!

O, how I loved the shadows
That clung to the silent roof—
Day-dreams wove with the quiet
Many a glittering woorf.
I climbed to the highest rafter,
Watched the swallows at play,
Admired the knots in the boarding,
And rolled in billows of hay!

ANSWERS.

271. The father of Mary Saville who married William Whittredge in 1755 was Thomas Savell of Gloucester, a cooper. He married Mary Haraden in 1722, and had several children. Mr. Savell is said to have come to Gloucester from Malden. His wife died before him. He died in March, 1783; and in his will is the following paragraph: "I also give & bequeath unto my daughter Mary Whittredge her Heirs and assigns, two Pieces of Land on Haraden's point which came, by her mother also two acres of wood Land coming by her and also an equal Share with my sons John and Jefse Savell in the household Furniture I shall die posses'd of." Mr. Savell was eighty-four years old at his death.—Ed.

274. Sarah Tyler who married Jacob Andrews in Ipswich in 1772 was probably daughter of John Tyler of Gloucester, a joiner, who made his will Sept. 29, 1766. It was proved April 28, 1677. He mentions his wife Mary Tyler, eldest son William Tyler, second son James Tyler, daughter Abigail Collins, youngest son John Tyler, and youngest daughter Sarah Tyler.—Ed.

361. The Marblehead records do not give the birth record of Elizabeth (or Betsey) Watts in or about 1777; and the church records, also, do not give her baptism.—Ed.

EDITORIAL.

This number completes volume eight of The Essex Antiquarian. There have been published during the year the wills proved in Essex county in 1659 and 1660; the gravestone inscriptions in the town of Georgetown before 1800; the genealogies of Essex county families from Bear to Black; the record of the Essex county revolutionary soldiers and sailors from Bates to Bickford; abstracts of the Old Norfolk county records, 1670 and 1671; Salem quarterly court records and files, 1654 and 1655; Ipswich court records and files, 1638 to 1649; and miscellaneous genealogical notes from the records from Batten to Berry.

NEW PUBLICATIONS.

GENEALOGICAL SKETCH OF SOME OF THE DESCENDANTS OF ROBERT SAVORY OF NEWBURY, 1656. By Fred W. Lamb. Manchester, N. H., 1904. This is the second edition of Mr. Lamb's sixteen-page sketch of the Savory family. A half-tone portrait of the author forms a frontispiece.

POEMS. By Eugene Barry. Boston, 1904. Mr. Barry is an Essex county poet, having formerly lived in Lynn. In this pretty volume, Mr. Barry's poems will be gladly received. It is bound in cloth, and contains one hundred and fifty-nine duodecimo pages. There are several local poems.

A GENEALOGY OF THE DESCENDANTS OF MOSES AND HANNAH (FOSTER) PEABODY. By Mary Ellen Perley. Salem, 1904. This pamphlet of forty-seven octavo pages gives the line of descent from the first American Peabody, and the descendants of Moses Peabody, born in Boxford Nov. 1, 1744, in both male and female lines, to the present time. Miss Perley's address is Boxford, Mass.

HOUSE OF JOHN PROCTER, Witchcraft Martyr, 1692. By William P. Upham. Peabody, 1904. This is a pamphlet of nineteen octavo pages, being a paper read before the Peabody Historical Society Sept. 2, 1903. It is illustrated by a full-page map of the region about Procter's crossing, extending westerly to the turnpike, and treats of the title to the Downing farm and real estate owned by John Procter. It also treats of the residence and burial place of John Procter. Both map and text are valuable additions to the local history of Peabody.

VITAL RECORDS OF WENHAM, MASS. Salem, 1904. This is another volume of the vital records of Essex county published by the Essex Institute under the statute. This volume contains the births, baptisms, intentions of marriages, marriages and deaths before 1850, making a cloth-bound volume of 227 octavo pages. In this work, as heretofore, are records from other sources than the town records, as from gravestone inscriptions, church records, and family bibles, such odd sources being duly designated in the text. Again, we express our hearty appreciation of this work.

TRANSACTIONS OF THE KANSAS STATE HISTORICAL SOCIETY, 1903-1904. Topeka, Kansas, 1904. This is volume eight of the Historical Collections of this society, and contains five hundred and ninety-four octavo pages, being bound in cloth. It contains many articles of great value, such as Massacre of Confederates by Osage Indians in 1863; Along the Trail; Black Kettle's Last Raid, 1868; Mounds and Deserted Villages; A Famous Old Crossing on the Santa Fe Trail; Early Spanish Explorations and Indian Implements in Kansas; Reminiscences of the Yeager Raid on the Santa Fe Trail in 1863; The Wichita Indians in Kansas; The Pottawatomie Massacre; Along the Kaw Trail; Reminiscences; Recollections; etc. Many of the articles are illustrated by maps, portraits, buildings, scenes, etc.

REPORT OF THE COMMITTEE ON THE AUTHENTICITY OF THE FIRST MEETING HOUSE IN SALEM, together with the evidence. Salem, 1903. This is the report of the committee appointed by the Essex Institute to settle the question of the identity of the little building that for forty-odd years has been declared to be the first Puritan meeting-house in America. The report is most exhaustive and satisfactory, and is against the theory that the little structure ever had relation to the first meeting-house in Salem. It is plain from the evidence that it is substantially the frame, so far as it has survived, of the first Quaker meeting-house in Salem, which was built by Thomas Maule in 1688. The report contains ninety-six octavo pages, and is illustrated by several maps, drawings of each part of the frame, and a picture of the building as it appeared when it first came to be known generally, before its removal to the present site and while it was in its old condition. The evidence consists largely of copies of records, abstracts of records, etc. The report is valuable in other ways as it contains the history of the Nichols farm, Tompkins' inn, the old witchcraft court house (which was made from the first meeting-house), the first meeting-house, the first Quaker meeting-house, schoolhouses, watchhouses, town houses, etc.
